A.F. OF L. SPURNS C. I. O. OFFER OF ONE BIG UNION

Publicity Gag, Lewis Clique Is Told.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on Back Page.)

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—The American Federation of Labor tonight rejected a six point proposal advanced by John L. Lewis for settling labor's civil war. The proposal of the C. I. O. chieftain was made at a peace conference in President Roosevelt's office.

The federation's negotiators declared that the plan of the Congress of Industrial Organizations was not advanced in good faith, but merely in the interests of capturing newspaper headlines. They charged Lewis with using the White House as a sounding board for his proposal.

The Lewis plan called for the formation of an American Congress of Labor, which would embrace the A. F. of L., the C. I. O., and the railroad brotherhoods. It would have precluded the election of either Lewis or William Green, A. F. of L. president, as head of the new group.

President Sidesteps Questions.

At his press conference President Roosevelt, with apparent embarrassment, sidestepped comment on the Lewis plan. He said it was on his desk, but he had not had time to read it.

In a released statement the President pleaded for settlement of labor's factional warfare, which has retarded business recovery. He made no mention of his desire for labor peace so that the Democratic party, shattered by Republican gains, may hope for victory in 1940.

The President acknowledged that he opened the peace parley "by doing most of the talking."

The A. F. of L. negotiators—Matthew Woll, Henry C. Bates, and Thomas Rickert—lost no time in rejecting decisively the peace proposal composed by Lewis and signed by his fellow negotiators, Sidney Hillman and Philip Murray.

"Offers No Possible Solution."

"The plan," the A. F. of L. delegation said in a joint statement, "does not offer any possible solution to the problems facing us. We are convinced it was not designed for serious consideration.

"It should be obvious that the only way to obtain peace is for both sides to get down to consideration of facts in a realistic way and then negotiate a settlement. Nothing can be accomplished by the issuance of fanciful statements for headline purposes.

"In the hope of finding a peaceful solution of the problems involved, we intend to confine ourselves to the procedure outlined by the President. The C. I. O. delegation has placed the President in an embarrassing position by using the White House as a sounding board for its proposal."

Shift Parleys from White House.

The conferences were switched from the White House to the department of labor by the President. They will continue tomorrow morning in a room reserved for the delegates by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

At that time Daniel J. Tobin, head of the Teamsters' union, will rejoin the A. F. of L. delegation. When first appointed he declined to serve. He is an outspoken advocate of peace.

The C. I. O. plan proposes a special meeting of the A. F. of L., the C. I. O., and the railroad brotherhoods, to be held before June 1, to organize the American Congress of Labor. Special conventions of the three groups would be held to act on the proposal between April 15 and April 30.

The proposed setup would have an executive board with equal representation for the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., with the balance of power held by the brotherhoods.

Rail Men Cool to Plan.

The C. I. O. plan suggested D. B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers or A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Trainmen be named president of the new organization.

Railway labor circles expressed surprise at Lewis' proposal. J. G. Luhrsen, executive secretary of the Railway Labor Executives association, asked:

"What reason does Lewis have to assume the brotherhoods would be willing to go along with his proposal? We have the railway labor act and the railroad adjustment board to settle our difficulties. We have gotten along very nicely under these arrangements. I believe we should let well enough alone."

FUSILLADE FIRED BY POLICEMAN DROPS BANDITS

New York Parolees Seized in Holdup.

A cool headed policeman with an accurate aim shot and captured two robbers, paroled convicts from New York state prisons, when they tried to hold up Clark's Liquor store at 74 West Madison street last evening. Four shots fired by one of the bandits went wild.

Mrs. Stella Smith.

The hero was Policeman Anthony Thurson. He and his partner, James Doody, both wearing business suits, were in the store buying cigarets when the two bandits entered. One brandished a pistol, cursed, and ordered everybody to get behind a counter and lie down.

His command was obeyed. Mrs. Stella Smith, the cashier, went down first. She was followed by her brothers, Sidney and Joseph Galler, who operate the store. The policemen, with the gun confronting them, also went to the floor, in such a position that Thurson's body lay partly over Doody's.

Ruse Helps Policeman.

The smaller of the two men then started tying up Mrs. Smith. Believing that Thurson, whom she knew to be a policeman, would make an effort to shoot the man, she pretended to faint and moved to one side. Thurson acted quickly. Dragging his pistol from the holster, and still lying on the floor with only his head and right arm raised, he fired.

The first bullet struck the nearest robber in the mouth and came out through the neck. The bandit fell. Meanwhile the robber who had waved his gun had gone to the opposite side of the store and was looting the cash register.

When Thurson fired this gunman turned and whipped four bullets in the direction of the policeman. They were wild. But Thurson was a master with his weapon. Taking careful aim he fired, and his bullet struck the shooting bandit in the groin. The bandit dropped his gun and gave up.

Both Taken to Hospital.

Both men were taken to the Henrotin hospital and then to the Bridewell hospital. Lloyd Mickle, 38 years old, who claims New York as his home, is the one who fired at Thurson. The other is John Baker, 22 years old, of Rochester, N. Y.

Mickle said that he was paroled from the Woodburn, N. Y., penitentiary four months ago after serving a ten year sentence for robbery. He said he previously had been sentenced to Sing Sing and Dannemora prisons in New York. Baker was paroled from Auburn, N. Y., last April after a three year term for robbery.

New York police records show that a Lloyd Mickle was arrested after a robbery of a luggage shop in 1928. Presumably this was the crime for which he was sentenced. Baker's record could not be obtained last night.

Gunman Congratulates Officer.

Mickle congratulated Policeman Thurson after he had been shot.

"That was the best piece of shooting I ever saw a policeman do," he said. "You fellows had us fooled. But you were lucky, too. If Baker hadn't been so busy tying up the lady he would have shot you and the rest of the bunch to death."

Physicians at the Bridewell said that Baker's wound was critical, but that Mickle was almost certain to recover. It was learned after their removal there that they had held up a clerk, Wayne Jinkins, in the Jarman shoe store at 20 North Dearborn street at 6:45 p. m., only fifteen minutes before they burst into the liquor store.

Policeman Thurson is 40 years old and lives with his wife and three children at 9124 Marshfield avenue.

TWO NATURES STRUGGLING WITHIN HIMSELF

Illinois Senate Votes Bills for Woman Jurors

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Twin bills to let women serve on juries in Illinois rode roughshod over male prejudices in the senate today and were passed, 32 to 7. A similar victory is expected in the house of representatives, closing years of endeavors by advocates of the measures.

Lottie H. O'Neill.

Debate slowed the roll call as senators rose to defend or berate the bills. Women in the galleries and on the floor of the senate listened silently. Two of the latter were Representative Lottie H. O'Neill [R., Downers Grove] and Miss Matilda Fenberg, a Chicago attorney.

Harold G. Ward of Chicago, Mayor Kelly's floor leader in the senate, sponsored the bills.

"The time has come when women in Illinois are entitled to complete emancipation," he said.

Privilege Likened to Soldier's.

Senator R. Wallace Karraker, independent Democrat from Jonesboro, took the floor.

"The basic argument for these bills is that jury service is a privilege," said Karraker. "It is not a privilege any more than going to war is a privilege."

Karraker said that as soon as women serve on juries all of the courthouses in Illinois will have to supply women's quarters and additional bailiffs. His own district can't pay the bill, he said.

A senate veteran, Richard J. Barr [R., Joliet], replied:

"The arguments against women on juries are practically the ones used against bills giving women the right to vote."

Senator H. S. Burgess [D., Plainfield] raised the question of the quality of jurors to be found among women.

"You ought to see some of the men on juries," Barr retorted.

"The jury box is no place for a lady," said Senator George C. Dixon [R., Dixon]. "You know the kind of sordid crimes and sex matters that are presented in courts."

Searcy Clinches the Case.

Senator Earl B. Searcy [R., Springfield] offered the clinching argument:

"Figures show that women own 79 per cent of property in the United States. Women are not exempted from any taxes or from any punishment under our laws. It is simple justice to give them the right to sit on juries."

Those who voted against the bills were Burgess, Dixon, Karraker, John W. Fribley [D., Pana], Peter P. Kielminski [D., Chicago], and Louis J. Menges [D., East St. Louis].

The measure would become effective July 1.

SUBMITS LIST OF 11 CHARGES TO INVESTIGATE

Public Works Chief Under Fire.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Senator R. Wallace Karraker [D., Jonesboro] today called upon the Democratic senate committee on economy to conduct an eleven point inquiry into the activities of Democrats still in office. Among those he asked to have investigated is F. Lynden Smith, Gov. Horner's director of public works.

His demands gave unexpected aid to the Republican house committee appointed to conduct an inquiry into expenditures by the Democratic state administration in the last four years. Karraker is an independent member of the senate and chairman of its executive committee.

The Democratic legislator's action was made public about the same time that Clinton Searle [R., Rock Island], chairman of the house economy committee, defied Democratic administration opponents of the spending investigation. Searle revealed that threats had been made to produce evidence reflecting on a former Republican administration, but said they didn't scare either him or his committee.

Karraker Lists Charges.

Karraker's call for a senatorial inquiry was made in a letter to Senator Nicholas H. Hubbard [D., Mount Pulaski], chairman of the senate committee on economy. The eleven topics he suggested be investigated are:

1. "Director Smith has been charged, in newspapers and on the floor of the senate, with selling a state position for the $75-per-month reduction in his rent on a home in Springfield. The lease and other papers in connection therewith were exhibited to me personally in the governor's office, and you can no doubt secure them there.

2. "It has been charged that large numbers of persons were employed by the department of public works and buildings, immediately preceding the 1938 primary, who rendered no service of any kind but were paid from public funds belonging to the taxpayers for political services rendered in said primary.

3. "Did the present director of conservation [Thomas J. Lynch], while assistant director, have an expense account which on one occasion exceeded $300 per month and which included payments for his rent on apartments in Springfield?

4. "Did one investigator in the conservation department have an expense account which included in one month a charge exceeding $100 for gasoline?

Mailed Cash Stirs Inquiry.

5. "In the conservation department, is cash often mailed in, and the letters opened before reaching the desk of the chief clerk, and no accurate method maintained for checking such results?

6. "In the conservation department, were a number of boats ordered on specifications approved, and when these boats were delivered were they according to specifications, or had specifications been switched and others substituted before they reached the hands of the manufacturers?

7. "Does the warden of the Southern Illinois penitentiary at Menard operate the Ford garage in Chester, Ill., in the name of his wife, and is he actively interested in selling cars to his employés, and does he assist them in paying for the cars by delivering crushed stone manufactured at the prison? Has this warden repeatedly okayed orders for delivery of stone to private persons, in violation of law, in order to secure payment for his cars sold?

Farm Head Under Fire.

8. "Has the superintendent of the state farm in Vandalia maintained as many as 12 horses at the farm throughout the winter at the entire expense of the state? Has he made a fictitious purchase for the state of four head of horses, representing that he was buying them for a third party? Has he used the buildings at the farm for the storing of his own corn? Has he used the machinery and inmates of the farm for the purpose of preparing feed for his own use, and has he used trucks belonging to the state for hauling and assisting in pro-

A Faithful Dog Goes to Mat for a Wrestler Pal

Three years ago Nick Cutlich, then a freshman and a candidate for the football squad at Northwestern university, made friends with Wedge, a giant brown Chesapeake Bay retriever. Wedge was then—and still is—the mascot of the Wranglers, one of the fraternities on the university's Evanston campus.

Cutlich became a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. The Sigma Nu house is separated from Wrangler house only by a narrow meadow. There, almost daily, Wedge and Cutlich have romped and played.

Engages in Wrestling Match.

Cutlich is now a junior. He became a regular tackle on Northwestern's football team and the No. 1 heavyweight wrestler for the school. Yesterday afternoon he was wrestling in Patten gymnasium with Coach Wesley Brown, former light-heavyweight champion of the Big Ten conference.

Exhibiting their skill before a class of sophomore wrestlers, Brown and Cutlich began giving a demonstration of various holds. Brown finally seized Cutlich with a headlock and began pinning him to the mat.

Just then several of the Wranglers entered the gymnasium with Wedge at their heels. They strolled over toward the wrestling mats and the dog followed.

Rushes to Aid Fallen Hero.

Suddenly Wedge recognized Cutlich who was puffing and groaning as Brown continued to apply the pressure. With a scrambling rush and a low growl the dog, fangs flashing, attacked Brown.

Before the two wrestlers could untangle themselves Wedge slashed Brown on the upper lip and over the left eye, and was tearing away at his wrestling tights.

"Wedge thought I was in trouble and he came to the rescue," said Cutlich.

Brown, who is an Evanston policeman as well as a wrestling coach, was treated in the gymnasium medical dispensary. And Wedge was taken to the Evanston dog pound for observation.

The dog's friends in both the Wrangler and Sigma Nu fraternities said last night that he is not a vicious animal and that they would contest any efforts to have him destroyed.

A MYSTERY INVOLVING 120 RABBITS AND 300 CANARIES IS SOLVED

Canaries that fluttered about the lawns, and rabbits looking for a snack of lettuce puzzled residents of Franklin Park and Elmwood Park for days. The mystery was solved yesterday.

Philip Hagerman.

Philip Hagerman, a retired Chicago street car motorman, confessed to Deputy State Fire Marshal Frank E. Doherty Jr. that he turned the pets loose last Thursday morning and then burned his home. The home was on Mannheim road near Lyndale avenue in Franklin Park.

Hagerman said he had 300 canaries and 120 rabbits. Because he was losing money raising pets and could not keep up the payments on the home he insured it and his furniture for $3,200 and set it afire.

Police reported last night that the birds evidently had become discouraged and gone south, but the rabbits still were scampering about.

Mama Spanks a Fugitive Trusty and Takes Him Back

Frank Calindo, 17 years old, escaped Tuesday night from the Bridewell, where he had been made a trusty. Yesterday his mother, Mrs. Carmilla Calindo, 2904 Lexington street, led Frank back. He was crying, and Mrs. Calindo said she had given him a good spanking for acting that way. She promised he would never try to escape again. No further punishment was ordered for the youth, who was sentenced to a year's imprisonment for tampering with an automobile.

Maid Rips Out a Clew; It Matches Burglar's Pants

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—When Pauline Golembsk, a housemaid, encountered a house-breaker she tried to induce him to stay and fight like a man. The intruder refused. She clutched at his trousers and there was a ripping sound as the intruder fled. The maid summoned police and they set out with the swatch she had torn from the trousers. Three blocks away they found Virgil Glasso. The sample of material fitted a vacant area in Glasso's pants.

Clark Gable Free to Wed Miss Lombard

San Fernando, Cal., March 7.—[Special.]—Clark Gable was here tonight to marry Carole Lombard, but he would not say when the event will take place. His second wife, Mrs. Rhea Gable, obtained a divorce this afternoon in Las Vegas, Nev.

"We have made no plans for the time or place," Gable said, smiling.

He will be busy for weeks on his part as Rhett Butler in "Gone with the Wind." As a result, friends expect him and Miss Lombard to visit one of the nearby Gretna Greens for their ceremony and take a honeymoon after the film is completed.

Companions for 2 Years.

Miss Lombard has been the frequent companion of the screen lover at social and sports events for more than two years. Gable recently bought a ranch near here where friends say he probably will build a new home for his third wife.

Gable paid his wife the balance of a property settlement amounting to $286,000 a few days before she left for Las Vegas. After completing her residence requirement, she appeared today before Judge William E. Orr and obtained a decree in a few minutes.

The public was excluded, but newspapermen were admitted. Gable had filed a written appearance and waiver by mail yesterday.

Although her suit charged desertion, Mrs. Gable had indicated at the time of separation in 1935 that his temperament was the main cause of their domestic troubles.

11 Years Older than Actor.

Mrs. Gable, now 50, eleven years older than the actor, told the judge that they were married at Santa Ana, Cal., in 1931 and that her husband deserted her four years later.

In addition to her testimony, she needed only the statements of two witnesses that she had been in continuous residence in this frontier town for the last six weeks.

Mrs. Gable is the mother of a son and daughter by her first husband, Franklin Langham of New York. Her daughter is married and lives in Texas. Gable has no children by either of his two marriages.

The actor's first wife was Josephine Dillon. They were married in Hollywood in 1924 and divorced four years later. The first Mrs. Gable, formerly an actress, later became a dramatic coach and Gable was her pupil.

Lewis in a sum exceeding $6,000 during the 60th session of the general assembly [1937] for the services supposed to have been rendered to the speaker of the house [the present state treasurer, Louie E. Lewis]? Was this warant indorsed by the payee, and subsequently indorsed by the speaker? Was the said T. G. 11. "What were the facts in connection with the discharge of the chief clerk in the conservation department and the transfer of Mr. Erio to the liquor revenue division of the department of finance? Did the governor's investigator who investigated this department make a report? If so, what did this report show?"

Karracker Explains Move.

"Judging from your remarks," Karracker wrote Hubbard, "you are determined that this investigation shall be fair, unbiased, and designed to produce the entire truth, and that it is your opinion that the investigating committee of the house will not be honest and fair with the people in its investigation. I am sending this letter to you, and I am not laying the matters contained herein before the house committee.

"And I ask, specifically, that your committee investigate to see whether or not they are true."

Hubbard replied in a note to Karraker that the matters he presented would be considered tomorrow.

G. O. P. Charges Plot.

In defying Democrats to stop the house investigation Representative Searle charged them with threatening a political blackmail in an attempt to gain their ends.

While he did not elaborate on his charge, it was understood Democrats believe they can show that the late Garrett de Forrest Kinney of Peoria, director of finance under former Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, was short about $170,000 in his accounts when he left office at the opening of the administration of Gov. Horner.

[Kinney shot and fatally wounded himself during an investigation of the shortage. He was served with a bench warant while lying wounded in a hospital but he died without having responded to the warant.]

A suit to recover about $35,000 from another member of the Emmerson cabinet, Ralph F. Bradford, former director of conservation, is pending in the courts. This money was on deposit in a Pontiac bank. Bradford wrote the state a check for the sum but before it could clear the bank closed its doors.

Not Issues, Says Searle.

"Nothing that happened six years ago is germane to this inquiry," Searle declared. "But the activities of the Democrats in loading pay rolls and squandering the taxpayers' money in the last four years is germane because those guilty of such practices are still in charge of the various departments of state and can therefore continue their waste of public funds, unless exposed by this committee."

Searle declared the Democrats are day by day becoming more fearful of the Republican inquiry and that "officeholders with padded pay rolls have the jitters."

"Their fear is climaxed by a decision to attempt the discharge of this committee," he added.

"We have been anticipating this move. We know they are on edge. They know we have evidence of nepotism, padded pay rolls, overloaded expenses, outrageous expense accounts, and tremendous increases in appropriations, as well as failure properly to enforce the sales tax laws. They fear we are going to expose these things and we will.

Tells of Political Blackmail.

"At the same time they are engaged in what amounts to political blackmail. They are threatening to draw a red herring across our trail in an attempt to throttle the investigation by procuring evidence to reflect upon Republican administrations no longer in control of public funds or in a position to have any influence in the administration of state affairs.

"Let the Democrats threaten and create all the stumbling blocks they want in the form of whitewash committees or otherwise. Our job is to cut down expenses [a 10 per cent reduction has been pledged by the G. O. P.] and expose waste. We will keep on the job and expose our opponents as obstructionists."

Dissension in Democratic Ranks

CITY MANAGER PLAN SPONSORS GET A HEARING

Bills to Be Reported After Foes Speak.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Legislation to permit adoption of the city manager plan by Illinois cities made progress today before the house municipalities committee, where it was killed in 1937 and 1938.

In a hearing more peaceful than those of previous years the committee listened to advocates of the plan. The committee set March 21 for a hearing of opponents.

The most important action of the committee was to agree that five city manager bills will be released after the next hearing to continue their legislative journey.

Proponents of the plan say a majority of the committee is pledged to make a favorable recommendation in sending it to the floor of the house.

Fate in Senate Doubtful.

The bills have a good chance of passage in the house, but their chances in the Democratically-controled senate are dubious.

Under the plan Chicago, if it voted to adopt a city manager government, would have a council of only eleven members in place of fifty aldermen. They would be elected on a nonpartisan basis by proportional representation. This means that voters throughout the city would designate their choice of candidates on the ballot as first, second, third, etc.

The small council would elect one of its number mayor, who would be largely a figurehead. His powers would be limited, although he would appoint members of the school and library boards.

The councilmen would appoint a city manager as the chief executive of the municipality. Supposed to be chosen for ability alone, he would be named for an indefinite period, but could be removed at will by a majority vote of the council.

Clash Over Attempted Delay.

Verbal clashes enlivened the hearing. These occurred in connection with an attempt to set the next hearing for March 14, which opponents of the plan said gave them insufficient time. "This is the third year we've been down here and you know how we've been pushed around," said H. Barry McCormick, chairman of the Chicago city manager committee, opposing a two weeks delay.

"I've learned that when some one wants to kill a bill they delay action in committee," said Representative Lottie H. O'Neill [R., Downers Grove], who supports the city manager plan.

Representative Bernice Van Der Vries [R., Winnetka] joined with the first feminine member of the committee in charging some of the Chicago Democrats with stalling.

Elroy C. Sandquist [R., Chicago], chairman of the committee, placated the objectors by getting the members to agree that the meeting two weeks hence will be the last one.

Legion for Manager.

Pack Poorman, legislative representative of the American Legion, was the most vigorous speaker in behalf of the city manager bills.

"The American Legion in its Springfield convention two years ago went on record for the plan," Poorman said. "If the majority of the people in my city, Chicago Heights, or a majority in Chicago want the city manager form of local government, there is no reason why they shouldn't have it."

"All we're asking is that you give the people a chance to try out this plan of local government if they want it," said Frederick Virkus of River Forest, for the Illinois council manager conference.

Mrs. Guy Tawney, representing the Champaign County League of Women Voters, said that after the exposure of vice conditions in Champaign the citizens are demanding the right to set up a city manager government.

Joseph Keenan, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, said that he would bring witnesses to oppose the plan on March 21.

ADOPTED BY 7 CITIES.

H. Barry McCormick, Chicago member of the National Municipal League council, said yesterday that seven American cities have adopted the city manager plan so far in 1939. The plan is now in effect in 487 cities and counties, he said. Four cities will vote on proposals to adopt the manager form of government in the spring elections starting March 13.

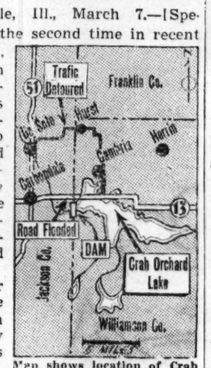
HIGHWAY IN ILLINOIS FLOODED AGAIN BY CRAB ORCHARD DAM

Carbondale, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—For the second time in recent weeks, water from the government's much criticized Crab Orchard lake experiment today flooded state route 13 between Carbondale and Marion.



Map shows location of Crab Orchard lake and flooded highway.

Water stood five feet deep on the highway four miles east of here, forcing the road to be closed and trafic rerouted. Vehicles were being detoured from here by way of De Soto, Hurst, and Cambria to route 13 east of the lake.

A heavy rain Saturday night caused a rapid rise in the water back of the lake dam, which the government installed before arrangements had been completed to care for the water it would impound.

The dam is in the government's resettlement project in Williamson county, which has drawn criticism as "another New Deal brainstorm." Strong protests have been made by residents in the area that will be turned into the largest lake in Illinois.

STELLE PUSHES PLAN FOR UNIFIED RELIEF CONTROL

Conference Favors State Board of 3 Members.

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Plans for unified control of relief, old age assistance, blind pensions, and aid for mothers and dependent children were given impetus today when Acting Governor John Stelle said the cost of administering all forms of the dole must be reduced.

At a closed session in his office, Stelle bluntly told relief officials that their estimates of $119,000,000 state relief requirements cannot be met. The state finance director's estimate of $72,000,000 for general relief for the two years starting July 1 is the limit, Stelle said.

"By coördinating the activities of all agencies administering relief and pensions in Illinois, I think it will be possible to provide for every one in need and remain within the budget," the acting governor said.

Favor Salaried Board.

The proposal most favored is one providing for a state commission to handle all matters pertaining to state aid to the indigent.

The three members of this commission, to be appointed by the governor, would receive salaries compatible with their responsibility. The Illinois emergency relief commission, whose ten members receive no pay, would be abolished.

The proposed state commission would coöperate with county boards of supervisors in naming nonpartisan boards in each county to guide and guard the various relief activities.

Stress Need for Economy.

It was the concensus of those attending the conference that the present system of relief administration should be changed for reasons of economy. It was pointed out that while relief administration costs about 10 per cent, old age assistance administration costs only half as much.

Attending the conference were Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the IERC; Walter L. Gregory, chairman of the citizens' commission which last year recommended consolidating scattered public aid units on a permanent basis, and several members of IERC.

Another conference will be called within two weeks.

HUSBAND DENIES HE WAS CRUEL TO MRS. BLANCHARD

When Mrs. Jayne Austin Blanchard filed suit for divorce in the Superior court last week she charged her husband, Robert Knight Blanchard, with seven acts of cruelty. Included were slaps, wrist twisting, and threats to kill her.

Yesterday young Blanchard [he is 21 and his bride only 20 years old] filed an answer. He denied the cruelty charges and blamed his domestic troubles on the failure of his father-in-law, Merritt B. Austin, of 350 Elder Lane, Winnetka, to assist him in finding employment. He added his wife "went into hysterics" every time he mentioned the subject. Austin is the wealthy head of a manufacturing company.

The Blanchards eloped to Waukegan on Jan. 3, 1938. The wife's bill for divorce stated that they separated last Feb. 1.

Blanchard is the son of Knight Blanchard, a stock broker, and at present lives with his father in Lake Forest. He is represented by Attorney Charles F. Rathbun.

MARTIN FACTION MAKES HIM HEAD OF AUTO UNION

Cuts All C. I. O. Ties to Guard Autonomy.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., March 8 [Wednesday].—Special.]—Homer Martin was reëlected president by the unanimous vote of his faction of the United Automobile Workers' union early today.

His election took place a few moments after midnight. The meeting hall here was in an uproar for fifty-five minutes in a demonstration for the former Baptist minister. Martin is crusading against communism in a battle for union control in which John L. Lewis, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and virtually the whole executive board of the union are arrayed against him.

Of that magnificent uproar, in which hundreds of delegates, pounded sticks and pop bottles on tables, Martin said in his speech of acceptance:

"I feel that that demonstration was more than one of loyalty to a personality. It was a demonstration of faith in democracy in unionism and government. I predict that either John L. Lewis and the C. I. O. will recognize this determination of American workers for a clean, democratic, autonomous union, or John L. Lewis will fold up like an accordion."

Vice President Elected.

Irvan Carey, auto union organizer on the west coast, was elected vice president a few minutes later.

Jerry Aldred, financial secretary of the big Fisher Body local at Flint, Mich., was elected international secretary-treasurer.

The election of officers took place after five hours of debate last night in a session closed to all except delegates. Out of that debate emerged a proposal, to be presented later by the constitutional committee, which will give the president of the union power to appoint regional directors with control over organizing activities in the various regions of the union. The effect is to give Martin closer control of lieutenants best able to control the rank and file of the union.

Sever All C. I. O. Ties.

Earlier yesterday the convention disavowed its ties with the C. I. O., which also has disavowed Martin and his followers, and provided that any affiliation with the American Federation of Labor or other national labor group shall require approval of the rank and file in a referendum vote.

It took the technical ground that while the union had coöperated with the informal committee, the membership of the union never had passed on affiliation with the congress which Lewis set up last November in Pittsburgh as a permanent national labor group, dual to the A. F. of L.

The resolution gave the executive board power to negotiate affiliation, if expedient, but provided a referendum before any such tie becomes binding. The further reservation was made that no such affiliation should sacrifice the principles of industrial unionism or complete autonomy of the auto union.

The resolution appeared to take the fancy of the delegates. It was passed at yesterday morning's session. In the afternoon it was called up again and passed, with cheers. It was voted also to send copies to Lewis and his two principal C. I. C. lieutenants, Philip Murray and Sidney Hillman.

Another resolution charged that the anti-Martin faction has been maintaining returned veterans of the Spanish civil war as shock troops at three of its local union headquarters in Detroit. The veterans were said to have been recruited by the communists.

Such charges are part of the general tactics in the publicity campaign the two camps have been waging.

Communists received another blistering on the convention platform today from Frank Tucci, executive board member who came from a local of General Motors employés at Tarrytown, N. Y. Tucci told about his fight against communist invasion of the local from New York, which he termed the hotbed of communism in America.

INDIANA PRISON OFFICIAL FIRED OVER STABBING

Disciplinarian Ousted at Michigan City.

Dismissal of the third ranking officer at the Michigan City [Ind.] state penitentiary was revealed last night as the aftermath of the latest outbreak of violence inside the prison walls.

B. C. Ferguson.

The officer who was fired is Capt. B. C. Ferguson, who has been in charge of morale and discipline among the 2,600 prisoners. He served as contact man between the prisoners and Warden Alfred E. Dowd. The incident that was said to have cost him his place was the stabbing of Guard Roy Thompson by William Wright, a convict, with a crude knife in the prison tobacco stripping shed. This occurred March 2.

Demand His Resignation.

Ferguson said he was asked to resign "because of laxity and refusal to coöperate with guards and officers." He would not comment further. According to some of the guards, Thompson had asked Ferguson to remove Wright from the tobacco shop because he was dangerous.

Warden Dowd was asked if the stabbing precipitated Ferguson's dismissal. "He resigned," said the warden. "That was not entirely the reason. In fact, that's not the reason at all."

Ferguson was assistant deputy warden from 1929 to last May 15, when Dowd succeeded Louis E. Kunkel. Then he was named captain. His ouster was the 25th in Dowd's régime. Dowd formerly was superintendent of the Pendleton reformatory and has supplanted many of Kunkel's guards with men from Pendleton.

Pierce Escape a Factor.

The stabbing of Thompson followed a period of unrest due to an investigation of the escape in February of Paul Pierce, who was serving a life term as the slayer of a policeman. The time and place of Pierce's escape are not known. He simply disappeared.

Guards Anthony Firanek and Guy Comer were charged with carelessness and discharged. Several days after Pierce vanished prison authorities came to the conclusion he had hidden in a trunk that was hauled from the institution on Feb. 20. Firanek was the driver of the truck on which the trunk left the prison grounds, and Comer was the guard at the north gate through which the truck passed.

Trunk Ownership Mystery.

Prison officials said they were convinced Firanek did not search the trunk and that Comer was negligent in not making a thorough inspection. How Pierce could have hidden in the trunk, whose trunk it was, and why it was taken through the prison gate were questions that went unanswered.

Pierce was 29 years old. He was convicted of the murder of Detective Orville Quinnette in Indianapolis in 1935. At that time he was an escaped convict. Pierce was sentenced in 1930 for robbery and walked away from the prison farm in 1935 with another convict. Two months later they killed Quinnette when he stopped them for questioning.

The escape of Pierce was the first under Warden Dowd. Under his predecessor, Warden Kunkel, an important cog in the McNutt political machine, there had been more than seventy escapes in six years. Several times it was discovered that prisoners had dug tunnels under the penitentiary walls. Pierce's second escape led to a search for another such avenue to the outer world.

McNutt Regime Upsets Prison.

Prior to 1933 there had been no politics in the operation of the state's prison. The personnel was seldom changed and all guards were experienced and reliable. The McNutt administration brought changes.

Paul V. McNutt became governor of Indiana as a coattail rider of the New Deal. "Deserving Democrats" replaced the capable and reliable guards at the state prison. John Dillinger was given a parole and a short time later he smuggled pistols to his old prison mates and there was a big prison break.

Ten felons, several of whom were later to be members of the Dillinger gang, fled from the prison Sept. 26, 1933.

Throughout this six year period Warden Kunkel kept his job and the prison scandals continued. The politicians held the jobs.

Last year five convicts escaped on Feb. 11. Then on May 2 police reported the departure of four more convicts. That was the finish of the Kunkel régime.

Wilmette Board Votes to Build a Fieldhouse

The Wilmette village board voted last night to build a fieldhouse and recreation ground at a cost of $89,000. Trustee George Redding said a federal grant for approximately half the cost has been approved. The fieldhouse will be on Ridge avenue, south of Lake street, in the suburb.

SECOND PRIZE.

Police had to be called to keep order among the thousands of hairdressers and beauty operators intent on seeing the annual gold trophy contest sponsored by the Midwest Beauty Trades show in the Hotel Sherman last night. Fingers shook as 75 hairdressers gave their version of the up-do fashions on models while the crowd stood on chairs and overflowed two large first floor rooms into corridors and mezzanine floor.

A Chicago hairdresser, Frank Leben, won the first prize with his "up and short" coiffure on the gray hair of a Sterling, Ill., model, Mary Duffie. Deep waves, not a profusion of curls, hair never more than 4 inches in length over the head, and a pompadour effect in front with a spray of baby pink rosebuds on the right, marked the winning hair dress.

Catherine Cramer was the model for Louis Schmidt of Detroit, who won second prize. Peter Edelmeyer of Toronto won third prize for his coiffure on the hair of Violet Perry.

MAYOR OF GARY SEEKS A COURT TO UPHOLD LAW

Takes Gambling Cases to Crown Point.

Gary police announced yesterday that in the future gambling cases will be filed in the Lake county Felony court at Crown Point. Police charged that William T. Fletcher, Gary's Democratic city judge, has refused to convict gamblers taken before him.

The first group to face trial in the Crown Point Felony court—twenty colored men—were arrested during the week-end. All have been released on bonds of $500. No date for their hearing before Judge William J. Murray has been set.

Judge Is Happy About It.

Informed Monday that the twenty are not scheduled for trial in his court, Judge Fletcher commented:

"They probably will file the cases in Crown Point. And I want to say right now that if they continue to follow that practice it will be a great service to this court. Ninety-nine per cent of those brought before me on gambling charges are Democrats anyway."

The judge's policy in gambling cases dates from the inauguration of Dr. Ernst L. Schaible, the mayor, who was the only Republican elected in Gary last November. He ran on a pledge to free the city of gambling and vice. Police Chief William J. Linn and most of his men are appointees of Dr. Schaible.

Mayor Backs Police Chief.

Chief Linn said yesterday that he had not been "getting the proper cooperation from Judge Fletcher." Mayor Schaible declared the chief had his backing and was authorized to take any action needed to clean up the city.

During the four year term of former Mayor L. B. Clayton, who was defeated by Dr. Schaible, vice and gambling flourished. Immediately after Mayor Schaible took office raids began. The Kirsch brothers, Louie, Izzy, and Phil, closed their handbooks and departed. Walter J. Kelley, the colored policy king, moved to Chicago.

It was as a result of Kelley's attempt to muscle in on Chicago territory that he was assassinated last Jan. 8. In his place, however, many smaller fry policy kings have sprung up, and it has been these men and their patrons who have been taken before Judge Fletcher with such regularity. More than 100 have been arrested in the last few weeks.

Former Minister in Racket.

One of the new kings of the numbers racket is Henry W. Brooks, colored, a former minister in Chicago. He was employed by Kelley to draw the winning numbers from the wheel. Because of his calling, every one was sure the drawings conducted by Brooks were honest.

When Brooks and twenty-six others were arrested a few weeks ago they were taken before Judge Fletcher. Stacked in the court was confiscated equipment valued at $2,000. Judge Fletcher expressed an interest in the wire cages used to mix and shuffle the numbers before a drawing.

"What do you do with those cages?" he asked.

"I keep birds in them," Brooks replied.

"That is an insult to the court," shouted an assistant city attorney who was prosecuting the case. Judge Fletcher freed the twenty-seven suspects on bonds. They are to have a hearing tomorrow.

AURORA LAUNDRY SEEKS TO ENJOIN UNION IN STRIKE

Ralph A. Walker, owner of Aurora's largest laundry, yesterday filed a petition in the Kane county Circuit court at Geneva asking for an injunction to restrain a group of American Federation of Labor union organizers from interfering with operations of his shop and his employés. The laundry has been closed for two days by a strike.

Attorneys who said they represent 73 of 76 employés in the laundry, filed an intervening bill. They said employés are anxious to have the plant reopened so they can return to work. The case will be heard today before Judge Frank Shepherd.

Walker charged that his difficulties had been caused by Howard Metzger, representative of an A. F. of L. chauffeurs and teamsters' union, and by William Bishop and Herman Abel, organizers for the A. F. of L. laundry workers' union. Walker said his employés have been slugged and terrorized.

STEPS TO RELIEVE HINES CROWDING URGED BY LEGION

Officers of the American Legion urged yesterday that immediate steps be taken to relieve crowded conditions in the Hines Veterans' hospital. They said that some recent deaths among war veterans could be traced to the long waiting list at the Hines hospital. In a telegram to Watson B. Miller, national chairman of the Legion's rehabilitation commission, the officers recommended that all available beds in the United States Naval hospital at the Great Lakes training station be used for Hines' emergency patients.

ASK 100 MILLION FOR 6 BIG ROADS LEAVING LOOP

Bills Given Illinois Senate; Downstate Routes, Too.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Construction of $140,000,000 worth of new roads in Illinois—$100,000,000 in Cook county and $40,000,000 downstate—is called for in a series of bills presented to the senate today.

Backed by Mayor Kelly of Chicago and Acting Governor John Stelle, the program had two senatorial sponsors. Harold G. Ward, Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, introduced the Chicago program, and Melvin Thomas [D., Charleston] the downstate plans.

Exact location of the new roads has not been decided, but Philip Harrington, Chicago traction engineer, drew rough lines for newspaper men showing the direction of the proposed new Cook county superhighways.

From Loop in 5 Directions.

These six roads, Harrington declared, would be safety trunk motor highways extending from the loop in the following directions: Two to the west side, one northwest, one southwest, one north, and one south.

The northern and southern roads will be extensions of the outer drive—on the north to the city limits and on the south to the Indiana state line.

Both programs are backed by motor fuel [gasoline] tax receipts, which average $36,000,000 annually. Both sets of bills permit allocation of the state, city, and county shares of this levy to build the roads. The downstate program permits this diversion until the year 1954; for Chicago the diversion would last until 1959.

The downstate bills authorize the state to sell $80,000,000 of notes pledging the state's share of the tax behind them. The state would use half this sum for farm-to-market roads, and turn over the other half for application to the Chicago program.

State Would Pay 60 Pct. in City.

Thus the state would furnish fourtenths of the cost of the Chicago program, and the city would raise the remaining 60 per cent, $60,000,000.

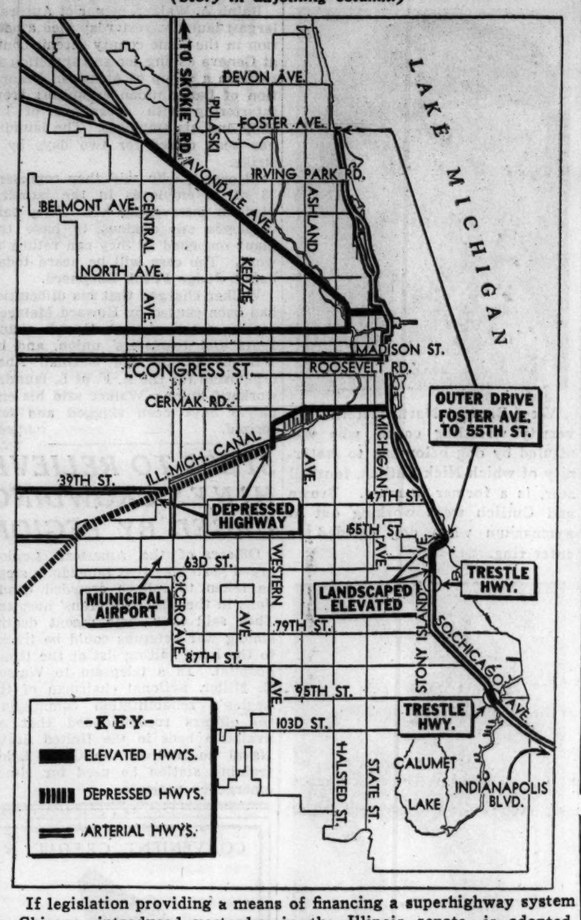
The state highway department would pass upon all proposed construction. Having obtained that approval, Chicago could issue anticipation notes and sell them.

Mr. Stelle explained that the downstate program would include from 10,000 to 20,000 miles of what he termed "all-weather" roads.

Appropriating $100,000 to enforce the drivers' license law, which becomes effective on May 1, a bill was advanced today by the house to third reading.

Possible Superhighway Routes

(Story in adjoining column.)



If legislation providing a means of financing a superhighway system in Chicago, introduced yesterday in the Illinois senate, is adopted, interest in routes which have been proposed, as shown on this map, will be increased. The Chicago plan commission is expected to propose initial routes after the financial measures have been passed. The proposed arterial highways on the map would be at ground level.

BILLION DOLLAR SUPERHIGHWAY PLAN PROPOSED

Need for Better City Routes Told.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., March 7.—[Special.]—A billion dollar national program for superhighway construction was proposed here this afternoon before the opening session of the thirty-sixth annual convention of the American Road Builders association. The author of the plan is Murray D. Van Wagoner, Michigan highway commissioner, president of the association.

Before the convention adjourns Friday this group is expected to petition the present congress to enact enabling legislation. The 20,000 delegates represent a politically influential industry employing more than 2 million men.

To finance the program Van Wagoner suggested a 1 cent increase in the federal gasoline tax. The present 1 cent produced 195 million dollars last year.

Toll Charge Proposed.

As an alternative to a tax boost, he said a toll of perhaps 1 cent a mile might be charged on the superhighways, but he added that a toll would curtail their usage and hence lessen their benefits to society.

A billion dollar revolving fund would be administered during the next twenty-five years by the United States bureau of public roads. The state highway authorities would do the building, but the selection of routes and designs would be supervised by the federal bureau.

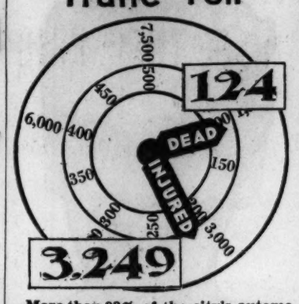
The adoption of this program by congress would aid Mayor Edward J. Kelly in realizing his plans for 100 million dollars worth of superhighway in Chicago. Van Wagoner said the most urgent national need is for safer and faster routes into and through large cities and that these urban developments would be the first construction under the federal program.

Would Fit Design to Need.

The Michigan commissioner's idea is not for transcontinental superhighways such as have been advocated by a small minority in Washington, D. C., for the last five years. The Van Wagoner plan would fit designs to needs. His address envisioned elevated highways in the center of big cities radiating to depressed parkways farther from the business center where cheaper property permitted wider rights of way.

Outside of cities, leading to these urban carriers, would be broad pavements at grade with opposing streams of trafic separated by center parkways, with grade separations at intersections, and with limited access from abutting property. Farther from the cities, as trafic dwindled, the design would become less elaborate, finally in many instances becoming an ordinary two lane slab perhaps 100 miles from the big city.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

Mrs. Emily Gordon, 66 years old, colored, of 5516 Lafayette avenue, died last night in the Provident hospital from injuries suffered Feb. 25 when she was struck by an automobile at 51st and State streets. The driver was Walter Swider, 3003 South Kedvale avenue.

Deaths from automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1 totaled 157 at 4 p. m. yesterday. Of these 124 were killed in Chicago, where 3,249 were injured in the same period.

CITY'S TRACTION ORATOR HECKLED; HIS TURN COMING

William H. Sexton, city traction counsel, had the oratorical accelerator down to the floor board and the brakes off yesterday at a hearing before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. He spoke in favor of the city's petition asking for four new feeder bus lines. He referred to the successful fight last year to get feeder buses in South Halsted street.

"I fought and bled and died to get those buses in there!" declaimed Sexton. "I ——" He was interrupted by a raucous sound from the jury box. Attorney Harry P. Weber of the Surface Lines was sitting there.

"Was that a belch or a laugh?" roared Sexton.

"I laughed," said Weber. "It was funny."

"The cold stone gargoyles on the top of Notre Dame cathedral sit and laugh a sardonic laugh while people go about their business below," said Sexton. "But don't you laugh at me!" He pointed a finger at Weber.

Judge Wilkerson looked pained. Weber will have his turn today to speak against the feeder bus line, proposed for 83d street, 111th street, North Central avenue, and Peterson avenue. The Illinois commerce commission has ordered the lines be operated, but the receivers for the Surface Lines contend there would not be enough business to pay expenses.

Frees Special Policeman Arrested at Bund Meeting

Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday dismissed a charge of carrying concealed weapons against Morton Portnoy, 1247 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, when it was shown that Portnoy was a special Berwyn policeman. Portnoy, who is 28 years old, was one of ninety-eight persons seized by police Monday night outside of a hall at 3855 North Western avenue, where 400 members of the German-American bund held a meeting. The others were released after the meeting.

REAL ESTATE TAX TO BE DUE EARLIER IF BILL IS PASSED

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—A bill setting the due dates for 1939 real estate taxes forward one month was introduced in the senate today by Richard J. Daly [D., Chicago].

The first instalment of 1939 taxes would be due March 1, 1940, instead of April 1, and the second instalment on Aug. 1, instead of Sept. 1, and those dates would then be adopted permanently.

"If this bill is not passed, Cook county governments will have to pay $200,000 to $300,000 a year in interest on tax anticipation warants that would be saved if the dates are advanced," Senator Daly said.

SCHOOLS' PEGGED LEVY MEASURE ASKS $50,275,000

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—The state senate tonight received and advanced to second reading the Chicago board of education's pegged levy bill for $50,275,000. Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago], Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman, handled the measure.

Restoration of the ten month [forty week] school year caused the bill's figure to be raised from $47,500,000. The present school year is thirty-eight weeks and the increase will bring teachers to a point in salary only 7 per cent removed from their pay prior to 1933, when it was reduced by 23 per cent.

The school board's next objective is said to be the complete restoration of teachers' salaries, which would call for an additional $4,000,000.

FIRE STARTS IN ELEVATOR SHAFT.

Fire which started in an elevator shaft on the seventh floor level in the Borg building, 540 Lake Shore drive, was extinguished last night by an automatic sprinkler system before firemen arrived.

LAW TO SANCTION $250,000 REFUND IN TAXES IS SOUGHT

Owners of 32,000 old style two flat buildings are to receive $250,000 in credits on their tax bills if a plan worked out by Assessor John S. Clark is successful. The program calls for the introduction of a special bill in the state legislature.

The refund, the assessor explained yesterday, is due the owners because of a mistake made in fixing the base valuation prices of the properties in the 1935 assessment. Each of the properties was charged with having two furnaces instead of one. Each owner would receive about $8, Clark said.

"The county assessor has set aside the money for the refunds," Clark said. "The only way he can distribute it, however, is to have special legislative authority."

FIND WOMAN DEAD IN AUTO.

Fannie May Farley, 35 years old, colored, 2107 South Dearborn street, was found dead of carbon monoxide fumes yesterday in an automobile parked in the rear of 2106 South State street. Her companion, Frank Ballentine, 46, colored, of 5750 South state street, was revived by firemen.

Nervous Bandit Shoots One Milk Driver; Robs Another

A nervous colored bandit, about 17 years old, yesterday shot one milk wagon driver and robbed another. Alfred Cole, 6507 South Marshfield avenue, was wounded when he stepped back in surprise as he was accosted in front of 5641 South Michigan avenue. The robber fled empty handed. Paul Gaertig, 1280 West 72d place, was robbed of $8 in the rear of 364 West 59th street.

INDIANA RELIEF BILLS TO BE MET BY TAX WARANTS

Sale of $800,000 in tax anticipation warants to pay all relief debts incurred in Lake county, Ind., up to March 1 was authorized yesterday by the county council. Chicago wholesale grocers stopped accepting relief orders from the county on Feb. 1 because of the debts that existed.

The administration of relief in the three principal townships of the county was attacked in a report issued recently by the state relief commission. The county council, which is elected to pass on fiscal matters, indicated that it will not issue the balance of the $1,379,384 in warants available for this year until the relief administrators in the townships put their houses in order.

Representatives of the Lake County Medical society praised Mrs. Frankie Hellman, Calumet township [Gary] relief head, for attempting to cut the cost of medical care to her reliefers. They urged John Mehan, North township [Hammond] administrator, to make similar reforms.

IDENTIFY RESCUED RIVER VICTIM.

A young man who leaped or fell into the river from the Michigan avenue bridge early Monday was identified yesterday in County hospital as Leslie Peterson, 19 years old, 1203 Elmwood avenue, Evanston. Peterson was rescued by Park Policeman Albert Fuchs.

G. O. P. WORKERS JAM AUDITORIUM FOR GREEN RALLY

Hear Candidate Denounce Kelly Machine.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

At a Republican rally of the old-fashioned type, Dwight H. Green opened his campaign for the April 4 mayoral election last night with an attack on Mayor Kelly and the Democratic organization.

Precinct captains and workers packed the Auditorium theater to the top galleries. Overflow throngs in Congress street outside, in the light of green and red flares, listened over loud speakers. Old-timers said that not in years had such a meeting been held in a Republican campaign for mayor.

Speakers concentrated on the domination of Democratic machines in the largest cities and the machines' effect on general elections. They emphasized also the effect the Chicago mayoral battle might have on the presidential contest in 1940. It was a demonstrative audience that at times was touched off into vociferous outbursts.

Says "It Can Be Done."

Green's keynote was: "It Can Be Done."

"You and I and thousands of others," he declared, "are going to run Ed Kelly and his graft ridden, crime ridden political machine out of the city hall.

"Ed Kelly spent two and one-half million dollars on primary day.

"They used every power, but were only able to bring out one-third of the entire list of registered voters in our city. Mind you, two and one-half million dollars to win a primary! Did they spend two and one-half million dollars to obtain a job that pays $18,000 a year?

"The reason Ed Kelly spent two and one-half million dollars to win Tuesday's primary is that he is trembling with fear because he knows if some one outside his machine gets into the city hall he will uncover the padded pay rolls, their corrupt political contracts, and all the rest of the political plundering they have foisted upon a decent community.

Sitting on Case of Dynamite.

"This political machine is sitting on a case of dynamite. They are scared because they know that at any moment now some one may touch off the fuse.

"When I say we are going to give Ed Kelly and his administration one of the worst lickings in Chicago politics April 4, I mean what I say. Spread the word that the Kelly machine is breaking up. Blast Kelly from behind his hand painted billboards.

"This is not a fight between Ed Kelly and Dwight Green. I am merely the one selected to be your leader in a fight between the people and a vicious political machine. This is a fight to free 3,500,000 people from the yoke of a wasteful, corrupt organization.

"During the primary Kelly refused to discuss the issues. He hid behind hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of electric signs and billboards. But in this campaign he's not going to get away with that kind of tactics.

What Happened in New York.

"In New York Tom Dewey recently convicted Jimmy Hines as go-between for crime in politics. Don't think for a minute we haven't got a Jimmy Hines. We have a dozen Jimmy Hineses."

Richard J. Lyons, Republican candidate for United States senator last year, spoke of the trek to Florida by Mayor Kelly and other Democratic politicians.

"Mayor Kelly is basking in Florida sunshine while the city hall is a cavern of gloomy vacancy," he said. "You'd suppose we have a race of political fugitives in Illinois. It got to the point where the governor took seriously ill the night before I was counted out and he went south. Tom Courtney begged for an audience. But the governor was too ill. But not too sick to see Ed Kelly yesterday. Four words were all the governor had to say—'I'm for Tom Courtney,' but no, he didn't say them.

Advice to Mr. Courtney.

"So now Tom Courtney's gone south. I say to Courtney, 'Keep away from Miami, Tom, and if you want to make good on your statements about the Kelly machine and be a big man, join the Republicans for Green.

"In the primaries last Tuesday Kelly got only 38,000 more votes than I got in Chicago last November. They spent 2½ million dollars, and I got nearly as many votes with nothing but buttons. We can lick them."

Wayland Brooks, 1936 Republican candidate for governor, dwelt on machines in other cities:

"In the last general election," he said, "machines in nine great cities, voting with the solid south, tied up this country. But they have started to fall. This is our chance to beat the machine."

Predicts Victory in 1940.

Otis F. Glenn, former United States senator, talked about 1940.

"Last November," he said, "when state after state swung back into the Republican column, Illinois did not. The 101 downstate counties came to the Cook county line with a Republican plurality of more than 100,000, the country towns of Cook county added more than 50,000. The Republicans came to the Chicago boundaries with a plurality of about 160,000. Ward after ward piled up huge Democratic majorities, and a Republican defeat resulted.

"If we are to carry Cook county and Illinois in 1940, we must win this mayoralty election. Republican victory in 1940 is in the air; the house of cards in Washington is falling down, the New Deal is at grips with old line Democrats."

QUINTS, IT SEEMS, MUST TAKE TRIP TO SEE THEIR KING

Guardians Frown on Bid from Ontario.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CALLANDER, Ont., March 7.—Three of the four guardians who watch over the quintuplets today frowned upon an invitation from the Ontario government to take the five little girls to Toronto in May to meet King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain. However, it appeared that the trip will be made anyway.

Map shows journey proposed for quints.

Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets and one of the guardians, said he was "not in favor" of accepting the invitation.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the country doctor whose fame has grown with that of his charges, appeared to be cool to the proposal. He also is a guardian.

Judge J. A. Valin of North Bay, Ont., another guardian, said there was no basis for reports in Ontario government circles that the board of guardians were planning to accept the invitation.

Official Guardian Silent.

Percy Wilson, the official guardian for Ontario, said nothing.

The board expects to be advised formally of the invitation at an early date. Its members will meet and consider the proposal.

Despite the objections to taking the sisters to Toronto it appeared that the proposal finally would be accepted. The quintuplets are wards of the king. He wants to see them and the invitation is considered to be a "royal command."

The invitation was for Emilie, Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, and Marie to leave Callander for the first time in their lives. They were invited to go, with their parents, on a special train under special guard to Toronto, 180 miles away, and there meet the British king and queen.

Dionne Voices Disapproval.

Dionne, to whom the invitation was addressed, expressed his disapproval in this manner: "We are anxious that the children should be presented to the king and queen when they come to Canada, but I cannot see why the government cannot arrange to have their majesties visit the nursery here."

Dionne said he would delay replying to the invitation until he had consulted Mrs. Dionne.

Dr. Dafoe declined to express an opinion on the invitation, but said: "If the Ontario government says we must allow the quints to be taken to Toronto what can we do?"

GANDHI ACCEPTS VICEROY'S BID TO POLITICAL TALK

India Leader Ends His Fast with Victory.

RAJKOT, India, March 7.—(AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi today accepted an invitation from the marquess of Linlithgow, British viceroy of India, to go to New Delhi for a political conference.

Gandhi made known his acceptance after he ended with some orange juice a "fast unto death" by which he won a major political victory for democracy in India.

The small, thin bald leader of millions of Indians achieved his victory when Lord Linlithgow intervened to settle Gandhi's dispute about establishing an advisory council on democratic reforms with the ruler of the state of Rajkot, Thakore Saheb Shri Dharmendrasinhji.

Business Halted During Fast.

During the fast there had been hurried consultations between the viceroy and many Indian political leaders. Hundreds of sympathetic telegrams came from all parts of the world. Periods of mourning were declared throughout India. Business was halted. Bombay markets were closed and 1,000 peasants prayed outside his quarters.

Lord Linlithgow was understood to have urged the ruler of Rajkot to yield to Gandhi's demands in order to avert a major political crisis at a critical stage in the development of a vast British scheme for an all-India federation.

Weakened but triumphant, Gandhi planned to go to New Delhi for personal discussions of the proposed reforms. They are based on the establishment of a council whose purpose would be to suggest ways of introducing a democratic government. Gandhi, who is 69 years old, started the fast when he and the ruler, who is 29, failed to agree on representation on the council.

Fast Lasts 98 Hours.

With the viceroy's invitation was his undertaking to guarantee that the ruler of Rajkot would set up the council and promise that disputed questions would be referred to the chief justice of India.

Gandhi's fast lasted 98 hours and 25 minutes. He started after drinking some goat's milk. During the fast, his sixth for popular reforms, he lost two pounds in weight, his blood pressure increased alarmingly, and he became so weak that any attempt to sit up caused nausea and giddiness.

CATTLE TRADER GORED TO DEATH BY BULL IN YARDS

A 1,500 pound bull charged two cattle traders at the Union stockyards yesterday and gored one of them to death. The other, tossed over a fence on the animal's horns, came to the rescue with a third man and drove the bull away. The victim, Donald Stockdale, 57 years old, of 6421 Normal boulevard, died in the German Evangelical Deaconess hospital three hours after the attack. The bull was among cattle being driven into a pen by Stockdale and Raymond Griffin, 45, of 7202 Emerald avenue. When Griffin went back to his comrade's rescue he was accompanied by another trader, James Quinn, of 6404 South Oakley avenue.

REVOLT GROWS; LOYALIST SPAIN FACES ANARCHY

Street Fighting Flares in Five Cities.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 8 [Wednesday].—Loyalist Spain is faced with the choice of submitting outright to Nationalist Generalissimo Franco or falling into complete anarchy, it was asserted in Paris early today in the wake of reports that communists and other extremists were pitted in street fighting against Gen. Jose Miaja's militia in Madrid, Alicante, Cartagena, Murcia, and Cuenca.

Machine gun and rifle fire flashed and crackled in the darkness of early morning as communists fought to force a continuance of the war, reports from Madrid said, despite a midnight claim by Miaja's new defense council that it had the situation under control.

The fighting was a continuation of yesterday's outbreak in which the Miaja régime ordered loyalist planes to bomb the communists in apartment house strongholds in the northern and eastern parts of the city. Reports said tanks also were used in charges against the entrenched communists.

Franco Rejects Conditions.

Amid the furor of the latest of those recurrent little civil wars which have torn republican Spain since the beginning of the Franco revolt, there was one reliable piece of information which reached this capital. This was to the effect that the Madrid defense junta already had communicated with Burgos, Franco's capital, and had received a flat refusal to the conditions it requested for surrender.

Faced with the unbending attitude of Franco, informed observers here declared that in view of the precarious situation they now are in, members of the defense junta will have no alternative except to lay down their arms soon. It was further suggested that the generalissimo might soften his official refusal to discuss terms by giving private assurances of clemency for those who bring about a quick surrender.

Others May Have to Flee.

Despite the conviction that Franco is determined to play his winning hand to the end, it was understood that French and British emissaries continued yesterday to coöperate with defense junta officials who were desperately seeking an eleventh hour solution.

Should they fail, it was suggested, there is likely to be still another flight of loyalist leaders—this time of moderates who are currently in control—before the Nationalists enter the wrecked and half starved capital.

In any case, it was believed here, the loyalists will either capitulate within the next two or three days or face a final onslaught of Nationalists who have already completed their preparations and even named the next mayor of Madrid.

Charges 1,200 Executed.

The belief that Premier Juan Negrin's cabinet resigned before it fled Madrid is false, an official, who is a refugee here, declared. He said the cabinet considered the defense junta as rebels.

In an attempt to justify Premier Negrin's determination to offer further resistance unless the Nationalists gave full guarantees against reprisals, this official charged that 1,200 loyalists, after fleeing from Catalonia and entering nationalist territory on promises of clemency, had been executed therein. He declared there would be a "slaughter" of leftists once nationalists toofl over Madrid.

Negrin and former Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez del Vayo arrived in Paris today after escaping from Spain yesterday by plane.

The communist Gen. Modesto and the anarchist Lieut. Col. Enrique Lister—leading "political" officers of the defeated Catalonian army—arrived at Toulouse today. With them were twenty-two other extremist leaders, including Gen. Hidalgo de Cisneros, head of the loyalist air forces, former Labor Minister José Regaz, and former minister of agriculture, Vicente Uribe.

Fleet Reaches Tunisia.

BIZERTE, Tunisia, March 7.—(AP)—The Spanish republican fleet abandoned the civil war against the Nationalists today by steaming into this North African naval base to surrender to neutral France.

In parade formation, with flags still flying, eleven warships and their crews of 4,000 men came here after fleeing Saturday from revolt ridden Cartagena, where they had been bottled up during most of the Spanish conflict. Aboard the warships were about 400 civilian and military refugees.

The ships included the cruisers Cervantes, Libertad, and Mendez Nunez, and eight destroyers. French authorities learned that two destroyers were sunk by Nationalist bombing planes as the fleet steamed out of Cartagena.

Italy Fights a Threat.

ROME, March 7.—(AP)—The authoritative Fascist editor Virginio Gayda called on France today to turn over to Nationalist Generalissimo Franco "without delay" the Spanish Republican fleet which has sought refuge at Bizerte, Tunisia.

Gayda, usually regarded as a spokesman for Premier Mussolini, declared Italy "would not tolerate" the continued presence of the fleet at a point so near Italian shores [Bizerte is 120 miles from Italian Sicily.]

"The fleet must be speedily disarmed and restored to the government of Franco," Gayda wrote in the newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia.

Fleet Surrenders

(Story in adjoining column.)

Eleven warships of the Spanish loyalist fleet yesterday surrendered to French authorities at Bizerte. The officials said the ships would be disarmed and the crews interned. In Rome an authoritative writer demanded that the ships be turned over to Gen. Franco. He said Italy would not tolerate the presence of the fleet in French hands at a point so near Italy's shores. Map indicates distances to various points of Italian territory.

BRITAIN REMOVES BAN ON STUDENT EDITOR FROM U.S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—Pressure exerted in the house of commons today forced the British home office to reverse a ruling ousting an American student in London university from the editorship of an undergraduate publication on the grounds that he is an alien.

The home office's about face came as a result of a protest by John Parker, Labor member of parliament, at the instigation of the United States society, an Oxford group of Rhodes scholars. The society saw in the action against Harper W. Poulsen of Cleveland, O., a threat to participation of Americans in undergraduate activities at British universities.

Poulson began work on the Student Forum, the university paper, in April, 1937. Two months ago he was told by police that he must resign or leave the country.

BRITAIN COUNTS A VICTORY OVER FRANCO'S ALLIES

Duke of Alba, Opposed by Fascists, to Be Envoy.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—Great Britain and France tonight appeared to have won an initial victory over the Rome-Berlin axis partners in dealing with Generalissimo Franco of Nationalist Spain.

Franco has decided to name the duke of Alba the first Nationalist ambassador to London despite the objections of Rome and Berlin, the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph said.

The duke has been the Nationalist agent here since 1937 and was made chargé d'affaires after British recognition of the Franco régime last week. German and Italian diplomacy was known to have been active in Burgos against the duke's nomination on the ground that he is too sympathetic toward Britain and France and an advocate of restoration of the monarchy in Spain.

Franco Becoming Independent.

The axis partners, however, apparently scored a victory in getting the Spanish Falangist [Fascist], José Felix Lequerica, nominated as ambassador to Paris. The nomination of Alba is interpreted in diplomatic circles as an indication Franco is seeking to pursue an independent foreign policy in the future.

With the coup d'état and Red uprising in Madrid indicating that the Spanish civil war is about over, British political interest focused on two points in the new situation.

FIRST—What disposition will be made of the Republican [loyalist] army by Generalissimo Franco.

SECOND—What is going to be Franco's position in the new Spanish state.

Fascists Put on Pressure.

The first point hangs on the extent to which Franco is dependent on the axis powers, who continue to press for the capture of Madrid and complete destruction of the republican forces.

The question is whether Franco will respond to this pressure, refusing all offers to negotiate, or come to terms with Madrid military leaders.

On the second point, Franco's position, with his Falangist [Fascist] organization drawing on German and Italian support to check his other main political group, the Requetes or monarchists, is a difficult one.

These two groups have opposing interests, the Falangists being against the restoration of the monarchy. Franco has restored the rights of the members of the royal family to nationality, titles, and estates, but he has not yet accepted Prince Juan as king, an action which the British would like.

Therefore the idea of establishing a regency in Spain, such as the one in Hungary, is a subject of speculation here.

This would shelve a dangerous domestic controversy by giving time for the Falangist movement to subside while holding out hope of restoration in the eyes of the monarchists.

CALINESCU, RUMANIAN 'STRONG MAN,' TAKES OVER PREMIER'S POST

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 7.—(AP)—The late patriarch and premier, Miron Cristea, will be buried March 14 in a crypt of the patriarchate in Bucharest, it was announced today as "strong man" Armand Calinescu took over the premiership.

Calinescu is 46 years old. He was educated in France. His first job was a minor judgeship, then he was attorney for the Peasant party, became prominent in parliament and was named minister of education. He became minister of interior under the anti-Semitic Octavian Goga and kept the position under Dr. Cristea.

Dr. Cristea, who became premier on Feb. 11, 1938, went to Cannes, France, ten days ago to avoid the Rumanian winter. The body of the churchman and statesman, who died yesterday at Cannes, will arrive in Bucharest Saturday.

JAPANESE BOMB THREE CENTERS OF CHINA'S REDS

Drive to Tighten Grip on Central Areas.

SHANGHAI, March 7.—(AP)—Japanese reported steady progress today in a renewal of heavy fighting designed to block off China's communist dominated northwest armies and strengthen the Japanese position in central China.

Japanese planes were said to have bombed three centers of communist resistance, including Yehnan, Chinese Red headquarters in the northern part of unconquered Shensi province. Other bombings occurred at Ningsia, capital of Ningsia province northwest of Shensi, and at Tungkwan, at the great bend of the Yellow river on the Lunghai railway.

At the same time, Japanese armies were reported driving westward across Hupeh province, more than 500 miles west of Shanghai, against an army of 300,000 Chinese.

Obstacle to Coöperation.

Japanese said this Chinese army south of the east-west Lunghai railroad and west of the Peiping-Hankow line constituted an obstacle to coöperation between Japanese armies in the north and central China which they were determined to eliminate.

Although Japanese advices pictured the Chinese force as in retreat, Chinese reported that their armies were matching rifles against artillery and aerial bombs and fighting the invaders to a standstill. On a third battlefront, in northern Kiangsu province, Japanese reported continued success, but they admitted stiff Chinese opposition. This area, between Shanghai and Japanese occupied Shantung province, is within the territory presumably under Japanese occupation.

Report Jap Sentry Struck.

The Japanese press reported today that Japanese authorities in Hankow were expected to protest against the alleged action of the Portuguese consul there in striking a Japanese sentry with a cane. Newspapers said the consul attempted to force the opening of a gate of the French concession which the Japanese were guarding.

It daily becomes more evident that Japan, after twenty months of war over most of China proper, still is a long way from a complete victory.

And the Chinese, despite repeated defeats, steady loss of territory, enormous financial cost, and more than one million casualties, still find reasons for optimism.

"Final victory will be China's if we continue the war of wear and tear against Japan for two or three years more," Gen. Cheng Chien was quoted in a dispatch from Chungking, the Chinese provisional capital. He is Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's chief of staf.

Seek Supremacy in Western Pacific.

TOKIO, March 7.—(AP)—Minister of Marine Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai today estimated the cost of Japan's naval expansion program for the next five years at about $432,000,000, so that Japan might "secure supremacy in the western Pacific."

He submitted the figure to the budget subcommittee of the lower house of parliament in continued hearings on a record budget of $1,350,000,000 for the next fiscal year —the "China incident budget."

Manchukuans Drive Back Soviet Troops at Border

LITVINOV SHOVED INTO RETIREMENT BY SOVIET CHIEFS

Trade Official Ordered to Build Nation's Prestige.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, March 7.—The decision of the soviet government to place orders in foreign countries for $200,000,000 worth of machinery has made Anastas Ivanovich Mikojan, commissar of trade, the most important man in Moscow.

Anastas Mikojan.

Mikojan, who is one of the surviving members of the political bureau, has been ordered to repair the damage done to soviet prestige abroad by Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov's policies, which isolated Moscow from Europe. Litvinov is now living in retirement in Moscow. He and his commissariat for foreign affairs lost much importance after Mikojan opened negotiations with the commercial attachés of the United States, Germany, Great Britain, and other embassies for foreign machines and other industrial products.

Hustles for Trade.

The departure of a trade delegation to the United States to buy armor plate, negotiations for the purchase of naphtha products to be delivered at Siberian ports, and the recently concluded trade agreements with Italy, Poland, and the Baltic states are indications of Mikojan's recent activity.

Despite efforts of the German commercial attaché in Moscow, the Germans have been unable to close a trade agreement, although they are reported to have made exceptional offers of credit to Moscow. Because Germany supplied the major portion of machinery imported during the first and second five year plans, the soviet government is willing to give orders for replacements, but only under the condition that Germany will remain neutral should war develop between soviet Russia and Japan.

Germany is reported to be willing to abandon its campaign for an independent Ukraine in exchange for a new trade treaty, but does not wish to commit itself should Japan, its partner in the anti-communist pact, become involved in war with Russia.

Postpones Deal with Nazis.

Mikojan, who is an Armenian, postponed further negotiations with Berlin and invited the British to send a representative to Moscow. The approaching arrival of R. S. Hudson, secretary of the British department of overseas trade, in Moscow caused much activity among members of the German embassy staf. The Germans made several futile attempts to reopen negotiations with Mikojan.

With the families of more than two million exiled kuliks [wealthy farmers] working in the Siberian gold fields, Russia has become the second largest gold producer in the world. Mikojan is reported to have said that Moscow is not interested in long term credits and is willing to pay for a large portion of its purchases abroad with cash. However, the chief consideration is for a guarantee of peace on the western frontier, enabling Russia to present overwhelming forces against the Japanese.

SMOKING MAKES YOU UGLY! GERMAN WOMEN WARNED BY GOEBBELS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 7.—"Smoking makes women ugly," said Der Angriff, newspaper of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, today. The paper joined the Nazi party's campaign against smoking and the use of alcohol.

Prof. Reiter of Berlin, chief of the national health office, spoke at the national health congress in Frankfurt and said that smoking injured women. German doctors charge that smoking damages the respiratory organs, the liver and glands.

Drinking is also taboo despite the fact that the Nazis organized a national wine week two years ago. Health leaders declare that if one smokes while drinking one gets much more intoxicated.

SEIZE EXTORTION NOTE WRITER AT POSTAL WINDOW

Frank G. Showen, 38 years old, was seized on an extortion charge by postal inspectors yesterday when he appeared at general delivery window in the new postoffice building.

Frank Showen.

The inspectors said he had directed officials of the L. E. Myers company, public utility builders and operators at 53 West Jackson boulevard, to mail him $300, on threat of injuring their reputations. The officials meant were identified by their initials. Showen admitted, the inspectors said, that he once worked as an accountant for a concern that dealt with the Myers company and thus had learned the officials' names.

Showen said he had served ten months in a Missouri prison on a similar charge. He checked out of the Y. M. C. A. hotel, 826 South Wabash avenue, on Monday. United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker held him in $2,500 bond for a hearing March 14.

U. S. DANCER PUTS ON ACT AGAIN AT GOEBBELS PARTY

BERLIN, March 7.—(AP)—Miriam Verne, young American dancer, performed tonight before Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels and thirty-one subchiefs from throughout the country. It was her second appearance within four days before a select Nazi audience.

Miss Verne did her act along with other entertainers after her regular performance in a local theater. She danced in Prince Leopold palace, where Goebbels' offices are situated. The occasion was entertainment after an annual dinner Goebbels gives for the heads of the thirty-one propaganda ministry suboffices throughout the country.

EVER OLD—EVER NEW

By CALEB

"THE slightest glance must convince us that mechanical power and mechanical skill, as they are now exhibited in Europe and America, mark an epoch in human history worthy of all admiration. Machinery is made to perform what has formerly been the toil of human hands, to an extent that astonishes the most sanguine, with a degree of power to which no number of human arms is equal, and with such precision and exactness as almost to suggest the notion of reason and intelligence in the machines themselves."

The speaker was America's greatest orator, and one of its greatest statesmen. The scene, a packed hall in the city of Boston. The language, as would be expected, was majestic and eloquent; the thoughts, arresting; the subject of the address, a typical present-moment topic: "The Progress of the Mechanical Arts."

And what was the climax reached by that memorable speaker on that memorable occasion? What was the crowning triumph of man's headlong advance toward Power, pointed to with such pride in a peroration that is still a masterpiece of English? Listen. . . . "Last of all, with inimitable power, and with 'whirlwind sound,' comes the potent agency of steam. In comparison with the past, what centuries of improvement has this single agent comprised in the short compass of fifty years! . . . . . What further improvement may still be made in the use of this astonishing power it is impossible to know, and it were vain to conjecture." . .

So spoke Daniel Webster, to the thundering applause of a crowded Mechanics' Institution—in the long-ago year of 1828. "Centuries of improvement . . . in the short compass of fifty years." Such was his eulogy of steam. And we who hear the faint, thin echoes of that eulogy a century and a decade later, listen in amazement. Not at the sublime ignorance of Daniel Webster, for he had foresight and vision beyond his contemporaries; but at the stupendous contrast our own day of Power presents to the pigmy picture of it available in his time.

Ever old — ever new — the questing search of scientific and inventive man continues . . . . toward power goals "it were vain to conjecture." Laboratories are even now knocking at the doors of atomic energy. With a persistency that will one day be successful, Nature's secrets are being probed and forced; and among us is no one gifted with enough insight to say what marvels will have been achieved by the time these lines are as lost in temporal distance as Webster's still-celebrated eloquence!

LEADERS EXHIBIT WANING FAITH IN ROOSEVELT AIMS

Debate on Reorganization Brings Admissions.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—The house, pointed toward a final vote tomorrow on the government reorganization bill, today heard a charge that the measure contains a tacit admission by Democratic leaders that they lack confidence in President Roosevelt.

Representative Dirksen.

Closing the debate in opposition to the bill, which gives the President limited powers to change the government structure, Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] pointed out that sixteen important agencies are exempted in the act from presidential interference.

"The very fact that the Democratic authors of this legislation placed sixteen exemptions in it indicates that they themselves have no faith in the President," declared Dirksen.

Sponsor Admits Charges.

Representative John J. Cochran [D., Mo.], sponsor of the bill, admitted that, if the exemptions had not been made, the measure would have no chance of passage.

The cry that Mr. Roosevelt is not to be trusted with the added powers extended in the bill, even with the limitations imposed, arose again and again during the lengthy debate.

Representative John W. McCormack [D., Mass.] deplored these confessions, which he said are unworthy of members of congress.

"How can we help being afraid of the President?" inquired Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] "We know the communistic influences with which he has surrounded himself and we fear his ambitions for more power which he is seeking all the time."

Present Powers Unused.

Dirksen pointed out that the President now possesses the power, under the budget and accounting act of 1921, to abolish or consolidate 78 of the 133 agencies affected in the pending legislation.

"He could put any one of these 78 agencies out of business by a stroke of the pen," Dirksen told the house. "It is unquestioned that he could promote efficiency by consolidating or abolishing some of these agencies, but he never has chosen to suggest this to congress."

Dirksen said he will offer as a substitute for the Cochran bill the measure introduced in the senate by Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] which provides that no reorganization program submitted by the President shall go into effect unless it is approved within twenty days by congress.

The house bill provides for negative action by congress instead of the affirmative action in the Byrd bill. Presidential proposals, under the house provision, will go into effect unless disapproved by congress within sixty days.

Viewed as Slap at Roosevelt.

A stormy session is expected tomorrow when the substitution is proposed by Dirksen. Such action will be interpreted as a slap at the President.

The administration's reply to Byrd's action yesterday was given today when Senator James F. Byrnes [D., S. C.] introduced in the senate a bill similar to the Cochran measure.

Some Democrats were severe in their condemnation of Byrd for introducing his measure while the house was considering the Cochran bill.

Republicans continued to insist throughout the day that congress itself should do the job of reorganization and not delegate legislative powers to the chief executive.

CUMMINGS NOW PRACTICING LAW IN CAPITAL CITY

William Stanley.

His partner is William Stanley, a former assistant attorney general who resigned in 1935. The firm is to be known as Cummings & Stanley. Mr. Cummings also will continue to be the senior partner of his Stamford, Conn., law firm of Cummings & Lockwood.

Mr. Cummings had ample precedent for establishing a law practice where he formerly represented the government. The late A. Mitchell Palmer, attorney general in the Wilson administration, opened a law office when he left the cabinet, and William D. Mitchell, attorney general of the Hoover administration, has practiced here since he left government service.

Matter of Ethics Only.

No government law bars a former attorney general from taking fat fees from the opposite side of cases whose prosecution he directed as the government's No. 1 lawyer. The taking of such fees is left to his sense of the ethical. He alone can decide whether he gained a too intimate knowledge of such cases and therefore should refuse or accept proffers of employment from private clients.

Several government departments and agencies have ruled that a former employé cannot practice before them for a period of two years and then not in cases in which he had an intimate knowledge while he was in the government service. The department of justice has no such rule.

Retainer $10,000 a Year.

By law, private attorneys, employed by the department of justice, can not shift sides in a case without permission of congress. Mr. Cummings' partner recently became entangled in this law.

After he left the department of justice, Mr. Stanley was hired as a private attorney by the department to press a 20 million dollar claim against the estate of the late John Jacob Astor which involved extensive British holdings. The department frequently employs private attorneys to try cases in which the private attorneys are specialists. Mr. Stanley's retainer was $10,000 a year.

Later, Mr. Stanley decided for reasons of his own to switch to the other side of the case—a procedure frowned upon in private practice. A special act of congress was passed enabling him to do so. He won his case in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The case is on its way to the United States Supreme court.

COURT ENJOINS GEORGE FROM HELPING A LADY UNTIL EX-WIFE IS PAID

He doesn't play the horses himself, George Reinbolt of Palatine explained when he appeared before Judge Robert C. O'Connell yesterday. He just escorted "a little old lady" to the Arlington race track last year and placed bets for her, he said.

George's former wife, Grace, who divorced him in February, 1937, heard of the betting. She had him brought into court yesterday on charges of contempt because he is $270 in arrears on payments of a divorce settlement. George said he had been unable to pay because he lost his job due to sickness. Mrs. Reinbolt blamed the ponies.

"What you tell us may be true," Judge O'Connell told George, at length, "but just as a precaution I enjoin you from visiting any track until the money is paid—either with or without the little old lady."

DEFENDANT WEDS WOMAN PLAINTIF IN $50,000 SUIT

Federal Judge John P. Barnes learned yesterday that the plaintif in a $50,000 damage suit had married the man she is suing. The principals are the former Miss Ruby Atwood, formerly of Chicago, and Stuart E. Boyd of Holland, Mich.

The suit seeks damages for injuries the woman incurred in an automobile accident last Oct. 8 while riding with Boyd, then her fiancé. Her medical expenses, according to the bill, amounted to $3,000.

Attorney John A. Appelman, representing Boyd, said the couple was married Feb. 1. Because the injuries occurred before the marriage he asked dismissal of the suit. Attorney Benjamin B. Davis, representing the former Miss Atwood, was given until Monday to reply. Attorney Davis said the suit was based on a question of collecting on Boyd's insurance and that the Boyds were really quite happy.

HELP 3,500 MAKE OUT INCOME TAX RETURNS IN DAY

Several thousand taxpayers crowded the offices of the bureau of internal revenue in the United States courthouse yesterday where 1938 income tax returns must be filed by March 15. A force of 150 deputy collectors helped taxpayers fill out their returns at the rate of about ten a minute.

Daniel J. Conerty, assistant chief field deputy, said 3,500 persons filed returns between 9 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. In addition, more than 10,000 returns were received by mail.

A special cashiers' office has been set up in the Dearborn street lobby of the courthouse where clerks take tax payments as soon as the returns are made out on the floor above. Additional cashiers' cages are on the fifth floor.

FOUND DEAD, THROAT SLASHED.

James McKenna, 62 years old, was found dead yesterday in his room at 229 South Loomis street. His throat had been slashed and the gas turned on.

AMNESIA VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED BY PAY CHECK STUB

A neatly dressed man stopped Policeman Pat Devine yesterday at 9th street and Wabash avenue.

"I'd like to get out of Pittsburgh and go home to Beaver Falls," the man said. "Can you help me?"

Policeman Devine took him to the Central station, where he was identified by a pay check stub as George L. Merriman of Beaver Falls, Pa.

Dr. Benjamin Feinstein, police surgeon, said he was suffering from amnesia. Arrangements were being made to return him to Beaver Falls.

Junior's Bathing Problem Solved; Dip Cradle and All

Cleveland, O., March 7.—[Special.]—Thomas A. Hughes watched the ordeal his wife went through each day, bathing their infant son in the family bathtub. It was a tiring job, holding his soaped body as he squirmed. If only he could think of some way to anchor the baby to the tub, Hughes thought. After six months of experimenting he found the answer. It is a nonwiggle cradle with a safety belt that keeps a baby where he belongs during his bath. Powerful suction cups hold the cradle firmly to the tub.

SENATE PASSES ARMY MEASURE OF 358 MILLION

Bill Provides Air Corps of 6,000 Planes.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—By a vote of 77 to 8 the senate today passed a 358 million dollar army expansion bill, authorizing an increase in the strength of the air corps from 2,320 to 6,000 planes.

The bill authorized an appropriation of 300 million dollars for the army air corps, of which amount 170 million is to be used for the acquisition of 3,032 planes during the next two fiscal years, according to war department estimates. The other 130 million authorized to be appropriated for the air corps is to be spent on the construction of ground facilities, maintenance of planes, and an increase in personnel.

More than Doubles Air Corps.

The bill provides for an increase in the commissioned personnel of the regular army from 14,659 to 16,719. It authorizes an increase in the enlisted strength of the air corps from 21,500 to 45,000. It authorizes an appropriation of $23,750,000 for the improvement of the Panama canal defenses and an appropriation of $34,500,000 for educational orders to equip manufacturers with gauges, dies, jigs, tools, and fixtures.

The measure now goes to conference with the house of representatives, which recently passed a similar measure, but limited the authorized strength of the air corps to 5,500 planes.

Vote After Long Debate.

The overwhelming vote by which the senate approved the so-called emergency aerial armament program was no test of strength for President Roosevelt's foreign policy. For seven days the senate was held in a full dress foreign policy debate during which both Democratic and Republican isolationists went on record for an adequate national defense but denounced the theory that the United States should police the world in an effort to help France and England protect their colonial empires, acquired by conquest, from aggression by Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany.

President Roosevelt was accused, in the debate last week, of pursuing in secrecy a course that will ease the United States into Europe's next war. Senators who attended Mr. Roosevelt's secret conference with the military affairs committee a month ago voiced suspicions that his mysterious dealings with the so-called European democracies amount to a military alliance.

See Danger of Attack.

Administration supporters justified the theory, attributed to Mr. Roosevelt, that the American first line of defense is in France. They took the position that if France and Great Britain fall prey to the European dictator states, the United States will be in danger of attack.

Senator Matthew M. Neely [D., W. Va.], a 100 per cent New Dealer, rested the administration's case today with a warlike denunciation of Germany, Italy, and Japan. Neely said that Adolf Hitler, the Nazi dictator, was looking toward the Ukraine, soviet Russian territory, while Benito Mussolini, dictator of Italy, had turned his "envious, greedy eyes" toward Corsica and the French possessions in Africa.

Fears Dictator Nations.

"Is any one so blind that he cannot see, so deaf that he cannot hear, so optimistic that he cannot understand that after Mussolini and Hitler have concluded parceling out Africa and Europe between themselves, and Japan shall have absorbed all of China and perhaps the rest of Asia, they will all together next turn their envious eyes upon the territory of the western hemisphere, and that unless we submissively yield our territory and our possessions and our liberty to the dictators of the earth we will receive from them the same treatment which they have accorded to every nation that has fallen before them?" Neely shouted.

Senator Ernest Lundeen [F. L., Minn.] asked Neely whether he had declared war.

"No, but if I were to declare war I would first declare it against the people in this country who are encouraging the Mussolinis and Hitlers to believe that there is a division of sentiment in this land about protecting this nation against aggression from the outside," Neely roared.

Barkley Defends President.

Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky undertook to explain and defend the President's foreign policy in a two hour speech, denying the United States was a party to any entangling alliances.

"Whatever may be the exigencies of our defense in the future, it will not be done as the result of any alliance between our nation and any other nation, but will be done in the protection of our interests," he said.

Barkley referred to charges that Mr. Roosevelt's famous "quarantine" speech at Chicago on Oct. 5, 1937, could have no other meaning but the levying of sanctions for the purpose of starving the populations of aggressor nations. According to Barkley's theory the President meant only to "quarantine" or isolate the United States from "the epidemic of lawlessness and unprovoked murder which he was discussing."

Saugus, Mass., March 7.—[Special.]—Isabelle Hallin, pretty blonde, was ousted from her teaching job more than a year ago after reports that she served cocktails to high school students were circulated. One of the school board members who reported in favor of her dismissal was Miss Maria E. Smith. Today Miss Hallin watched with satisfaction while her mother, Mrs. Annie Hallin, received congratulations of townsfolk on her election to Miss Smith's post.

Italy Boosts Pay to Meet Rising Costs of Living

ROME, March 7.—(AP)—All workers in Italian private industry and commerce today were given 5 to 10 per cent wage increases to meet higher living costs. The rise is attributed by Italians generally to the Fascist economic self-sufficiency program and Italian military expenditures, including those for sending troops to Spain.

PRESIDENT 'SUNK' TWICE IN NAVY'S CARIBBEAN GAME

Admiral Leahy Explains Sea Power Needs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, revealed today that the cruiser Houston with President Roosevelt and himself aboard was theoretically sunk in the navy's war games off the Caribbean sea last week.

After the admiral made his disclosure at a press conference in which he indicated that the United States may increase its naval construction program if Japan carries out its reported plan to match American and British building, the President ruefully confessed the Houston had been sunk twice by enemy submarines.

Houston with Defenders.

The Houston was a part of the defending fleet in the war games, which involved the defense of a mythical continent.

Admiral Leahy discussed probable enlargement of the naval expansion program when he was asked whether he would urge stepping up the American program in view of reported increase in Japanese shipbuilding.

"I think the 5-5-3 ratio, although badly shaken, is a very satisfactory proportion from our viewpoint," Leahy said. "The question of whether we will wish a further increase in view of the reported Japanese program is for future determination."

Tells Strength Needed.

The admiral stressed the need for an American navy large enough to repel aggression from any single power. The navy's position traditionally has been that the fleet should be larger than the Japanese in the Pacific and the equal of the British in the Atlantic.

"It would seem necessary for the United States to increase its strength if that is threatened," the admiral said. "It would have a navy large enough to cope with any single power or combination of powers."

President Roosevelt today gave permission to the navy department to construct the four 6,000 ton cruisers provided for in the Vinson-Trammell act either in private yards or navy yards as it may see fit.

ARMY AND NAVY TO JOIN IN WAR GAMES IN APRIL

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—The army and navy announced agreement today on plans for joint war games in New England April 17 to 22. Officials said they would be the largest scale exercises of the kind ever held in the east.

Upwards of 200 war planes and 15 battleships and smaller surface craft will participate in the maneuvers, involving land, sea, and air team work in repelling a simulated invasion from Europe.

ROOSEVELT'S SON HITS 'CENSORSHIP OF FEAR' IN RADIO

ElliottRaps FCC Policy on Station Licenses.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—Elliott Roosevelt believes "a censorship of fear" exists in radio.

The second son of the President today told the federal communications commission that radio, "for the good of free speech and private initiative, needs a law that will allow a broadcaster to operate without fear, even though his worst enemy administers it."

The present requirement that radio stations renew their licenses every six months, Roosevelt said, "tends to act as a restriction upon free speech."

Fears for Free Speech.

"Free speech, generally speaking, is enjoyed only in America," he added. "The totalitarian states not only have a controled press, but a controled radio, and this trend is to be feared in America. This censorship may be unintended. It is none the less real."

Instead of requiring stations to make periodical license renewals—and, he said, it matters little whether the period is every six months, as required by the FCC, or every three years, the maximum allowed by the communications act—he urged a certificate permitting a station to continue so long as it operates for the public good. Such a certificate would be revokable for cause.

He called "undue restrictions on the sale of stations" another handicap to the industry.

Gibes Texas Governor.

Once Roosevelt referred to Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas as "our flour sack governor." He said O'Daniel is given half an hour each Sunday morning to make his report to the people of Texas, accompanied by "a hillbilly band, prayers, and lamentations."

Roosevelt, president and chairman of the board of the Texas State Network, Inc., spent a full day on the witness stand in the FCC's investigation of chain broadcasting and possible monopoly in the radio industry.

Counsel for the commission had just started cross-examination when the session adjourned. Roosevelt will resume the stand tomorrow morning.

2 Wife Beating Reliefers Jailed to Serve $200 Fines

Two reliefers were found guilty yesterday of beating their wives after becoming intoxicated and were fined $200 each by Judge Thomas A. Green in Fillmore police court. Neither was able to pay the fine and both were sent to the Bridewell. The two are John Delfino, 2910 Roosevelt road, who has been on relief two years, and Frank Marlewski, 3612 Shakespeare avenue, father of six children, who has been on relief for nine years. Both were charged with disorderly conduct.

ROOSEVELT ASSAILS PLAN FOR NATIONAL REFERENDUM ON WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Special.]—President Roosevelt asserted today that national defense would be impaired by any constitutional amendment which would require a national referendum before this country could declare war.

Furthermore, he expressed his convictions that the neutrality legislation of the last three years has not contributed to world peace nor strengthened the hand of the United States in international dealings. He believes this legislation may have contributed to war in some respects.

The President said the United States would have been in a better position, dealing with other nations, if the neutrality legislation had not been on the statute books.

Wishes He Were in Peoria; Police to Take Him There

The stranger who approached Sergt Charles Moore in front of the Des Plaines street police station yesterday was Claude Lefler, 35 years old. He started a conversation by wishing he were in Peoria. The sergeant asked why. "I cashed a lot of bum checks down there," said Lefler. "Now I want to go back and face the charges." He was invited into a cell. Peoria police said they would send somebody for him.

URUGUAY PUSHES DRIVE TO CRUSH RED PROPAGANDA

Montevideo Once a Base of Soviet Operations.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 21.—[By air mail.]—Under President General Alfredo Baldomir, the political situation in Uruguay is serene and no fights are in sight.

The Fascist tendencies that prevailed during the régime of President Gabriel Terra have disappeared and Uruguay now ranks as one of South America's most substantial democracies. The press, speech, and the vote are free. The budget is balanced and Uruguay's peso stands high in international exchange.

Propagandists of the new foreign régimes are making vigorous efforts to win the sympathies of the sizable German, Italian, and Japanese colonies. Their progress is slow, however, because most of the colonists have been here a long time and like Uruguay's democratic form of government. Germany, Italy, and Japan are making progress commercially, though.

Communists Losing Out.

Russian propagandists are faring poorly. Once the communist headquarters in Uruguay was regarded as the nerve center and distribution agency of Red propaganda in South America. Since Uruguay broke off diplomatic relations with the soviet in 1935 the government has been active in the suppression of subversive Red activities. The communist party now polls less than 5,000 votes.

Since the beginning of its history in the early 1500's, Uruguay has been a battleground for the Spaniards, Portuguese, and Indians, and later a buffer state in the path of other warring countries. After years of external trouble, it became a battlefield for two political parties—the Blancos and Colorados. It was in a constant state of agitation and revolutions until about the turn of this century.

At the moment Uruguay, the smallest nation in South America, with an area of 72,153 square miles and population of 2,200,000, appears to be peacefully devoted to its main pursuits of stock raising, packing, and agriculture.

Defense Force Is Small.

The republic has only a small defense force and thinks it has no need for a larger one. The people want to fight no one and believe no one wants to fight them. The army consists of about 8,000 men and service is purely voluntary. The air force has forty planes, seven of which were bought in the United States and the rest from England, France, and Italy. The navy has only one torpedo gunboat, a surveying vessel, three small patrol boats, and other minor craft.

In external politics Uruguay usually is inclined to follow the lead of its neighbor, Argentina. Brazil and Paraguay are the only other nations near Uruguay.

Sixty per cent of Uruguay's gently rolling terrain is devoted to stock raising, about 20 per cent to mixed farms and ranches, and only 7 per cent to agriculture.

Raise Cattle and Sheep.

The latest live stock census accounted for about 7,200,000 cattle, 20,500,000 sheep, 600,000 horses, and 300,000 pigs. There are eleven establishments preparing chilled and canned meat for export. England is the chief buyer. The cattle industry accounts for about 80 per cent of exports, the other chief items being wool, sheepskins, hides, flax, and linseed. At the moment Uruguay is displeased about the decrease in American purchases of her wool.

The principal crops for home consumption are wheat, maize, oats, and grapes. Minerals are of minor importance, but there is some good marble and granite.

Whaling flotillas operating in the South Atlantic bring considerable business into Montevideo.

For the last seven years exports have been consistently gaining over imports. For 1937 exports were worth 99,152,000 pesos as compared with 66,685,477 in 1933. [The peso is worth 37 cents.] Americans have about $100,000,000 invested here.

TRAPPED BANDIT LEAPS 2 FLOORS AS POLICE FIRE

A colored bandit fleeing from a filling station robbery was trapped by police last night on the fourth floor of a building at 1836 Lake street. The bandit dived through a window when a policeman opened fire on him and landed on his head on the second floor setback. He was taken to the Bridewell hospital with a skull fracture and a broken leg.

A social security card in his pocket indicated the bandit was James Rose, 30 years old, of 260 North Campbell avenue. He held up Peter Frigo, attendant in a filling station at Warren boulevard and Paulina street, obtaining $8.

Frigo, after surrendering the money, saw the robber's gun was a red handled toy pistol. He grappled with the bandit and was aided by his wife, Eunice, who beat the Negro was the heel of her shoe. The bandit escaped.

Sergt. James Fiorito and his squad sighted Rose in an alley north of Lake street, near Wood street, and pursued him to the building.

BORDEN HEADHITS U. S. MILK POLICY AS INCONSISTENT

Theodore G. Montague of New York, president of the Borden company, one of a number of concerns under federal indictment for conspiring to operate a monopoly in the milk business in Chicago, asserted yesterday that the government's policies toward the industry are inconsistent.

Montague said coöperative associations of producers had been exempted from provisions of the anti-trust laws, and that they were apparently within their rights when they negotiated prices to be paid for their milk by dealers.

"Our company will defend its past and present conduct," Montague declared. "There is no monopoly and the company has lost an average of $312,000 annually for six years in its Chicago fluid milk operations."

PLOT TO DESTROY UNION CHARGED IN INJUNCTION SUIT

Twelve officers and agents of the Marble, Mosaic, and Terrazo Workers Helpers' union, local 98, filed suit in Superior court yesterday for an injunction to restrain the international union and another local union from allegedly obstructing the management of local 98. The bill asserted that the defendants are seeking to destroy local 98 by threatening to revoke its charter and refusing to accept money offered as dues payments. The local was suspended by the American Federation of Labor and was placed in receivership a year ago. The other local named as a defendant is No. 132. John Testo, president of local 132, and John Hayes and Robert McNeil, vice presidents, are named co-defendants.

Dairy Begins Fight Today on Paper Milk Carton Ban

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward will preside today at a preliminary hearing in the injunction suit of the Fieldcrest Dairies, Inc., against the City of Chicago. The company seeks to enjoin the city from preventing the sale of milk in paper containers. Such sale is barred by a city ordinance. Judge Woodward is to decide whether the matter should be referred to a master in chancery for the taking of testimony.

GERMAN TROOPS READY TO STOP NEW CZECH GRAB

Poland and Hungary Get Nazi Warning.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 7. — Germany today threatened to send troops into Czecho-Slovakia to resist any attempt by Hungary or Poland to seize Carpatho-Ukraine, easternmost province of Czecho-Slovakia and the gateway to the rich soviet Ukraine wheat fields.

Col. Josef Beck, Poland's foreign minister, and Grigore Gafencu, Rumania's foreign minister, have been conferring in Warsaw. They were reported to be considering a plan to seize Carpatho-Ukraine in order to give Poland and Hungary a common border. Under the scheme Hungary would annex the province.

The Germans are talking about the advisability of sending reinforcements to Czecho-Slovakia to occupy the Brunn-Olmutz line "from where it would be easy for the German forces to help the Czechs prevent any undesirable development in the all-important Carpatho-Ukraine district."

May Occupy Prague.

The occupation of the Brunn-Olmutz line would automatically include the occupation of Prague. The official newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter referred to Prague as the "town that is fully as German as Vienna."

The dispute over Carpatho-Ukraine is a complicated matter. Some months ago Germany warned Poland and Hungary that she would not allow them to incorporate the area. Rumania also warned the Poles and Hungarians that as an ally of Czecho-Slovakia she would not allow them to chop off the territory.

Rumania's Hand Freed.

Then Prague informed Bucharest that in view of the present situation the Czechs would not expect the Rumanians to adhere to their little entente agreement. This freed Rumania's hands and Gafencu was able to listen to the pleas of Col. Beck, who wants Rumania to remain indifferent if Poland and Hungary help themselves to Carpatho-Ukraine.

Beck is known as a friend of Germany, but after what happened to Germany's two other neighbors, Austria and Czecho-Slovakia he wants to build up an impressive new axis of his own from the Baltic sea to the Black sea. With such an axis he would be able to offer greater resistance to the German steam roller if a war developed between Poland and Germany.

Germany, which, together with Italy, dictated an arbitration ruling at Vienna which was to guarantee peace in eastern Europe "for all time to come," wants matters to remain as they are.

BOMBER OF WAR DAYS IS PENITENT AT 75; JUDGE SETS HIM FREE

Reinhold A. Faust, a pro-German bomber and terrorist in world war days, was freed yesterday in Felony court of a charge of possessing and storing explosives in a business district. Gaunt, haggard, and penitent at 75, Faust renounced his old radicalism and swore allegiance to America, land of his adoption.

Four home made bombs were discovered when Faust's safety deposit box was drilled open in the Milwaukee Avenue National Safe Deposit company. Faust admitted he had made the bombs and had thrown away the key. He paid $10 a year rental to safeguard his secret.

On Nov. 17, 1917, Faust set off a bomb in the Auditorium theater during an opera performance. A fireman extinguished the fuse and Faust was seized. He confessed trying to extort $100,000 from two bankers. For this he served fourteen months in Joliet prison.

Prosecutor Morris G. Meyers said the state was unwilling to prosecute the old man. Judge Matthew D. Hartigan then let Faust go free.

Riverside Voters O. K. Two Village Bond Issues

Riverside voters approved two bond issues in a referendum yesterday—one for a $40,000 improvement of the village hall and the other for the purchase of a $10,000 fire truck. The vote was 141 to 81 for the improvement and 188 to 34 for the fire truck.

PROSECUTOR, AID OF KANSAS CITY'S BOSS, IS INDICTED

Third Official to Face Charges in Cleanup.

Kansas City, Mo., March 7.—[Special.]—Jackson County Prosecutor W. W. Graves Jr., a leader in the Pendergast Democratic machine in Kansas City, was indicted today by a county grand jury which is making a house cleaning of corruption here.

Prosecutor Graves. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

The announcement was made by the prosecutor himself. He was indicted on a charge of neglecting his duty.

Graves is the third county official to be indicted by the grand jury, which has returned a total of 138 indictments. Last week the jury named David E. Long, presiding judge of the County court, and J. W. Hostetter, former county judge and now supervisor of county institutions.

All Pendegast Aids.

All three are aids of Democratic Boss T. J. Pendergast, under whose rule Kansas City has won the reputation of being one of the most politically corrupt cities in the country. Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves compared conditions in this city, which is under the city manager form of government, to lawlessness and terrorism in Russia, Germany, and Italy.

Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, arch political foe of Pendergast, has repeatedly demanded Graves' ouster in connection with the cleanup of conditions which the executive said "smell to the high heavens." The prosecutor tried to halt the grand jury's sweeping investigation by charging the proceedings were illegal, but he was blocked by the state Supreme court.

Stark Demands Dismissal.

The governor specifically denounced Graves for his dismissal of long pending assault charges against Charles Gargotta, Kansas City political figure. Stark said the dismissal, after twenty-seven continuances, was an example of the combination of politics and crime now operating here.

Gargotta was accused of attempting to kill Sheriff Thomas B. Nash when the officer happened upon the scene of a gang killing in 1933. The sheriff appeared just after Ferris J. Anthon, a night club operator had been killed. The officer killed two of the executioners and captured Gargotta after the gangster had emptied a revolver at him.

Gargotta was formerly an associate of John Lazia, powerful political figure and one time lieutenant of Pendegast's north side organization.

OFFERS TO BUY GOLF LINKS STIR EVANSTON'S IRE

Sale Unlikely, Says Sanitary Chief.

A suggestion that the sanitary district is thinking about selling the land occupied by the Evanston Community Golf course stirred Evanston and Wilmette officials into active opposition yesterday. They pledged themselves to a finish fight to retain the course, which lies on both sides of the sanitary canal between Green Bay and Sheridan roads.

Ross A. Woodhull, president of the district, started the controversy yesterday when he announced he had received several offers from individuals who wanted the land for building sites. He estimated the total value of the tract at about $1,000,000.

No Revenue Received.

He added that while the sale is not being considered seriously, the lack of any revenue from the land is a matter of importance to the district.

"The golf course is operated by a community organization," he said, "and any profits it makes go to Evanston and Wilmette. We can't charge rent. If we did we would have to pay taxes, and the taxes are far more than the rent would be. On the other hand, in private ownership it would pay large taxes to the district and the municipalities."

Thomas Airth, alderman of Evanston's 6th ward and chairman of the city council's park commission, said the course was a "definite asset" to the recreational needs of the suburbs and that it must be kept intact.

Threatens Zoning Curb.

"We want more land, not less, for playgrounds," he said. "If there is any move to sell for building purposes I will start a campaign to amend the zoning laws so there will be no buildings."

Henry Fowler, chairman of the Wilmette park district, said he wasn't sure whether Wilmette could take any legal steps, since the sanitary district was granted a right of way through the village by the state, but that he was opposed to any change.

"I'll do my best to stir up sentiment against any scheme for a sale," he asserted.

ILLINOIS HOUSE ASKED FOR BOARD TO FIGHT CANCER

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Formation of a division of cancer control in the state department of health was asked today in a bill presented to the house by Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago].

Details of operation of the measure, which was introduced at the request of City club of Chicago, were left until conferences between Schnackenberg and Dr. A. C. Baxter, acting state director of health, fix the amount of an appropriation to be requested.

Schnackenberg views the bill as one of extreme importance. It is the second he has offered this session. The other was the important parole reform bill he sponsored with Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago], Mayor Kelly's legislative spokesman.

TWO PRISONERS KICK A HOLE IN WALL AND FLEE

Harrisburg, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—Two prisoners held in the county jail pending trial escaped today by kicking a hole in a brick wall around a yard in which they were working. A third prisoner left with them but returned to the front door of the jail half an hour later.

The fugitives are Harold Seymour, 20 years old, of Eldorado, and Ed Coleman of Stonefort. Seymour, a parolee from the Illinois state reformatory, was awaiting trial for automobile theft and Coleman was to be tried for stealing machinery from a mine.

The third man, whose name was withheld by authorities, said he went along only so he could report the other prisoners' escape and the direction they went. He said the fugitives had no plans for eluding police.

JURY PROPOSES POLICE INQUIRY IN MINNEAPOLIS

Wants FBI to Dig Into Rackets and Vice.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 7.—[Special.]—The Hennepin county grand jury today recommended investigation of the Minneapolis police department by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The jury's report said numerous rackets apparently have a substantial foothold and that vice was prevalent throughout the city.

Mayor George E. Leach replied, "We have the best police force of any city in the world and the city is in the best condition—it is the cleanest it ever has been. I am perfectly satisfied with the police department except for its size."

Police Chief Frank P. Forestal said he would welcome an inquiry by the FBI and added he would be happy to submit police records which show Minneapolis is one of the cleanest cities in the country. Monthly and annual reports made by the FBI show Minneapolis near the top of the list in law enforcement, he added.

Quiz May Hurt Mayor.

The city council, controled by Farmer-Laborites, will meet Friday and the grand jury proposal probably will be aired. The aldermen's reaction was problematic. Republican Mayor Leach is a candidate for reëlection this spring. An unfavorable investigation would hurt his candidacy.

On the other hand, the council would be reluctant to appropriate funds for an inquiry which might rebound with political complications. Pleas for economy in city government might also be an excuse for sidetracking the proposed investigation.

Specifically the grand jury recommended that the city council consider a complete investigation and survey of the police situation to ascertain the adequacy of the organization and the possibility of reorganization along more efficient lines.

Seek Trained Sleuths.

"It is further recommended," the jury said, "that the federal bureau of investigation be invited to assist in such a survey and investigation and that, if possible, the city employ five or six men formerly trained with the FBI to investigate vice rackets and gambling in the city and get the necessary evidence to prosecute these undesirable elements."

The report commended County Attorney Ed J. Goff and Sherif John P. Wall for parts they played in carrying out the jury's vice and gambling investigations. Acting independently of the police, deputy sherifs last month raided ten vice resorts. Three phone calls telling of a raid were received by deputies in one resort.

GRAND JURY TO RENEW HEARINGS IN U. OF I. VICE INQUIRY TODAY

Urbana, Ill., March 7. — [Special.] — The grand jury investigation into vice conditions in Champaign, brought about by the fatal shooting of William Spurrier, University of Illinois sophomore, on the morning of Feb. 16, will be resumed tomorrow after being recessed since Friday.

During the recess Special Prosecutor Walker Butler of Chicago and his assistants have interviewed numerous prospective witnesses. From present indications, the grand jury will be in session three days, recessing next Friday afternoon over the weekend.

C. W. Roth, former sherif of Champaign county, who retired from office early in December, is expected to be among those to appear before the grand jury tomorrow morning.

THE SOVEREIGN CLIPS HIS SOVEREIGNS.

The federal statutory debt limit is 45 billion dollars. The debt now, exclusive of the governmental corporation liabilities, is about to click at 40 billion. When it does a little bird should come out of the machine and say "Cuckoo!" Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi predicts the exhaustion of the borrowing authority within a year. The spenders ask that the limit be raised by 5 billions.

The President's authority to devaluate the dollar by fixing its gold content expires by limitation this year. The spenders ask for a renewal of this and Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, the greenback man, says he will also ask that the authority be modified to permit a devaluation of 20 per cent more than the present allowance.

Mr. Thomas also proposes the issuance of 3 billion dollars of new currency. By his amendment to an agricultural act the administration now has authority to issue that amount in greenbacks. Under the silver purchase act the treasury last year bought over 400 million ounces, paying bonuses to eight silver mining corporations which produce 75 per cent of the metal mined in this country. Mr. Bryan had the country in a delirium over proposals which hardly scratched the surface of what the present government has done.

The upshot of all these New Deal monetary policies has not been to control the currency, which was not the idea. The idea has been to debase it. The king has been shaving and clipping his own coinage. The attempt to beat down the value of American coin has had various pretenses but the unpleasant truth about it is that the spenders have done their best to produce a destructive inflation and have been unable to do it only because they could not cause a panicky feeling in the country and because conditions constantly thwarted them.

The measures they have taken were calculated to cause a citizen to look at the money he possessed and be seized by the fear that it would lose its purchasing power. If he had, he would have scrambled to do something desperate. Apparently such were the consequences desired. There is no need of new currency. Proposals to issue more, to print greenbacks, to extend the devaluating authority, to increase the debt, and to continue the silver purchases are parts of a scheme to risk an inflationary boom which, if it ever touched national psychology in the manner intended, would be the final explosion in the New Deal madhouse.

ZEALOTS AND THEIR LAWS.

The death of the Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson serves as a reminder of how little the American people have learned from the prohibition experiment.

Dr. Wilson was an altruist, devoted to bettering the conditions of life of his countrymen. He saw the evil worked by excessive indulgence in liquor. The steady progress toward temperance did not content him; it only fired him to believe that the goal of a completely abstemious nation was within easy reach. All that was needed, or so he persuaded himself, was an amendment of the constitution and a law. And thanks in no small measure to his energy and his organizing capacity, the country got both.

It is doubtful if men who are as devoted to a cause as he was can ever examine the results of their efforts objectively. If Dr. Wilson was an exception to the rule he must have been appalled by the forces he had unwittingly helped to release. Instead of promoting temperance his amendment made gross dissipation respectable in social classes where drinking even in moderation had been taboo. He had regarded the liquor trade as the focus and cause of political corruption; he lived to see the outlawing of liquor result in a hitherto unparalleled corruption of public officials. He had campaigned against the saloon as a social evil and the success of his campaign had elevated murderous gangsters to positions of power and influence.

The men who were responsible for putting the prohibition amendment in the constitution were gentlemen in a hurry. The worst of them were using prohibition to advance their personal ambitions and fortunes. The best of them, like Dr. Wilson, were betrayed by their zeal for a better world. They were so confident of the essential goodness of their cause, so conscious of their own disinterested altruism, that they could not doubt the soundness of their program.

Today the New Dealers present much the same picture. The worst of them are using the movement as a cloak for their grafting and for the deliberate subversion of our government. The best of them think that their draconian laws present a short cut to a better society. The zealots are so filled with the vision of a better day that they are unable to see or to appraise the counterforces which they are releasing.

The Wagner act, despite its lofty preamble, has become a charter for lawless and violent labor leaders; instead of promoting peaceful labor relations the law has encouraged strikes and riots.

As prohibition created bootlegging, so NRA and its like have promoted chiseling. TVA, which was supposed to create millennial conditions in the southern hills, has been serviceable chiefly as a block to investment in the utility business, and as such has played a most important part in prolonging the depression in the Tennessee valley as well as everywhere else in the country.

The AAA raised the price of cotton by fiat with the result that the cotton farmers have lost their foreign markets and men who formerly made a poor living growing cotton are now homeless and destitute. Their condition before AAA was not particularly enviable; today it is desperate. Over the years the improvement in public health as measured by the decline in the death rate has been amazing; and so the New Dealers are seeking, as the drys did, to hurry history by reorganizing the practice of medicine.

We haven't learned the lesson of prohibition. We haven't learned—yet—that the most dangerous men in any community are those who propose to advance the millennium by hastily written laws and ordinances. We have not learned that high purposes, even when unadulterated with personal ambition and greed, are an inadequate guide to sound public policy. We still have a childlike faith that a law written by a good man or a man who says he's good must be a good law.

FOR GUAM READ BERMUDA.

Substitute Bermuda for Guam in the appropriations for naval air bases and the United States would be fortifying a line of defense and not a line of provocation. We do not possess Bermuda. Quite true. The only important vestiges of empire in American waters belong to Great Britain and France, which owe the United States most in tangibles and intangibles.

We have a great naval base in territory which was Spanish. We can have air bases in territory which was Danish. The French and British are, or appear to be, unapproachable. Our government does not hesitate to make a hostile demonstration against Japan, but it declines to offer a friendly negotiation to the imperial democracies whose frontiers are supposed to be the American front line in the next war.

The only appropriation which common sense and good judgment would make for Guam would be a small one for flowers for a memento to the temporary American adventure in the far east. That would get a bow from Japan and be consistent with the withdrawal from the Philippines. The Philippine act of independence and the naval fortification of Guam are contradictions. Which of the two represents American decision?

The line of Hawaii has been selected for the western defense. The eastern ought to run through Bermuda and the Leeward and Windward Islands. The insistence upon the Guam item in the air base bill is a foreign policy insanity. It reopens a subject which was supposed to be closed. Is the next demand to be for the repeal of the Philippine independence act? We thought after a generation of disputes and promises that was settled to the satisfaction of the Filipinos and the American people.

Our European friends may harmonize democracy and imperialism and may understand how a viceroy can be a democrat and how subject peoples can be free, but the dominant American opinion has been that you can't have both.

THE PLANNERS AT WORK AND PLAY.

The Mexican oil expropriations are to be discussed again by Mexican government representatives and spokesmen for the oil companies whose properties were taken. A settlement is not wholly a forlorn hope because Mexico is suffering the natural consequences of a revolutionary seizure of lands, resources, and facilities which the expropriators cannot manage successfully. Diminishing returns, high prices, limited production, and a disordered monetary system are having their results in hardships, distress, discontent, and shakiness of government.

The American spokesmen for the oil companies will be headed by Donald Richberg and Patrick Hurley. Mr. Hurley was secretary of war under Hoover. Mr. Richberg was the great New Deal coördinator. For a period when he was at the height of his career as a brain truster, social planner, and revolutionary reformer he was almost the President pro tem.

Mr. Richberg and Gen. Hugh Johnson headed the vanguard of the revolutionary forces when it was regarded as seditious not to salute the blue eagle as the bird of freedom. Mr. Richberg now represents the oil companies negotiating with a government in Mexico which has patterned itself upon New Deal communism. That is the only connection Mr. Richberg has made with what he used to call the forces of reaction. Gen. Johnson is now a journalist and is Mr. Ickes' pet aversion. Raymond Moley, who was one of the original Albany front porch brain trusters, preceded Gen. Johnson into conservative journalism with the support of Mr. Vanderbilt, whose yacht used to be at Mr. Roosevelt's disposal before he came to prefer the cruiser Houston.

Rexford Tugwell, who as a New Dealer carried the planned society through to its logical conclusions, advocating the control of capital and production by the federal government, retired from the New Deal when his frankness in exposure and exposition had become embarrassing to an administration which intended to go in the direction he was pointing but was unwilling to have the road map submitted to public scrutiny. Mr. Tugwell then made a temporary connection with the sugar business under his friend, Mr. Taussig, who also had contributed some items of thought to the Albany porch symposium.

A number of talented idea men of the original revolution have withdrawn from its activities to seek greener pastures and enjoy the emoluments of working for the other side. Their personal pursuits do credit to their sense of self-interest and, indeed, distinguish them from the surviving revolutionaries who, not having capabilities attractive to private enterprise, have been forced to content themselves with getting what they could out of the planned society and such connections as could be made without climbing over the fence.

BUYING POWER THE THING.

[Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News.]

It is what the wage will buy that counts.

On this basis, the American factory worker stands high. For he can buy four times as much food and clothing with an hour's wage as a German workman can; nine times as much as an Italian worker, and nearly twelve times as much as a Russian worker.

Free enterprise has achieved this. Other factors contribute, of course, although some of them could be connected with the free enterprise idea.

OLDEST IN CHICAGO?

Our query about the oldest building in Chicago [3-4-'39] brought immediate results. Contribs Edna Linderoth and Alfred S. Rosenfelder immediately came to bat with the following information, citing the Chicago Historical society as authority:

The oldest residence in Chicago may be found at 4526 Wabash avenue. It was built in 1836 by Henry B. Clarke, a farmer, on Michigan avenue near 16th street. In 1871 it was purchased by John Chrimes and moved to its present site. A daughter of Mr. Chrimes, Mrs. William H. Walter, now lives there.

"But I can go you one better," adds Miss Linderoth. "A tumbledown frame structure is older than this one. It is located on Wentworth avenue between 62d and 63d streets, and is now used as a vulcanizing shop. It was, before the great fire, an inn for people journeying into Chicago from the east and southeast over the wagon road now known as Vincennes avenue. People stopped at the town of Englewood overnight, and the rest of the way into the city was just one more day's journey. Englewood was a thriving village in those days."

SHALL IT HAPPEN AGAIN?

The months before and twisting pain of birth
Were hers, but Mary thought the coin was small
To pay for Jim, the finest son on earth.
And John, his dad, forgot the miles of hall
Next day, and grinned and passed out good cigars;
And bought a policy to school his heir—
With college 'most as far away as Mars.
Jim grew, with ills and much expense and wear
On Mary and his dad, became a Scout,
Played basketball, took high school in his stride,
And higher learning, too. The shabby, stout
Old pair who called him son near choked with pride.

Then overseas they got into a brawl;
Jim's country sent him there . . . and that was all.

Bruno of Flambeau Disappears.

The Hound of the Flambeau is no more. [See "The Five Dogs of Norland," 11-18-'38.]

He, if you recall, sire, was one of the Faithful Five who daily awaited the coming of Steward Stewart on the Ashland Limited with his panful of bones.

His sudden disappearance is mantled in mystery, but Steward Stewart has his suspicions. When we inquired as to what calamity he thought had overtaken his canine friend, he replied grimly, "The Indians ate him."

You may well realize, sire, how this sensational theory astounded us, so we pressed him to substantiate it. Drawing the stopper from the flask of claret, he poured into our goblet and said:

"You know, 'tis the heart of the Lac du Flambeau reservation; and it was at the time of their annual feast when Bruno did not come; and you know dog is their entrée. So two and two make four, do they not?"

He bit the words off sharplike, replaced the stopper, retired to his cubicle at the end of the diner and stood with his chin in his hand a long time, gazing at the floor. There was something like a dewdrop on one of his lashes.

I had the feeling, sire, that I should not like to be identified as one of those Indians in the presence of Mr. Stewart. Jake Irmiter.

The Bedside Manner of Dr. Jonquil.

The flu was not an unmitigated evil, for it brought the merry yellow jonquils to the house. And there they stand, perky heads swaying slightly on their long slender stems, engulfing the whole room in a flood of springtime. They make gay companions, too, for if one sits very quietly they begin to chatter among themselves, and their talk is all of sunshine, and robins caroling, and soft spring rains. And their jolly little faces are bright with anticipation. We have indeed captured spring in a Delft blue vase. Helene.

ARE WE DOWNHEARTED?

No more in fervent blanks and double-dashes
I'll damn all furnaces at six-fifteen,
The while I poke through unresponsive ashes
In hope some rosy coal may blush unseen.

No more the raucous locomotive's warning
Shall send me hurtling through the kitchen door
To race with others through the frosty morning
In that mad race for the six-fifty-four.

No more within the grimy, dim-lit smoker
I'll hear the same old grouches of the bunch,
Or lose in friendly (friendly? Heh!) draw poker
The money I'd been saving for my lunch.

No more, thank Heaven, though I starve tomorrow,
I'll punch the clock ere the eight-thirty bell,
Because my boss, in outward grief and sorrow,
Has laid me off. Tsk! Tsk! Now, ain't that hell.

A Fable for Book Swipers.

St. Anastasius, so the story runs, had a manuscript of the Bible which was worth eighteen florins, and one day a lay brother stole it from his cell. He took it to the next town and offered to sell it for sixteen florins. A purchaser asked to keep the book overnight for examination of its merits, and then straightaway carried it to Anastasius for appraisal.

The saintly monk recognized his own property, but merely answered:

"Yes, it is a good book and worth sixteen florins."

The purchaser went back to the thief and reported Anastasius' remark, whereupon the latter was stricken with remorse and would not sell at all. He returned the book to its owner, who had been too noble to betray him, and begged forgiveness with tears in his eyes.

[This fanciful legend, with a moral for book pilferers, was translated by Theodore W. Koch, Northwestern university librarian, from "Tales for Bibliophiles," published in Weimar, Germany, in 1934. It has been used as a book mark for open-shelf volumes in Deering library.]

Comical use of "hall runners" [long words in foreign languages] has been discontinued in this column. The printers have been running up and down them so long that their tongues are hanging out from exhaustion. Thanks to contributors for many beautiful unpublished specimens.

SAFEGUARDING THE CHILD FROM BURNS.

DESPITE the growing interest in the protection of the worker in industry, and many admonitions relative to avoiding accidents in the home, the incidence of burns remains high. Nearly 7,000 fatalities occur in the United States each year. Half of these are among tots under 5 years of age. It would seem that with just a little more supervision this huge total could be lowered appreciably.

When we consider the large number of household mishaps from which youngsters recover, we can well understand that a generous proportion will carry the "scars of battle" for life, which may have the effect of lowering morale. At its best skin grafting—a tedious and expensive process—may be able to repair the damage but partially.

What is a burn? As most of us know, tissues can function only within a narrow temperature range. Just as the white of an egg will coagulate if dropped into hot water, so the albumin of the cells will clot if too much heat is supplied. When this occurs these structures are no longer able to perform their duties and, because they have lost their power to participate in the activities of the body, they are regarded as waste material and are disposed of as soon as possible. Now, the effect upon the system of an injury of this type depends upon its extent and depth; in other words, upon the quantity of living material that has been destroyed. Then, too, so much absorption from the area may take place that the victim will behave as though he were poisoned.

The first thing that must be thought of is how to combat the influence upon the nervous system—shock—even before the local wound is attended to. This demands relief of pain, the replacement of fluids as well as minerals and the maintenance of warmth.

For the past fifteen years great advances have been made—with consequent saving of life—as a result of the suggestion of E. D. Davidson that absorption of toxic materials from the surface could be greatly decreased by means of tannic acid. A water solution of this substance may be sprayed on so that a protective coating will be formed. This has the ability to prevent mechanical irritation and is a great factor in the alleviation of suffering, as the nerve filaments are thus saved from harm.

Notwithstanding numerous modifications which have been proposed, this plan remains the most salutary. It is easy to employ, as sterile gauze may be soaked in the liquid and then laid over the injured surfaces. Bandages are thus not required and heat may be applied by means of a cradle carrying from two to four electric light bulbs. With this procedure bacteria—always present in the skin—are unable to grow, at least extensively. One of the articles in the home medicine chest may well be a small, wide mouthed bottle which contains powdered tannic acid from which a preparation [5 per cent] may be made quickly and used even before the doctor comes.

Sometimes an excellent emergency measure is to permit the patient to drink dilute salt solution—one-third of a teaspoonful of common salt in a full glass of water. If this can be done within the first hour it may aid recovery immeasurably, as the body loses certain chemicals—particularly chlorides—and the sooner they can be replaced the better. Thus the balance of the circulation is preserved and the patient is not deprived of fluid.

After-care and nursing are of equal importance. If the sufferer is to emerge victorious much will depend upon the maintenance of a high state of nutrition with generous quantities of vitamin C, the control of infection, and the avoidance of contracting scars.

But prevention is far more important than cure. Handles of dishes on the stove may be kept turned so that small children cannot grasp them. We can screen open harths and keep matches in "high places," but firms is far less menacing than boiling water or hot grease. The kitchen may well be forbidden to our lads and lassies until the period of insatiable curiosity has been outgrown.

COLD SORES.

B. F. writes:

1. Why do I develop cold sores or fever blisters at the slightest chill?
2. What's good for them?

REPLY.

1. Your resistance is low and the nervous system is easily and quickly affected. Cold sores are of virus origin.
2. Touch the lesion at frequent intervals with spirits of camphor. Get more sleep and keep the mouth, throat, and nose clean.

MEAT SHOULD BE COOKED.

N. S. writes: Is there any advantage in eating meat raw? I like mine cooked through.

REPLY.

So do I. In fact, raw meat may be harmful. Tapeworm, trichinosis, and other diseases may be caused by the consumption of underdone meats.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband's brother died some weeks ago leaving no children. The lawyer told his wife the entire estate was left to her. My husband was not shown the will, but my sister-in-law's relatives have seen it.

1. Can he do anything?
2. Has he a right to share in estate? We also have two children. We heard that the will was made out so that when they both died the nieces and nephews would come in for a share.
3. Can this be changed?
4. Could my children tie up estate?

R. A.

1. He can insist that the will be filed in the office of the clerk of the Probate court.
2. Not unless the will gives him the right.
3. In general, a testator can change his will at any time before his death.
4. In order to set aside the will they would have to prove undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity.

MISS ANDERSON AND THE D. A. R.

Winnetka, Ill., March 4.—A great deal of publicity has been given the refusal of the Daughters of the American Revolution to allow Marian Anderson the use of their hall in Washington, D. C., but I have not yet seen the press release given out several days ago by Mrs. Henry M. Robert Jr., president-general. You may be interested in having a few facts from a national officer who attended the national board meeting on Feb. 1, when this matter was presented and acted upon.

Howard university asked for Constitution hall for a concert by Miss Anderson on Easter Sunday, April 9. The manager informed the applicants that a symphony concert was scheduled for that date, and when asked for a future booking, informed them of the policy put into effect seven years ago, prohibiting the lease of the hall to other than white artists. Previous to this time each application was considered on its merit, with the result that many difficulties and misunderstandings arose. This ruling does not bar colored persons from the audience.

The sponsors of the Anderson concert apparently tried, unsuccessfully, to engage one of several large halls in Washington, including the auditorium of the White High school. Congress has, by law, separated white and Negro students of the District of Columbia and many commercial halls and theaters have followed this example in catering to the public. Constitution hall is privately owned, and the rentals received from concerts and lectures are barely sufficient to defray the expense of maintenance of the building for the annual meetings of the membership. It cannot be classed with halls that are purely commercial, though it does pay a considerable tax to the government because of these rental receipts.

Immediately following the interview between the concert sponsors and the manager of Constitution hall a publicity campaign of attack started by way of letters to the local press and telegrams and letters to headquarters. The manager had suggested the right of appeal to the national board of management for a reversal of policy, but it is an astounding fact that no such appeal was made until long after public opinion began to take sides.

In voting to maintain the policy that was forced upon them by circumstances seven years ago [and waived on several occasions since then], the national board made no attempt to set itself up as a critic of art, nor to pass judgment upon the prevailing sentiment and custom of the capital city. In view of this condition, for which the D. A. R. is in no way responsible, one wonders why the critics have not gone to the root of the matter instead of singling out this one group for attack.

A. H. [Mrs. Vinton E.] Sisson,
Librarian General, N. S. D. A. R.

IT SEEMS A BIT IMPROBABLE.

Logansport, Ind., Feb. 25.—Late in the afternoon of Jan. 27, returning to Mexico City from Taxco, which is about 100 miles south of the Mexican capital, I saw a rainbow. This rainbow was in the northeast sky. Since the one observed in Chicago was in the southwest, I now wonder if I saw the same one from the opposite side. Carle W. Wagner.

DISAPPEARING CARS.

Chicago, March 1.—If I am not too presumptuous, may I ask just what happens to the Montrose avenue street cars around eight o'clock in the morning? They rattle by the house all night long, and in the morning seem to vanish completely. Dorothy K. Besch.

HERO WORSHIP.

Chicago, March 5.—Can anything teach those over-zealous enthusiasts attending the Nelson Eddy concerts that they do their favorite a lot of no good by their lack of good audience manners? Certainly, the man and his voice have no more sincere admirer than I, so this criticism is not from lack of sympathy with their delight. But breaking into the finish of his songs with premature applause is mean to him and to the rest of us. The use of cameras at a concert is worse selfishness than wearing view-obstructing hats; it must be annoying to the singer. And were those hasty ones on the stage who rose too soon, prepared to hinder his departure, perhaps autograph hounds? They only hampered his generous giving of desired encores.

Were I in Mr. Eddy's position I'd refuse the sale of any seats on the stage. It seems to attract too many who do not merit the privilege.

Beulah Barker.

DIRT AND DUST.

Chicago, March 3.—Most of the snow is melted, and the streets and sidewalks are covered with dirt and dust, and soon the winds will be blowing it about with the resultant respiratory diseases. Why cannot the city see that this dirt is swept up and removed before the winds come? Certainly, with all the unemployed, some means should be had to accomplish this. A few measures taken now would save many cases of sinus disturbances, eye conditions, and throat and lung disturbances. Osteopathic Physician.

AMENDMENT PROPOSED.

Chicago, March 3.—The constitution of the United States needs badly an amendment to the effect that when the government of this country fails to serve its purpose it could be forced to resign through referendum vote two years after the inauguration of the President. The New Dealers dug their own hole and in they went, head over heels, and now they find themselves so deep in that hole that only a great war or something short of a miracle can bring them up to the surface. A Former Democrat.

GERMANY'S COLONIES.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Your correspondent who complains of the allies taking Germany's colonies at the close of the world war should consider that if Germany in 1914 had stayed at home and minded her own business instead of invading France and Belgium she would still have her colonies. They were taken to punish her for all the misery and trouble she caused and to help pay some of the costs of the war. Louis Girard.

ANTI-STARLING.

Grand Junction, Mich., March 3.—I live in Michigan, where starlings are despised for their war on every living feathered friend. Every nest of other birds is destroyed, as well as eggs and fledglings. Like weasels, they kill from the pure lust of slaughter and destruction. Their only natural enemy is cold weather. I say down with the starling; save the song bird. Ruth De Rocher.

A FRIENDLY WORD.

Evanston, Ill., March 1.—I have read in The Tribune of March 1 the pathetic and eloquent letter from one of the students involved in the recent tragedy at the state university. I hope that after getting the raw deal he was given by the campus authorities some broad-minded business man will give him a break when he comes to Chicago to look for employment. I believe that many citizens who review the facts and have a belief in a square deal will demand that these boys be reinstated and allowed to continue at the university or to leave with a clean record. Fairplay.

AN OLD IRISH CLOCK.

Warsaw, Ind., Feb. 26.—In the Voice of the People one day last week I was interested in reading a letter about an old clock. My parents brought a grandfather clock from Ireland which must be about 200 years old. It has the name "Aickin, Cork" on the dial. The case is of inlaid rosewood and the dial is a handsome brass one. The weights are very heavy and the key is more like a crank than a key. It originally told the day of the month, but does not do so any more. It keeps good time.

[Mrs.] Catherine Dennis.

HE LIKES VANDENBERG.

Chicago, March 1.—It was hinted yesterday by one of The Tribune's writers that the popularity of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg is being eclipsed by young Dewey of New York and Senator Taft of Ohio. While I feel that we of Illinois have a couple of equally worthy comers in Dwight H. Green and C. Weyland Brooks, it is my very earnest judgment that these four young stalwart Republicans are yet in the foyer of service and ability in comparison to the senator of Michigan. Walter B. Freeman.

PITTSFIELD'S OLD CLOCK.

Pittsfield, Ill., March 1.—In Friday's Tribune I read about a grandfather's clock 230 years old, owned by Mrs. Barrett of Macon, Ill. The Public library at Pittsfield, Ill., has one brought to America in 1664, making it at least 275 years old. We do not know how much older it really is. Our clock keeps perfect time. The clock was presented to the library by the late Fred B. Jones of Chicago.

Helen S. Shadel,
Librarian, Pittsfield, Ill.

HIS MORNING NOURISHMENT.

Waukegan, Ill., March 2.—In spite of the many bricks you find in your bouquets, I, for one, still feel that the 2 cents I spend daily for The Tribune brings me many times that much in value received. Thanks for a very integral part of my breakfast.

H. L. Miller.

SAMARITAN.

Chicago, March 3.—I wish to extend my thanks to the very kind gentleman who brought my little girl home with her injured dog which was struck by a reckless, heartless driver on Kimball avenue and Dawson. The driver did not stop to aid a hysterical child and a helpless animal. Mrs. Adam Grenda.

Fooey on Fads! Grandma, Act Your Real Age

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

If we would take our fashion hints, illustrations, and showings literally, we would feel that a "back to youth" movement threatens to engulf us. You've seen the girlish guimpe dresses, the Breton sailor hats, Mary Jane patents, the short schoolgirl skirts, and other fancies and gadgets capitalizing youth at its earliest stages.

We would like to raise a hand right here to restrain that impulse. Not altogether, but there's a limit to how far to go back.

There's an amusing play in which are depicted two elderly women, one taking her years in graceful stride, the other a caricature of all the age-deceiving tricks of dress, diet, cosmetics, which really do not fool when extreme measures are adopted to fool. The dignified older woman had her moment of triumph, with the audience let in on it, in an revealing view of the skittish one mounting a stairway. Mounting it as a bent, tired, old woman for all the deceptive front put up before!

In a noonday audience we saw the same theme played out by an oldish woman jitterbugging her way in on spike heels, her manner charged with excessively bubbling spirit; her knee-length swing skirt revealing veined and ugly legs. It's against such unhappy disclosures of womankind that we raise our hand. Not because women aren't entitled to look as young as they can, but because of the extremists one is bound to find in any movement. More, however, because every age has its own charm.

Our fear is that the back-to-youth movement may see a revival of that horrible era of flat-chested, knee-skirted women of mother and grandmother age who neither glorified the age they tried to leave nor the one they tried to emulate.

We've had such a lovely peace in this respect for some years now, and such gorgeously lovely older women have earned justly deserved favors for being their age, that we just don't want any virus to the contrary upsetting them again.

Words and Music Team.

The first glimpse of Lorenz Hart, of the famed song writing team of Hart and Rodgers, in town for the opening of I Married an Angel, brought to mind a comment attributed to his partner, Richard Rodgers: "I take Larry by the hand, lead him into the children's department of any good store, and have him outfitted from head to foot—a short distance."

Hart, who writes the lyrics to Rodgers' melodies, is only five feet tall, dynamic, and given to smoking large cigars. Typical sample of his lyrics: the opening lines of the chorus of the name song of the play: Have you heard, I married an angel; I'm sure that the change'll be awfully good for me. Others of their songs you may remember: With a Song in My Heart, Ten Cents a Dance, The Lady Is a Tramp.

• • •

Rodgers and Hart were guests of honor, with Zorina, and Dennis King, Vivienne Segal, and Walter Slezak and other members of the cast present, at a small gathering for the press in the lounge of the Ambassador East, Zorina wearing Lily Dache's wide meshed green wool snood, adorned with violets, over her long bob, and Schiaparelli's dress that buttons up with three inch hand mirrors. Her ballet impresario husband, George Balanchine, was there too. Also Lina Abarbanell, former star of The Merry Widow, now assistant to Producer Dwight Deere Wiman.

• • •

Nice looking, urbane, humorous music writer Rodgers told a story that had to do with his small daughter. Her teacher makes a practice of having the children tell stories, and because the little Rodgers child invariably began her stories, "Once upon a time there was a king and queen . . ." she suggested a variation.

"You've been studying about Alaska," she said. "Why not tell a story about Alaska."

Little Miss Rodgers dutifully obeyed. "There was a little girl who lived in Alaska named Gloo," she began. "One day she was asked to tell a story in school, so she told this story: 'Once upon a time there was a king and queen . . .'"

Which brings to mind that when 8 year old Frederick Lawrence of Chicago was asked, in composition class, to use the word heard in a sentence he wrote: "Have you heard I married an angel?"

Setting for Romance.

There is a garden room on the seventh floor of the Merchandise Mart, along with the home building exhibits. It has ivy hung walls, benches, a Diana fountain, even a well with an old oaken bucket. Lighting, moonlight effect. Every day between 12 and 1 o'clock a boy and girl come in and hang around, holding hands and looking in each other's eyes.

Setting It Straight.

Mention was made in a recent column of a "Mexican" in Santa Fe. Walter R. Floyd, in a letter of mild complaint, reminded us that there are, in the main, three classifications of the people who live in the vicinity of Santa Fe—Anglos, Spanish, and Indians. There are few Mexicans as far north as Santa Fe, he adds, and the people often called Mexican are Spanish, or Spanish mixed with Indian. They justly are insulted at being called Mexican when they are not, and have sworn allegiance to the flag of the United States, though in Spanish. . . . Spanish-American citizens acclaim George Washington as the father of their country, too, even though they phrase it: Primero en la guerra, primero en la paz, y primero en los corazones de sus paisanos.

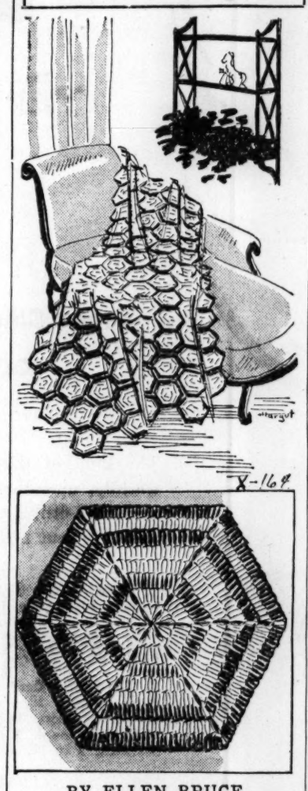
An Old-Fashioned Quilt Design Is Motif of Afghan



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Old-fashioned quilt patterns furnish an excellent source of inspiration for crocheted afghan designs. The "Old-Fashioned Flower Garden" design for an afghan is as popular as the quilt block from which it was adapted, and it is not difficult to crochet. The same variety of colors may be used for a chaise longue cover. It requires a minimum of time to create one of these six-sided medallions, and the colors are of individual choice.

For instructions for crocheting the "Old-Fashioned Flower Garden" afghan, No. X-164, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

When you've grown tired of having potatoes baked, boiled, and scalloped, it's high time to dig out a recipe for a hot potato salad. There are many good variations of this well seasoned dish, but not many are better than the one I'm including in today's short-cut dinner menu. I tried it for the first time just the other night. It was fun to make and fun to eat.

There's nothing at all complicated about this dinner, although when it is served it appears and tastes like a meal that might have involved a good deal of bother.

SHORT CUT DINNER.
Hot Potato Salad with Steamed Frankfurters
Buttered Sliced Beets
Apple, Banana and Nut Salad
Hasty Cake with Quick Chocolate Frosting
Coffee

Hot Potato Salad.

[Serves four.]

4 medium potatoes
3 tablespoons bacon fat or butter
1 medium onion, chopped fine
3 stalks celery, diced
1 tablespoon minced green pepper
1 pimiento, minced
2 tablespoons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 bouillon cube
1¼ cups hot water
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Slice potatoes and cook until barely tender in boiling, salted water. Do not let them become mushy. Melt bacon fat or butter and sauté onion, celery, and green pepper in it until soft. Add flour and seasonings, and blend. Dissolve bouillon cube in hot water, add vinegar, and pour into the skillet with the other ingredients [except potatoes.] Cook and stir until thickened. Add pimiento and pour mixture over hot potatoes, mixing well but lightly, in order not to break up the potatoes. These potatoes may be kept hot in the top of a double boiler.

To cook the frankfurters, wipe them and place in a pan with a cover. Add enough water barely to cover the bottom of the pan, put the cover in place, and cook very gently for ten to fifteen minutes.

Fresh beets or canned ones may be used for the vegetable dish. If fresh, pare and slice them and cook in a small amount of boiling, salted water, with a cover on the saucepan. When tender, remove the cover, let most of the water cook off, and add butter and seasonings.

"Hasty cake" is my name for those wonderful cake mixes.

The quick chocolate frosting I have in mind also is made from a mix.

Cake and frosting mixes are a boon to a busy woman and an impressive "front" for a poor cook, I might add! I can tell you the brand names if you will write or telephone.

Inspiration from the South

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

Inspired by the fashions popular now in the south, this simple frock with tailored lines is an ace possibility for your late spring and early summer wardrobe. The lines are primarily the princess variety, with deft paneling to achieve marvelous silhouette results. The high V neckline is collarless. Down the front of the bodice may be buttons or a zipper. The two side panels do double duty in that they furnish a location, high on the bodice, for two rather capacious pockets, into one of which you may tuck a kerchief to harmonize. Further harmonizing contrast may be afforded in a belt at the waist, but no belt is necessary to fit the frock to the figure.

Plain shades and all kinds of prints are equally suitable for this model, which makes up well in cottons, linens, and silks.

Style No. 2534 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Parental Bias Often Is Cause of Punishment

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"Where are you bound, Sam?"

"I'm on my way to see old Hammond. I'm going to present that idea for the new soap and soap powder packaging. Took me a month to get the appointment."

"You picked a poor time, old man. At 12 o'clock old Hammond's grouchy as a bear, hungry. He's a great eater, you know. About half an hour after lunch is the cream of the day to get him in a receptive mood."

Some of us who are parents are about as affected as that by the state we happen to be in when our children behave in certain ways. How honest can you be with yourself? Try it, anyhow. If you're having trouble managing your child ask yourself a few point blank questions.

Haven't you ever, after you've been cross or punished your child, had a sudden flash of light and realized that he hadn't done a thing to merit your actions?

Haven't you found yourself being irritable or jumping on your boy or girl without any logical excuse?

Far too often our blame of the children is due to the fact that we are tired or hurried, or personally inconvenienced by something they have done.

Some parents' attitude toward their children's actions is dictated largely by how much those actions interfere with their own comfort, convenience, or pride. It is, in fact, almost the basis of their management. Naturally their children will resent such control and sooner or later will show that resentment in some form or other.

Other parents only occasionally will be snappy or punish their children unreasonably, as when they are tired or hurried or are irked by household cares.

These motives for management result in a very uneven treatment and one which is very confusing to the small child. Even though he is not yet conscious of logic, this unreasonableness is bewildering to him.

For example, if he can pound gleefully and violently with his blocks one day and his mother pays no attention, and if another day the same noise brings down wrath upon his head, how can he understand or know what to expect?

"How to Gain Obedience Without Punishment" is the name of a booklet sent out upon receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

In no other department of bridge is it necessary to use arithmetic more knowingly than in sacrifice bidding. I refer particularly to match-point duplicate play. The potential points that the opponents will earn from a given contract must be compared, not approximately but precisely, with the probable penalty to be incurred by a sacrifice bid. This is not always as simple a matter as it may appear. A recent tournament was won because a player shrewdly refused to sacrifice at six clubs against a five heart contract, although he had fully decided to sacrifice at seven clubs if the opponents went on to their slam. This was the hand:

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 hearts	4 clubs	4 no trump	Pass
5 diamonds	Pass	5 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

North-South were using the Blackwood convention in which the four no trump bid announces nothing, but does ask partner how many aces he holds. Obviously, it did not work out very well in this hand because the slam was cold, but could not be safely reached with the information that was exchanged. However, our concern in this case is not with the North-South bidding. It is with the sound and imaginative action of East in refusing to sacrifice at six clubs, even after his partner had entered the auction with a four club bid. East figured the proposition this way:

If the opponents were to stop at five hearts, even if they made six, they would earn only 480 points. East's tremendous club length made it virtually a certainty that there could be no defensive club trick, hence it would be far too optimistic to count on two outside tricks to defeat a slam contract. A six club sacrifice bid might be doubled, but there was at least an equal chance that the opponents would stagger into a slam. If they did East would be obliged to go to seven clubs, since he could not possibly double six hearts, nor even stand a double from his partner. Presumably, if West doubled a slam bid, he would be counting on two aces, and East knew that one of these was a forlorn hope. Aside from the risk of pushing the opponents to a slam, there was the further consideration that a six club bid, if permitted to stand, might go down three tricks instead of two. In that case, if five hearts were the limit of the opponents' hands, East would have made a very bad bargain, inasmuch as he would have paid a 500 point penalty to save only 450 points. In passing to five hearts, however, East made the mental reservation that if the opponents went to a slam he would save at the seven level. The mathematics of the proposition made this reasoning correct. If the opponents were to bid and make six hearts they would score 980 points and obviously East-West would not go down anything like that amount at seven clubs.

The actual contract of five hearts gave North-South almost a bottom score on the board, since at most tables six hearts was either bid freely or the less imaginative East players pushed their opponents into the lay-down slam.

Many Friends Dedicate New Cradle Sunday

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE friends of The Cradle will come from miles around on Sunday afternoon to attend the dedication of the new home of this institution in Evanston. Not all of The Cradle's friends will be there, of course, for they would have to come from the four corners of the world. There are Cradle babies in such far away places as China, South Africa, Manila, and Hollywood, and it is doubtful if any of the parents of these Cradle alumni will be there on Sunday. Probably they all will be listening on their radios when Dr Horace J. Bridges describes the dedicatory ceremony for fifteen minutes, starting at 4:45 o'clock, Chicago time.

Sunday is the sixteenth anniversary of the dedication of The Cradle's first home, a little house in Ridge avenue, Evanston. The new home, a three story structure at Ridge avenue and Simpson street, is more beautiful, more complete in its equipment than even Mrs. William B. Walrath probably ever dreamed of having. She is the founder and managing director of the adopting society that has found homes for more than 3,600 infants during the sixteen years it has existed.

One of the two friends who helped Mrs. Walrath found the society, Mrs. Michael F. Gallagher, died several years ago. The lovely, restful lounge of the new house is a memorial to her. The Eleanor Garrigue Gallagher lounge it is called.

Other Founder to Be Present.

Mrs. Walrath, Mr. Gallagher and his daughter and son, Mrs. Charles Butland and David Gallagher, have furnished the lounge, which will be used for directors' meetings, in as charming style as though it were a living room in one of their own homes.

Mrs. John C. Slade, the other of Mrs. Walrath's friends who helped her make a dream come true, has been chairman of the furnishings committee for the new building, so she has had a hand, too, in selecting the soft green rug, stunning furniture, colorful Chinese lamps and chintz draperies that make the room warm and livable, smart and modern.

Mrs. Slade will be at Sunday's dedication, but she will not be taking an active part in it, for she is in the hospital convalescing from an emergency operation. She is leaving the hospital Friday and, rain or shine, plans to be at The Cradle Sunday. She will not be able to have the cocktail party later that day, however, that she had planned for Alec Templeton, who will give a recital as part of the program.

Frank S. Cunningham, president of The Cradle society since its incorporation; A. L. Bowen, superintendent of the department of public welfare of Illinois; Dr. Gladys Dick, noted bacteriologist and originator of the Dick aseptic nursery technique, which eliminates cross infection from hand borne germs; Dr. Esmond Ray Long, director of Henry Phipps institute of the University of Pennsylvania, who was in charge of the installation of the ultra-violet ray method of destroying air borne germs in the new building; and the Rev. Harold L. Bowen of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Evanston, will be the other speakers at the dedicatory exercises.

Mrs. Jane Holabird Towne, one of the original board of directors of the society, is coming from Washington, D. C., to attend the ceremonies. In charge of the program are Mrs. Walrath, Mrs. Slade, Mrs. Henry M. Dawes, Mrs. Frederick H. Scott, Mrs. Lucius A. Crowell, whose husband is chairman of the building committee; Mrs. Robert E. Wood, Mrs. Howard W. Fenton, and Mrs. Robert F. Ferguson. Next Monday night The Cradle society is giving a dinner for Dr. Long and Dr. Iwan Rosenstern, clinical director of The Cradle.

"I MARRIED AN ANGEL."

Musical comedy in two acts. Book adapted by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart from a play by John Vaszary. Music by Richard Rodgers. Lyrics by Lorenz Hart. Settings by Jo Mielziner. Costumes by John Hambleton. Choreography by George Balanchine. Staged by Joshua Logan. Presented by Dwight Deere Wiman in the Grand Opera house, Tuesday evening, March 7, 1939.

THE PLAYERS.

Vera Zorina, Dennis King, Vivienne Segal, Walter Slezuk, Charles Walters, Audrey Christie, Charles Laskey, the Dunham brothers, Ruth Urban, Janis Dremann, Dorothy Allen, Sylvia Stone, Diana Gaylen, Ann Courtney, and many others.

BY CECIL SMITH.

After many months of withering drouth our lyric stage has now blossomed forth with the most lustrous musical comedy we have seen in many seasons. Last night a joyous capacity audience folded "I Married an Angel" to its collective heart and set the Grand Opera house to ringing with the sort of exuberant, repeated demonstrations that only a genuine smash hit can arouse.

Even more than the excellently geared performances of cast and chorus, the luxurious mounting of "I Married an Angel" deserves immediate tribute. None of the musical comedies of the last few years has compared with the new arrival in downright sumptuousness of costuming and stage decoration, and yet none has exhibited more triumphantly good taste from first to last.

As a permanent fixture of the setting Joe Mielziner has devised a combination of curtains and panels providing a stage-within-a-stage arrangement, enabling the action to take place rapidly on a variety of interesting visual planes. Many of the furnishings are whisked in and off in sight of the audience by means of an ingenious treadmill running across the stage. The treadmill is doubly useful, for it plays an unusual part in the choreography of some of the dances.

The performance really seemed like a première and not merely a hand-me-down, economical carbon copy of a New York success.

Every member of the original cast is here, except for two chorus girls. This in itself is something of a record, for it takes the memory of a real old timer to recall a single musical show that has reached Chicago without at least one or two important changes in principal rôles.

The much advertised loveliness of Vera Zorina is no artificial talking point. Her first descent, wings and all, into Dennis King's study is the most breathless moment of the theatrical year. Throughout the evening she accomplishes the miracle of never dispelling that first illusion. She remains no less a delight when she talks with her tinkling voice and foreign inflection than when she dances.

George Balanchine's dance episodes are excellently composed, for they never become arty or lose touch with the theater of the American people. The geographical sequence of dances representing the honeymoon leaves the audience gasping, with its climax of a blizzard in the Eskimo country.

The cast is well balanced in every department. Mr. King plays the romantic lead with the same elegant warmth that has endeared him to Chicago ever since "The Vagabond King" and sings better than in most in the bargain. Vivienne Segal, turned comedienne, achieves such pungency that I wish we had been seeing more of her all the time. She sings with a clear voice and great lyric fervor.

Walter Slezak, who has not been watching his calories, is a richly amusing partner for Miss Segal. Charles Walters and Audrie Christie manage to slip in some deft, fast eccentric dancing. A host of lesser performers fit their duties as a glove fits the hand.

While this is not the most notable of Richard Rodgers' scores, there are lilting tunes and an unfailing sense of situation and movement. Mr. Hart's lyrics, as usual, are miracles of impertinent rime and meter.

"I Married an Angel" is the luckiest break the Chicago stage could ask for.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We feel very strongly that one of the best of the hand creams on the market isn't as well known as it should be. It's one item in a whole line of exceptionally fine beauty preparations and makeup accessories. And it's absolutely tops in quality.

Women who have used it for any length of time can testify to its effectiveness. It's soothing to hands that are chapped or roughened; it's also a protective that guards against these very menaces.

The cream is pink, very light in texture, and has a lovely fragrance. You need use very little at a time. Our favorite method of using it—one that's worked out very well, too—is to use just a smidge after every hand washing, working it in well. It disappears almost instantly and you have no difficulty at all in drawing on gloves because it isn't the least bit sticky.

At night, when we have more time, we like to slather the cream on and give ourself the benefit of a little extra massage and oiling. You've no idea how easy it is to keep the skin of your hands smooth and snowy if you take the necessary brief time and use a preparation that does exactly what it was designed to do.

Every woman, whether she is a housewife who plunges her hands in water several times a day or a stenographer who has nothing but the usual city grime to contend with, finds it imperative to keep her hands looking well. There's nothing more depressing and more trying than to be aware of the fact that your hands look OLD and work-ridden. It's an experience that comes to every woman who neglects her hands. Even though you are satisfied with yours and feel your hands are not as bad as some you see, you should get the hand lubricating habit. You'll not regret it.

A cream like our pink pet, that makes the hand care program simple but efficient, should be your standby.

Tells Co-ed Conference Stenography Is Door to a Business Career

If you're a secretary, you're in luck. Stenography is a woman's gateway to a career and success in business.

Miss Esther C. Stamats of the Y. W. C. A. made this assertion last night to co-eds at Northwestern university. She was the first speaker at a three day vocational conference for women, sponsored by the university's Women's Self-Government association.

"The average employer has these criticisms of many college women," she said, "They are snobbish. They are unprepared. And they are not satisfied with routine work, even at first."

Half of the co-eds enrolled at the conference want to be personnel directors. Many expressed an interest in retailing and the radio field.

Retailing, they were told, offers women more opportunities than any other vocation. Not only are there more jobs available, Miss Stamats pointed out, but there is more equality of the sexes in merchandising, and the work span is longer.

And the best all round vocation for women? Marriage, of course, says Miss Stamats.

Spring Buying Should Start with a Suit

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Spring wardrobes start with a suit. You can choose a brief bolero jacket teamed with a very short skirted dress or a twosome of gored flared skirt and a jacket that hugs the ribs, curves up smartly around the neckline, and is without benefit of collar. Or you may prefer the new, longer length jacket and comparatively straight skirt combine. Whatever you choose, suits are the first important buy of the year. Spring showings, while rather bewildering in kind, color, and style, are complete enough to satisfy the most exacting.

Young, crisply fresh, navy blue suits need no fanfare, but if you crave something different see the navy blue creations with dotted silk accents . . . vest, bow tie, at the side, hem facing, or petticoat. Stripes provide other contrasts either in a short sleeved shirtwaist top, a striped wool waist-length jacket, or bindings or bands of the multicolored striped material.

Navy blue suits without contrast are made with exquisite workmanship showing in the perfect streamlining, the clever pockets, the seaming, and the tricky button and buttonhole trim. Spanking white accents in pique or heavy thick ribbed silk appear as lapel flower, turnover collars, or edging peeping out from under the hemline. These are typical early spring finds. Such white contrasts can be alternated with pastel or strong color later in the season.

Two piece suits are made with skirts that flare smartly, with the flare well down around the lower edge. The skirt itself cut in gores so that a smooth hipline and neat normal waistline are stressed. Jackets for such skirts are made with great distinction . . . softer silhouettes, half belts, numerous pockets, lavish attention to such unusual but typical 1939 fashion details as tapering tucks, tucks in sunray formation, quilting, appliqued bands, and semi-attached bows and loops, or braided insets.

Dress parade suits, scheduled to arrive later in the season, will be made of old-fashioned elegant fabrics such as bengaline and moires and similar luxurious heavy silks of dull texture.

Fashion photograph . . . pale colored spring fur jackets are worn over dark colored suits and simple daytime dresses. They are also effective with evening clothes. Cut in long sophisticated lines, these short fur jackets are not only practical but high fashion. This model is of natural wolf in a neutral beige color, cut with short sleeves and high squared off shoulders.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

So You Want to Write a Movie?

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

[In which the famous story editor of Twentieth Century-Fox answers a lot of questions you'd like to ask about writing for the movies.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 7.

I'd like to tell you something about the people who write for the movies. continuous rebuffs, practically no encouragement, and all gates barred, still continues to write for the movies. Not about the script writers in the studios, nor very much about the novelists and the playwrights who give the script writers something to do tearing up their stuff. But mostly about your nation-wide public itself, which, in spite of continuous rebuffs, practically no encouragement, and all gates barred, still continues to write for the movies.

There was a reason for it—in the beginning. When they shot pictures in barns, considered three reels a superfeature and any broken down thespian a star, almost any one who could produce the semblance of a photographic story was welcome on the meager lots and hastily scrambled originals were salable. They had no money to buy big plays or novels then. Those they couldn't pirate they let alone. Things got tougher for the amateur writers as pictures got better, and pictures got better fast. Pictures began to get real money then, and they began to spend some of it for real material. But still no holds were barred to the Golden Gloves talent. The amateur could show his stuff without let or hindrance

Then came the war, and prohibition, and gangsterism. I have always thought movie blackmail, as practiced on story departments, was really a side growth of a generally lawless age. It is a simple art based mainly on the assumption—nay, the well-known fact—that there are only a few primary plots in the world and if you can establish definitly that you sent in your draft of one of these, in some form or other, you are ready to collect plenty when at any time in the future the studio produces anything, however remote, which has some of the same basic elements. To be sure, your story was returned, but the studio had it for a day, stole your idea, gave you nothing, waited till you had probably forgotten, and then—the rich stinkers—made a million out of it. There are plenty of lawyers willing to take your case on a contingency basis, and once there were plenty of juries willing to listen—but not so many nowadays.

Now, it is highly unfair to say that most people who send their literary wares to the studios are animated by such motives of direct action. But enough have been to burn studio fingers plenty. Hence the established practice today in almost every studio in America: unsolicited contributions are sent back, unopened, registered mail.

Of all the professions dentistry seems most susceptible to the pangs of penmanship. Next come the doctors, but not in the same way. Your doctor is too busy to sit down and write DISSOLVE IN, CLOSE UP, AND FADE OUT. He waits usually until he finishes a career of honor and service to humanity and then writes his memoirs. His agents then wipe out a large part of the general love in which the doctor is held by their persistent efforts to sell the memoirs for a movie. More motion pictures about doctors and hospitals and nurses have been made in the last two years than ever before. But doctors have had little to do with them except as technical advisers after the original literary fact. A few medical men, perhaps following the early example of Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes or Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, have turned to authorship with splendid results. But they are the exceptions.

Lawyers and preachers—hardly ever. The training for a brief is not good dialogue practice. And sermons don't make snappy third acts. Of course, as in everything else, there have been notable exceptions such as Arthur Train. But the exceptions of bar and pulpit are rarest of all. Reporters? Lord help us, yes! As every one of Napoleon's men was supposed to have a mythical marshal's baton in his knapsack, so every reporter once had a mythical play that he was going to write—and retire on the ensuing fortune. That they seldom wrote it—please note such exceptions as Bayard Veiller and Eugene Walter—didn't alter the fact. Nowadays the boys don't bother so much with plays. They write screen originals. A few make the grade. Most don't. And the reason they don't, unfortunately, is not because the reporter hasn't the story equipment, but because he can't or won't take the time to write his story fully or properly, or create living characters. He dashes off a plot, and wonders why it won't sell. A good motion picture today is only 20 per cent plot and 80 per cent people—real people.

In the old days literary or dramatic yearning was largely a female complaint. Men were shy about it. Diagnosis of the emotions seemed immodest to the suspendered sex. But not any more. The universality of the motion picture, plus the radio, has made every man his own Shakespeare. Every one can be a writer, say the advertisments, so every fellow who has sent one to the pulp magazines has an unkillable yen to hear Loretta Young utter his passionate lines. He believes they are better lines than she has uttered so far. That they may be the same lines she has uttered on sundry occasions bothers him not a whit.

[To be concluded tomorrow.]

Jewish Welfare Fund Will Hold Final Rally Tomorrow

A final luncheon rally for workers in Chicago's campaign to raise 2 million dollars for aiding European refugees will be held tomorrow in the Standard club. Speakers at the meeting, which is sponsored by the Jewish Welfare fund, will be Clarence E. Pickett, executive secretary of the American Friends Service committee, and D. Robert Yarnell, a member of the delegation which went to Germany in December to deal with the Nazis for Jewish emigration. It was reported yesterday that Chicagoans have raised more than $1,800,000 of their relief quota. The quota for the entire country is 20 million dollars.

The Blind Side

By Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS.

Ross Craddock's father, now dead, turned Craddock House into flats, and had installed his old maid cousins, Mary and Lucy Craddock, in a flat apiece, on either side of the one occupied by Ross. After Mary's death Lucy prepares to leave for a change of scene. Their cousin, Peter Renshaw, is staying in Mary's flat while he settles her estate. A cruel note from Ross orders Lucy to vacate her flat. Confronting Ross she learns it is because she objects to his attentions to her foolish young niece, Mavis Grey. Lucy tells Peter she wishes Ross were dead. He advises her to take the trip she'd planned. Just as she is leaving Lucy gets a phone call from her cousin, Lee Fenton. Lee, who is in love with Peter, has just escaped an unpleasant experience with a married man. Lucy gives Lee the keys to use her flat while she is away. Rush, the porter, admits Lee. He mutters belligerently against Ross. After Rush, Lee has a time dismissing Mrs. Green, the charwoman, who says she is ill and needs a drink of brandy. That evening Peter prevents Bobby Foster, Mavis' suitor, from making a scene in a cabaret where Mavis is with Ross. Peter is awakened in the night by a crash. He sees Mavis running from Ross' flat and Ross cut and bleeding. Mavis had thrown a decanter at him. Peter lets Mavis stay the rest of the night and he sleeps on a couch. Later he is again awakened and sees Mavis again coming from Ross' flat. She says she went to retrieve her purse. Lee awakens from a nightmare to find her nightgown and foot covered with blood. Her bloody footprints lead from Ross' door. In terror she washes away the blood stains.

INSTALMENT IX.

HYSTERICS.

When the sheets were dry Lee put them back on the bed, tumbling and crumpling them so that the washed places should not show. It was now about a quarter to six. She opened the flat door and looked out. Rush was moving down below. She could hear him sweeping the hall. She ought to put a note out for the milkman. It was extraordinarily stabilizing to think about things like the milkman coming, and having to go around to the shops for groceries. She tried hard to keep her mind on groceries and the milkman.

It was no use, she couldn't do it. Her eyes went to that shut door, and her thoughts went too. She couldn't take her eyes away, and she couldn't stop her thoughts. There is a dreadful sort of nightmare in which you can't run away and a pursuing something is coming nearer, nearer, nearer. But this was worse, because she couldn't even stand still. The thing behind that shut door was drawing her—her eyes, her shuddering thoughts.

With a frantic effort she dragged them away and ran across the landing to the door of No. 9. Peter—she must get to Peter—then perhaps she would wake up and find it was all a terrifying dream. The quarrel on which she had dwelt with so much satisfaction last night had dwindled to a speck. Peter was Peter, and if she could get to him, everything would be all right.

She rang the bell and waited with an agonized fear lest he should be away. Her finger went again to the bell, as if its persistent ringing must reach him wherever he was and call him back. But when the door opened and she saw him she was suddenly calm. She said, "I want to come in," and stepped past him into the hall.

If it had been any one but Lee, the door would not have been opened widely enough to let the visitor in. But Lee—Lee who was on her way to South America. . . . No, thank God, she wasn't—she was here.

Peter opened the door so that there should be no mistake about it, and Lee was inside and the door shut again. He said, "Lee!" and she said, "Peter!" and he put his arms around her and said, "Darling!"

And what Lee would have said to that he wasn't to know, because at that moment the bedroom door opened and Mavis Grey came out. She was wearing the late Miss Mary Craddock's best thin summer dress, a dark gray silk with a pattern on it of mauve forget-me-nots and black leaves, and at any other time her appearance in this garment with its shapeless bodice and its long, full skirt, would certainly have made Lee and Peter laugh. At the moment their reactions were of a different nature.

Peter said "damn!" very heartily, and Lee released herself with a jerk. This was natural enough. It was Mavis whose behavior was surprising. She stared at Lee, and all the color went out of her face. She gave a faint sobbing cry and stammered out words which made no sense.

"You—I thought—O!"

Lee had turned very nearly as pale. She went back until she came to the wall, and leaned there.

Mavis put out a groping hand and fell.

Mavis' swoon was sufficiently prolonged to be alarming. They got her on to the bed, and after a while she came round and began to cry in a hysterical manner. It was manifestly impossible to take her down two flights of stairs and along to the end of the street, whence Peter had proposed to despatch her in the direction of Isabel.

It was upon Peter that her eyes first rested. She said with a choking gasp, "I thought I saw Lee Fenton." To which he returned with some grimness, "You did."

It was after this that the hysterical weeping came on. The sight of Lee seemed to make her so much worse that Miss Fenton, not unwillingly, retired to the sitting room. She was immediately followed by the indignant Mr. Renshaw.

"Look here, Lee—"

"You'd better go back to her, hadn't you?"

"I'm damned if I'll go back!"

"You can't leave her alone."

"Well, I'm not going to be alone with her."

"You appear to have been alone with her all night," said Lee with stiff, strange lips. Her eyes were a stranger's eyes. They looked upon Mr. Renshaw for the first time, and found him a displeasing sight.

Peter was appalled.

"Lee, you can't possibly think—"

"What am I to think?"

Peter ran both hands violently through his hair. He then gripped her wrists.

"Look here, Lee, don't be a fool. You're not one really, and only a blithering, blasted little fool could possibly imagine what you're pretending to think."

"Mavis—"

"Mavis gives me a pain in the neck—she always has, and she always will."

"Ssh! The door's open."

"I'd like to shout it from the housetops!" said Peter, with ferocity. "I've never had any use for her. And she's just ruined my night's rest, and butted in when I was going to kiss you."

He let go of her wrists suddenly and put his arms round her, but she pushed him away.

"No! O, Peter—no! I didn't come for that. You mustn't—we mustn't. Something dreadful has happened."

It was not so much the words that gave him pause. There was an urgency in her voice and in the thrust of her hands. He took fright and said roughly:

"Not to you! My God—not to you!"

She said, "O, Peter, I don't know. O, Peter, help me!"

"It isn't that man?"

"No—no—O, no! Something dreadful has happened in Ross Craddock's flat."

His face cleared.

"What do you want to frighten me like that for? What's happened?"

"Peter, that's just it—I don't know."

"But you said 'something dreadful.' Sorry, darling. You were saying something had happened in Ross' flat. What makes you think so?" He had her hands again, and he felt them tremble.

"Peter, you know, after the accident—when my father and mother were killed—I used to walk in my sleep. They said it was because of the shock. They said I would stop doing it—and after a time I did. I was about fifteen. "I'd had a long journey. The Merville man really was a damned rotter, and I had to come away in a hurry. I just caught Cousin Lucy, and she gave me her key. She said I could have the flat while she was away. Well, I was all in. I went to bed and read a thriller. Then I went to sleep. It had all been rather beastly—and what with that, and being so tired—I—well, I suppose I must have walked in my sleep again."

"How do you know?"

"Because when I woke up—"

"Go on."

"It was my foot," she said in a whisper—"my right foot—as if I had stepped—in blood—all stained—and the hem of my nightgown too. And the mark of my foot all across the hall. And when I opened the front door it was all across the landing—all the way from Ross' flat."

Father Barring Girl's Friends Betrays Faith

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"What do you think of a father who forbids his daughter of 15 even to look at a boy?

"Many a time, when boys are supposed to call for me to take me out for ice cream, I have to make excuses for them not to call for me but to meet me at one of my girl friends' homes.

"My father thinks that I associate with boys too intimately. I don't. All of our crowd of girls is as clean and fine as can be, and so are the boys, with most of whom we've gone through school and known for years if not from childhood. All we do is to get a soda and then meet at each other's houses—all except mine, of course. We are just a normal laughing, gay young crowd. We like the boys and they like us. I feel terrible not being able to bring them to my home, which really is a nicer home in many ways than those of most of the other girls.

"Every time I come in around 9:30, on nights only when there's been no school, my dad starts in on me. My mother is on my side. She understands what kind the group is, and thinks, too, that my dad is old-fashioned and too hard.

It isn't a case with us of whether your dad is old-fashioned, Connie. You young ones think any restraint is old-fashioned when parent delivered. Our case against your dad, Connie, is that he is missing the greatest bet in the world as a parent.

We are not for 15 year olds stepping out willy-nilly, but we are for them having boy friends, knowing boys well, growing up with them in a healthy atmosphere and joining them in sports, games and so on. All with parental supervision and guidance, of course.

Here's dad's mistake. He cuts off the confidence avenue to his girl's progress. If he felt her companions were not the proper sort, with her confidence he could sway her with loving intelligence. His present conduct, besides being unfair, is alienating for all future pleasant relationship.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Bad tempered rich girls are certainly coming in for their share of discipline on the city screens this week!

At the Chicago, as I told you yesterday, Mr. MacMurray is effectively putting Madeleine Carroll in her place. In "Next Time I Marry" James Ellison teaches the wealthy and pampered heroine—divertingly played by Lucille Ball—that you can't keep a good man down—e'en though he be poor as Bridget's pullet. . . .

You see, by the terms of her father's will, Nancy Fleming must marry an American if she is to inherit his fortune. . . . She's intended to wed a fascinating European with a title, but evolves the plan of becoming Mrs. Anthony, divorcing Anthony, and wedding her Count Georgi. . . .

But not so fast, Young Woman! The husband you have gone and got yourself has other ideas. . . .

Spouse Tony packs his bride in a trailer and hies away with her, closely pursued by the count in his fancy, chauffeur driven car.

All roads lead to Reno. . . . See pix for developments. . . .

This is a snappy, amusing little programmer. You'll like all the players and get some laughs from the script.

Also showing on the Oriental screen is "There's That Woman Again"—a second run movie.

"FISHERMAN'S WHARF."
Produced by RKO-Radio.
Directed by Bernard Vorhaus.
Presented at the Palace theater.

THE CAST:

Tony	Bobby Breen
Carlo	Leo Carillo
Beppo	Henry Armetta
Stella	Lee Patrick
Angelina	Rosina Galli
Rudolph	Tommy Bupp
Pietro	George Humbert
Luigi	Leon Belasco
Tony's gang	Fuo Lani, Leonard Kibrick, Jackie Salling, Ronnie Paige, Milo Marchetti Jr.
The Seal	Slicker

The fishing docks of San Francisco serve as backgrounds for Bobby Breen's new opus.

"Fisherman's Wharf" tells the story of a father and an adopted son. The latter believes the former to be his own dad till a hard hearted Hannah in the form of one Aunt Stella comes to live with him and his pop, bringing along her impossible offspring, Rudolph. It's Rudolph who spills the beans and sends little Tony out into a cold, cold world.

For just a short time, however. . . . The picture ends on a happy note.

This is an engaging little number in which pathos has cunningly been subordinated to comedy. Much of this is contributed by Rosina Galli, Henry Armetta and a trained seal. Leo Carillo, whose always intuitive characterizations are any picture's asset, does a delightful bit as Carlo. . . . Bobby, who's getting to be quite a handsome boy, sings often and charmingly—no hint of strain in his fresh young voice.

The film is brief, well directed and staged and, on the whole, merits your attention.

See you tomorrow.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

By WYNN

Wednesday, March 8.

Morning hours slightly the better selection today—not because of positive vibrations so much as that there aren't so many negative ones as in the afternoon. Take it easy with fair sex; take it easy if of fair sex. Evening, a bit tense.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead from this birthday to next can be extra good if you'll work for it. Put self forward, earn liking, but avoid extremes with others and rating self too high. Danger: From now to April 16, and Dec. 3 to 21.

Tomorrow.

Down the groove during business hours; improving in evening.

New Flower Is Developed by Park Horticulturists

The development of a new flower, a cross between an amaryllis and a lycorius, was announced yesterday by park district officials. Frank K. Balthis, horticulturist at the Garfield park conservatory, where the plant was developed, has named it hippocurus Garfieldii. The amaryllis is a member of the hippeastrum family. The lycorius has a yellow, flat blossom while the amaryllis used in cross breeding was red. The resulting flower appears to be a cluster of small blossoms.

Piano Concert Series Closed by Casadesus

BY EDWARD BARRY.

With last night's Orchestra hall recital by Robert Casadesus the Adult Education council brought to a close its 1938-'39 musical arts piano series. At the same time the council announced its pianists for the season of 1939-'40.

Gitta Gradova, Rudolph Serkin, Artur Rubinstein, Thaddeus J. Kozuch, Alexander Brailowsky and Walter Gieseking are packaged together next year in a series whose cost is as low as its quality is high. Main floor season ticket holders will find that the price per program is approximately that of a downtown movie. For gallery patrons, this per program outlay is exactly equal to that required for an egg malted milk—but without the sales tax.

Mr. Casadesus, the French pianist who made a highly successful local debut last year as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, devoted most of last evening to the works of such of his countryman as Rameau, Debussy, and Ravel. In addition he played Schubert's A major sonata, Opus 120, and a movement from the Beethoven sonata in the same key, Opus 2, No. 2.

With a typically French feeling for subtle tone colorings and infinitely delicate dynamic effects, Mr. Casadesus was able to evoke even such evanescent moods as those which underlie the "Danseuses des Delphes" and "La Cathedrale Engloutie." The air of remoteness in time and space—the atmosphere of legendry which informs these pieces—he succeeds in conveying to his audience by means of an art so polished that even an increase of tone from ppp to pp, for instance, plays an exact and important part in the process of communication.

In the Schubert, Mr. Casadesus' passion for understatement laid him open to the charge that his music making is sometimes contemplative rather than communicative. Tone colorings were of a soft gray rather than an arresting brown, dynamic effects boasted a gentleness which suggested that 2,600 sleeping babies, not 2,600 eager patrons, were scattered through Orchestra hall.

BILL TO ABOLISH RACING BOARD GOES TO SENATE

Lantz Committee Makes Report.

Springfield, Ill., March 7.—[Special.]—A bill that would abolish the present Illinois racing commission and set up a state board of control was introduced in the senate today by members of a special senate committee investigating the racing situation.

Richard J. Barr.

The bill accompanied a report submitted by the committee that sharply criticized the racing commission as being arbitrary and dictatorial in its methods with the result that breeding farms in Illinois have dropped from 150 to 50.

The report was signed by Senator Simon E. Lantz, Congerville, chairman, and the following members of the committee: W. J. Connors and J. A. Mendel of Chicago; and Melvin Thomas of Charleston. Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet, also a member of the commission, filed a minority report dissenting from the majority opinion.

Barr Upholds Commission.

Today's action was taken by the committee following the barring of John D. Mikel of Carlock by the racing commission. On Aug. 15, 1935, Mikel was ruled off the track for life on a charge that he had entered a 3 year old horse, My Bane, in a 2 year old race.

"While the facts set out in the majority report of the investigating committee authorized by senate resolution No. 11 are substantially correct," Barr's minority report read, "where one is raising horses to participate in races where classes are had, it seems to me that a written record should be kept of the ages of the animals, and I am of the opinion that where the age of an animal in a particular class is questioned, the burden is upon the owner of the horse to prove the correct age by the best evidence, and in this case I do not believe this was done."

Steward's Job Remains.

The bill introduced today would abolish the commission now existing and provide for the appointment of a board of control by the governor, the three members of which would receive $2,500 each annually. Terms of the members would be staggered at two, four, and six years. Appointments to the board would have to receive the approval of the senate.

The bill also provides for a position of secretary to the board at a salary of $4,800 yearly.

Senator Lantz said today the bill did not abolish the position of steward, a $15,000 per year job, now held by Christopher J. FitzGerald. Whether the position would be continued would be up to the board of governors, he said.

The bill was referred to the license and miscellany committee and no hearing was set.

SPITZ HURRIES HOME

Leo Spitz, chairman of the Illinois racing commission, yesterday sent word from Miami, Fla., that he would return to Chicago by plane today and would call a meeting Monday to announce the 1939 dates for Chicago area tracks.

He stated that Senator Simon Lantz's move in introducing a bill in the state senate yesterday to abolish the present commission was purely a political gesture. He pointed out that John D. Mikel, whom the commission ruled off for life, is a neighbor and henchman of Lantz. The Lantz committee to investigate the racing commission was formed as an aftermath of the Mikel case.

Routine for Commission.

The commission, through its secretary, George Foster, yesterday supplied some figures in answer to the charge that it has been unusually delinquent in failing to break its long silence on 1939 dates for Chicago area tracks.

The figures showed that the 1938 dates were announced on Nov. 27, 1937, but that those for the four previous seasons were never set before March 8 of the year in question. In 1936 the matter was allowed to lag until March 19.

Two Members Missing.

The law which provides for the early announcement of dates has been in effect only since 1937. This law states that the commission shall hold a meeting during the last fifteen days of November and shall act upon applications for the succeeding year's racing meets.

Walter Peacock is the only member of the commission who has been in Chicago since early in the winter.

Walter Schlake, the other member, is in ill health and has been spending the winter in the south.

$1,500 Horse Fancied Over Costly Rivals

AINTREE, England, March 7.—(AP)—Dorothy Paget's Kilstar, bought for $1,500 to "fill an empty stall," is the favorite to win the Grand National steeplechase here March 24. Added to Miss Paget's 3 million dollar stable last year, Kilstar, despite his doubtful parentage, is given a 6 to 1 chance of duplicating the victory of Miss Paget's Golden Miller, which won the National in 1934.

Kilstar was trained in Ireland by a Swiss dealer and bought by a British cavalry officer, Maj. Mark Roddick, who rode him to victory in last year's grand military race. Shortly thereafter, Roddick put the horse up for sale and nobody looked at him until Miss Paget's trainer bought him "on a chance."

Then He Starts Winning.

Kilstar immediately showed signs of developing and surprised all the critics by running a perfect race to win against a good field at Lingfield Park, Feb. 11.

Since then he has been heavily backed because the experts believe it will be difficult for Royal Danieli to give him twenty-four pounds over Aintree's killing hurdles. Royal Danieli was first favorite until he injured a fore leg last week-end, then Kilstar was advanced to the favorite's rôle.

Miss Paget's hopes for Kilstar have consoled her for the collapse of Golden Miller, thought by many to be the best jumper of the century. The Miller has been unwell for days and had to be withdrawn from Thursday's Cheltenham Gold cup race, which he won five times. There has been some speculation as to whether he ever will be able to run again.

She's of Racing Family.

All that is known of Kilstar's pedigree is that he is by Boris out of a mare by Munster King, and from neither of these horses does he inherit a winning tradition.

Miss Paget, daughter of Mrs. Almeric Paget, American wife of Lord Queenborough, first came into racing circles in 1932 after a disastrous and expensive attempt to back automobile races. Miss Paget also is a cousin of the American sportsmen, John Hay and C. V. Whitney.

In 1930, Miss Paget had bought Solanum, a favorite to win the 1931 Grand National but he fell and soon after she purchased Golden Miller, which won the Cheltenham Gold cup in 1932, repeated the next year and then took the National in 1934.

Money Is No Object.

But Golden Miller's success was canceled out by the failure of other high priced hopefuls. She paid $33,000 for Tuppence in 1931 and sold him two years later for $1,500. In 1933 she paid $100,000 for three horses that won only a little over $10,000.

Similarly in 1935 she paid $60,000 for yearlings which failed and in 1936, $75,000 for a colt and $60,000 for a filly, neither of which earned its feed.

The irony of this, of course, is that out of all these expensive horses, Kilstar is attracting more attention than them all. Miss Paget will be here for the big race.

WHITE SOX JINX BEGINS STRIKING; WHITEHEAD HURT

Left Knee Reinjured by Bejma's Line Drive.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 7.—The jinx against which Manager James Dykes has been waging a losing fight for the last couple of years made its first 1939 call in the White Sox camp today, but happily for all concerned, didn't remain long enough to create much mischief. It wielded its evil influence long enough to fashion a terrific wallop on the left knee for John Whitehead while the problem boy, who insists he has reformed, was pitching in the daily batting practice.

The drive, one of those clothesline whistlers, originated from the bat of Ollie Bejma, former Browns' infielder purchased last fall from St. Paul. Big John tried to leap for safety, but his 217 pounds, a one pound reduction since he started training, couldn't be moved with the necessary speed. He endeavored to continue, but it couldn't be done, so he hobbled to Trainer Doc Schacht's quarters for help.

Hits an Old Sore Spot.

Big John didn't mind the pain or the loss of some of his training time, but was concerned about possible extent of the damage. Ordinarily such mishaps prove serious only once in about ten times, but the odds in favor of his left knee aren't that long.

The knee wasn't any too sound as the result of an injury last year in the same spot and that's what the Texas giant kept talking about while Doc Schacht was working feverishly to reduce the swelling. If the knee is stiff or sore tomorrow John will be ordered to take a vacation. He has been working like a truck horse and, as further proof of intentions to find amusement of a harmless nature, has become a contract bridge addict.

The drill today wasn't exactly comfortable because clouds shut out the balmy sun, but some benefit was derived from the exercises. The program opened with the usual calisthenics and the athletes now are so free of soreness that they are able to follow Director Schacht in unison instead of looking like a flock of panic stricken sheep.

Connors Hits Two Over.

After the setting-up display came all the regular stunts featured by batting practice. Merv Connors, the first base rookie who resembles Jim Foxx to the extent of not wearing sleeves in his sweat shirt, thus displaying a set of powerful arms, again hit a couple beyond the outfield hedge.

The Sox square off Sunday for their annual exhibition with the local semi-pro team and Dykes intends to give the attending fans at least a flash of most of his regulars, pitchers excepted. Because Gerald Walker, a flu victim, hasn't reported, Rip Radcliff will be in left. Mike Kreevich and Hank Steinbacher will be in the two other fly chasing positions just as they will be on opening day if there are no hitches in present plans.

McNair to Play Second.

The infield will be made up of Joe Kuhel, Eric McNair, Luke Appling, and Marvin Owen. Unless Jack Hayes is able to speed up the recovery of his right knee which was operated upon last fall, McNair will still be on second base when the season opens. These infielders, as well as the starting outfielders, will be employed for only two or three innings each in the Sabbath exhibition. Ken Silvestri, candidate for the first string catching job, also will serve for a few innings.

The pitching will be handled by Rookie Jess Dobernic, Tom Fleming, another freshman, and possibly Jim Scott, son of the former Sox pitcher. Jim Junior doesn't belong to the Sox but if he impresses Dykes probably will be signed by one of the club's minor league affiliates.

Purdue Basket Squad Names Beretta Captain

Lafayette, Ind., March 7.—[Special.]—Fred Beretta, guard on the Purdue basketball team, was elected captain for next season tonight. Beretta succeeds Gene Anderson.

In the Wake of the News

FOUR teams on Northwestern's 1939 football schedule use the Notre Dame system. They are Wisconsin, Purdue, Notre Dame, and Iowa. . . . Professional football, far from interfering with the players' acquisition of an education, rapidly is assuming major importance as a means of enabling them to complete their studies. Forty-five of the 300 athletes who participated in last season's National Football league games have returned to college and a great many of the others are using their earnings to satisfy obligations contracted during their undergraduate days. . . . Rudy York will continue to catch for the Tigers. Manager Del Baker had planned to send Rudy to the outfield again, but Rudy reported to camp with two reasons why he should not be shifted: [1] He can't catch fly balls and [2] he can't handle grounders. . . . Freddy Hutchinson, Detroit's expensive recruit pitcher from Seattle, has supplanted Joe Di Maggio, as the Pacific coast's baseball idol. . . . When Roy Conacher scored four goals against the Blackhawks recently, it marked the first time a Bruin had turned the trick since Cooney Weiland did it against a Pittsburgh goalie in 1929-'30. . . .

Rudy York.

Charles Ruffing.

Bobby Estalella, rookie Cuban outfielder with the Senators, carries a pocket dictionary which he studies to improve his English. . . . Iowa has not won a basketball game from Ohio State in Columbus since 1923. . . . Baby Arizmendi, the lightweight boxer, has a larger neck than Joe Louis. Arizmendi wears a size 17½ collar. . . . Bob Taylor, Columbia university, has been peeling potatoes to help pay his way through school. . . . Every team in the National league has at least one American league castoff.

Tony Musto, Chicago's budding heavyweight fighter, quit a job as a clerk in a south side grocery to enter the ring. . . . Charley Ruffing is such a standout pitcher with the Yankees, his dismal record with the Red Sox has been forgotten, yet the record books show Red led the American league in total defeats for two consecutive seasons. In 1928 he lost twenty-five games while winning ten, and in 1929 his showing was twenty-two and nine. In eight of the nine years Ruffing has served with the champions he has been above the .500 mark. . . . The University of Nebraska has two athletes of the same name, but they are not related. Robert Simmons of Chicago is a member of the swimming team and Robert Simmons of Lincoln is the 440 yard dash champion of the Big Six conference.

Your Smile Has Answered Me.

The day I asked you for your hand
You had no word to say.
As if you did not understand
You smiled and turned away;
But in my deepest heart was stirred
A moment's ecstasy.
For, though you uttered not a word,
Your smile had answered me.

Since then we've traveled many mile
In sorrow and in joy,
Yet you have never lost the smile
I worshiped as a boy;
And though the tears were on your cheek
And your heart seemed to be Too full of sorrowing to speak,
Your smile has answered me.

GABBY TAKES ON NEW CONFIDENCE AS WEIGHT DROPS

He's Down to Mere 208 Pounds This Year.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 7.—Gabby Hartnett is in the best physical shape he's enjoyed in ten springs. When he stepped on the scales this morning he weighed 208 pounds, twelve under his tonnage when he arrived on this island less than two weeks ago and eight under his average playing heft in the last two or three seasons. Though blessed with the best catching reinforcement he's ever had in the person of Gus Mancuso, Gabby probably will catch 100 or more games in 1939.

If Gabby can appear defensively in 100 games this season, he will set a new major league record, because he will have caught 100 or more games in thirteen seasons, something no major league catcher has done. At present Gabby is joint holder of the record with Cracker Schalk, former White Sox star. Gabby had expected to set the new record last season, but a foul tip in a game with St. Louis gave him a broken finger and held him to eighty-eight games.

It Must Be the Weather.

At the close of last season, Gabby, fretful over managerial cares induced by the pennant drive and world series disappointments, expressed himself as willing to settle for a tie with Schalk in the 100 game season business. Now everything is different. Gabby wants to catch in many, many games, yielding to the able Mancuso in one game of each double header and occasionally when he sends in a pinch runner for himself.

Strangely enough Gabby has reached his present excellent condition with less puffing and snorting than has attended his work in the last six or eight spring training camps. He credits especially conservative living during the winter for the ease of conditioning accomplishment.

He Isn't Fretting.

None of the weight losing has been due to worrying. Though 38 year old Gabby grows grayer from day to day, he has had no worries and few annoyances this spring. The Cub skipper became something of a sourpuss last season after succeeding Charley Grimm on July 20, but with the moving along of things here his famed exuberance has been restored.

President Ford Frick, usually a one day visitor in training camps, stayed over to watch his champs a second day. He went into further details about plans concerning baseball's centennial this year. He stood by his well-known love for the false whisker in baseball historical pageantry, but revealed that there will be many aspects of the birthday year in which no use will be made of store hair.

June 12 Is the Big Day.

Mr. Frick said that the arrangements committee is concentrating on the ceremonies to be held in Cooperstown, N. Y., birthplace of baseball, on June 12. President Roosevelt has been invited to participate in the dedication of the memorial shrine in Cooperstown and it is said he has promised to make every possible effort to attend.

In addition to the formal unveiling of plaques for former baseball greats already honored, a committee is considering a new list which includes, with five others, the late Charles A. Comiskey, Chicago's Old Roman.

There will be a cavalcade covering the 100 year development of baseball. A detachment of army men will rehearse parts for the pageant for several weeks before the presentation.

Rhode Island Star Scores 477 Points for New Record

Kingston, R. I., March 7.—(AP)—Chet Jaworski, center of the Rhode Island State basketball team, broke the one year scoring record established by Hank Luisetti while at Stanford university when he made 14 points tonight as Worcester Tech defeated Rhode Island, 64 to 61. His evening's work lifted Jaworski's total to 477. Luisetti's record was 465.

Big Boys Hold Golden Glove Fans' Interest

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The struggle for the heavyweight Golden Gloves championship should bring out some spectacular fighting Friday night when semi-finals and finals are held before a capacity crowd of 21,000 in the Chicago Stadium.

Four strong and skilful boxers survive in this division. They are Mike Zampini of Cleveland, John Washington of Dayton, Walter Bilicki of Gary, and Tony Novak of Kansas City.

Novak won the admiration of many boxing fans by getting up off the floor and coming back to win by a knockout in one of his bouts in last week's Tournament of Champions. This youngster not only has courage but also skill and experience. During his three years of fighting he has piled up many victories, this being the second time he has earned the right to represent Kansas City in Golden Gloves competition. After the present tournament his goal is the Olympic team.

He Studies Law.

Washington is a Golden Gloves veteran, well known to local boxing fans. His home is on Chicago's south side, but he qualified in Dayton while attending Wilberforce university. In 1936 Washington won Chicago's south side elimination and went to the finals in the Stadium, where he was beaten by Paul Hartnek of Omaha, Creighton university athlete. Washington has shown considerable improvement this season and has hopes of going all the way to the championship this time. He is studying to become a lawyer.

Gary usually sends at least one or two strong fighters into the advanced stages of the battle for Golden Gloves. This year is no exception. Bilicki is an expert boxer, with great height and reach. He is six feet, three inches tall and weighs 186 pounds.

Zampini, one of Cleveland's three representatives, is a railroad brakeman. After showing considerable power in winning his sectional event, he continued to fight effectively in the Tournament of Champions, scoring a technical knockout and two decisions.

Four in Each Weight.

In each of the other seven weight divisions four sturdy fighters survive. They are the only ones left of a field of 23,000 which started on the quest for Golden Gloves several weeks ago. In forty-six out of town centers newspapers coöperated with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in the sponsorship of elimination tournaments.

After Friday Golden Gloves fighters will make their next appearance on March 29 in the Stadium in the intercity matches against New York.

BUDGE HATES TO WAIT ON TRAINS; HE TAKES TRUCK

New York, March 7.—[Special.]—A weary young man, unshaven and droopy-eyed, climbed down from a truck today, hailed a cab and had himself and his luggage conveyed to a midtown hotel. There, within ten minutes, the most famous tennis player of the day, Don Budge, was fast asleep.

Budge, who plays Fred Perry in Madison Square Garden Friday night completed his tour with Ellsworth Vines in Montreal Monday night. The match ended too late for them to make the night train to New York, so Budge decided to make the trip with the truck that transports the party's equipment. He was on the road eleven hours and he insisted on his arrival that, despite his fatigue, it was "a lot of fun."

Budge plans to work out tomorrow. Perry practiced today with Walter Senior.

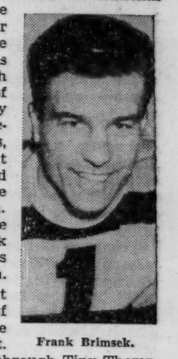
BRIMSEK MAKES DETROIT TENTH SHUTOUT VICTIM

Montreal Ties, Gains Point on Hawks.

Boston, Mass., March 7.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins clinched the National Hocky league championship for the third time in ten years and along with it the Prince of Wales trophy by defeating the Detroit Red Wings, 3 to 0, tonight before a crowd of 10,541 at the Boston garden. Freshman Goalie Frankie Brimsek extended his shutouts to ten.



Frank Brimsek.

Flash Hollett scored two of the goals, the first and last. His initial shot through Tiny Thompson, his former teammate, came during the twelfth minute of the second period while Ebbie Goodfellow, Red Wing defense man, was serving time.

The Bruins were storming the Detroit net at that point and Hollett whacked a clearing shot back thirty feet into Thompson's net. Woody Dumart scored midway through the final period, and four minutes later Hollett pulled Thompson out of his cage and rapped home another shot.

Wings Fail in Attack.

The Wings performed in aggressive fashion, especially during the eight minutes the Bruins were forced to play short-handed because of penalties. Manager Jack Adams kept five forwards in action during those two minute rallies, but the Bruins' defense was much too tight.

The Bruins, who have four more home games to play, can lose every one of them and still retain a safe lead over the New York Rangers for the circuit's title. The lineups:

HAWKS QUIT GYM FOR ICE

The Blackhawks, still entertaining dreams of defending their Stanley cup and world's hocky championship in the imminent playoff series, went back to work on skates yesterday for their important argument with the New York Rangers in the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

Rehersals on ice have been a rarity in the Hawks recent program, but their absence from skating practice apparently has not harmed them, for they picked up three points with a victory and a tie while losing one in the eight days that elapsed since their last workout on a rink. Prior to their last easten tour, there just was no available ice, since the Stadium was taken over by the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions and the Chicago arena by its own ice carnival.

Monday's drill, following Sunday night's depressing defeat at the hands of the Montreal Canadiens, was conducted in Kid Howard's gymnasium. Coach Paul Thompson and the Hawk board of strategy decided yesterday that a return to ice may have the same effect as did a recess from it.

WITNESS AGREES TO NAME BOOKIES IN RACE TIP SUIT

Thulis Denies Serritella Firm Has a Monopoly.

The names and addresses of 100 handbook operators located in other cities—all clients of State Senator Daniel A. Serritella's racing news company—will be introduced at a hearing tomorrow before Charles A. McDonald, federal master in chancery. McDonald is hearing evidence in a suit which charges that Serritella, Mose L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher, and others, conspired to obtain a monopoly in the dissemination of racing news.

The plaintiff in the suit is the Bulletin Record Publishing company, operated by James Flanagan. The company is seeking an injunction restraining the defendants from their alleged monopolistic activities. An accounting of damages also is asked on the charge that the National Scratch Sheet published by the Madison Publishing company, Serritella's concern, infringes on the trade mark of the Chicago Turf Bulletin, put out by Flanagan's firm.

Maybe It Was Accidental.

The promise to reveal the names of the handbook operators was made at a hearing before McDonald yesterday by Charles Thulis, one time Flanagan employé and now the general manager of the Madison Publishing company. He mentioned the operators, apparently inadvertently, in attempting to prove that his company has not attempted to "muscle in" on Flanagan's company.

"Why, the Madison Publishing company has 100 accounts out of the city where racing news editions were never sold before," Thulis said in answer to a question put by Attorney Joseph Rosenburg, representing Serritella.

The names of Frank Diamond, Murray Humphreys, and the late Frank Rio, all former associates of Al Capone, were brought up during the morning session yesterday. Flanagan testified they had a Chicago track program which only ran two weeks.

It Seems There Was a Bombing.

Flanagan said that he was paid $100 a week to furnish news to the new sheet. The plant in which the program was being published was blown up. He said that Rio, Humphreys, and Diamond came to see him after the bombing.

"Did they accuse you of bombing the plant?" asked Rosenberg.

"Well, yes, they intimated that," Flanagan answered.

Attorneys for the Bulletin Record firm immediately demanded that Thulis produce records showing the names and addresses of the operators. Thulis reluctantly agreed to bring the records to the hearing tomorrow.

Told to Pass the Word.

Under earlier questioning by Rosenberg, Thulis told how he became associated with Serritella in February, 1937. He said that the state senator had told him to look for a location for the racing news company. He said he also was told to "pass the word around that a new sheet was coming out."

"We began publishing the National Scratch Sheet on April 28, 1937," Thulis said. "During the first few days we passed out as many as 35,000 copies free. On May 1 we began selling the sheets. The regular editions cost 35 cents, the 'club' editions the sheet to the books cost them 5 cents each."

Thulis testified that Serritella's publication received no assistance in developing its sales and distribution from Annenberg or any of the Philadelphia publisher's associates.

Thulis denied that newsboys, periodical shops, and handbook operators had been warned to stop the distribution of Flanagan's Chicago Turf Bulletin in favor of Serritella's racing news sheet.

Eddie Mead, manager of Henry Armstrong, wired the New York Athletic commission that Armstrong had agreed to meet Lou Ambers in a return lightweight title bout. It will be held in New York baseball park, probably the first week in August.

GIANTS RATE 2D TO HONEYMOON FOR WHITEHEAD

Infielder to Report Any Day Now.

Windsor, N. C., March 7.—(AP)—Burgess Whitehead, second baseman of the New York Giants who is honeymooning at his home in nearby Woodville, said today he planned to report this week to Manager Bill Terry in Baton Rouge, La.

In formal announcements this week Mrs. Ruth Lyon of Washington, D. C., disclosed that her daughter, Ruth Mardre Lyon of Windsor and Washington, and Whitehead were married Dec. 26, 1938, in Emporia, Va.

An appendectomy followed by complications kept Whitehead out of action last season.

"I am feeling great," the infielder said today. "I expect to leave for Baton Rouge not later than Friday. I think I'll be all right after I get in a little training."

BUDDY MYER SIGNS.

Orlando, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Second Baseman Buddy Myer was officially in the Washington Senators' fold today, having come to salary terms with President Clark Griffith.

"Never mind about my salary," he said. "What I'm worried about is who have we got to take the place of Ai Simmons and Zeke Bonura. They drove in our runs last year."

SULLIVAN IN TRADE TALK.

New Orleans, La., March 7.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians' camp buzzed with the word today that the St. Louis Browns were attempting to trade Catcher Billy Sullivan back to Cleveland for a rookie, preferably a pitcher, or perhaps one of the Indians' outfielders. Catcher Rollie Hemsley, after signing at Cleveland today, was on his way to camp.

CROSETTI SPURNS $13,500.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7.—[Special.]—Frank Crosetti arrived in the Yankee camp this morning and refused a final offer from the club. The newlywed shortstop wants $15,000 for giving the Yanks the best shortstopping in the American league. The club offer is believed to be $13,500. Manager Joe McCarthy announced, "We will make no further offer. Frankie will have to take it or leave it. Everything is up to him."

CARDS DIVIDE FOR GAMES.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—After running the St. Louis Cardinals through two hard workouts, Manager Ray Blades picked two teams today to open the spring training camp's competitive baseball season with a five inning practice game tomorrow. Johnny Mize will captain one team and Jimmy Brown the other.

WILLIAMS FINALLY REPORTS.

Sarasota, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Rookie Ted Williams, who has been assigned the left field spot vacated by Ben Chapman, drew forgiveness for his forty-eight hour delay in reporting today after he told Manager Joe Cronin he was stricken with influenza en route and spent two days in a New Orleans hospital. Although he appeared a bit drawn, Williams engaged in the Red Sox's second workout.

HUTCHINSON DRAWS PRAISE.

Lakeland, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—Freddie Hutchinson, rookie pitcher from Seattle, impressed his Detroit teammates today. Catcher Birdie Tebbetts reported that the ball sails on every pitch with his control perfect. Manager Del Baker was impressed with the youngster's poise.

WERBER STILL ON BLOCK.

Lake Charles, La., March 7.—(AP)—Connie Mack said today that even if Bill Werber, Athletics' third baseman, accepts a $2,000 salary cut he will continue efforts to trade the holdout infielder. Asserting there was "nothing personal in this," Mack said at spring training quarters "it won't hurt us" to drop Werber.

MUNGO USES OLD DELIVERY.

Clearwater, Fla., March 7.—[Special.]—For the first time in three years Van Lingle Mungo is throwing exclusively overhand again. John Myatt, new Brooklyn trainer, insists continual throwing in what used to be Mungo's natural pitching motion will restore his fireball. Manager Leo Durocher has instructed all catchers to stop Mungo whenever he reverts to his side arm style.

Michigan Is Joe Louis of Big 10 Track

Michigan's track squad, defending its monopoly in Western conference indoor competition, will descend on Chicago Friday and Saturday as heavy favorite to win its sixth straight championship in the Midway fieldhouse. No team has held such long dominance since the annual meets began in 1911.

The Wolverine formula for the last five years has been simple. It consists of entering two or three extraordinarily good athletes who win firsts, and a host of competent performers who pick up place points in from five to nine events. That seems to be the formula this year.

Badgers Can Only Hope.

As in the last five years, Michigan's chief rivals for the team title will be Wisconsin and Indiana. But on individual records to date, even the strong Badger team must be content with second honors.

This year the Ann Arbor standouts will be Bill Watson, in the shot put; Elmer Gedeon, in the hurdles, and Ralph Schwartzkopf, in the two mile. But the Wolverines are figured not only for firsts in these events but for place points in five other events and a likely victory in the mile relay.

Watson Is Good.

Husky Bill Watson looks to be the surest thing in the meet. Two years ago, as a sophomore, the colored youth pushed the shot 50 feet 4½ inches to establish the existing meet record. This year, in two dual meets, he has bettered that mark by a foot.

Gedeon and Schwartzkopf will get their strongest competition from Wisconsin men, and there is an outside chance that the meet may turn upon the outcome of the hurdles and two mile. Gedeon, defending champion, faces Ed Smith, Wisconsin hurdler who has equaled Gedeon's time of :08.6. Schwartzkopf must match strides with Capt. Walter Mehl of the Badgers, who established the present Big Ten indoor record for the two mile, at 9:18.3, in last year's meet. The only reason for picking Schwartzkopf over Mehl is the astonishing improvement of the Wolverine runner since last year. This season he has covered the distance in 9:15.8 in a dual meet.

STARS IN CENTRAL

Notre Dame, Ind., March 7.—[Special.]—Six of the eleven records of the Central Collegiate conference indoor meet to be run here Friday and Saturday are likely to fall before the most brilliant field ever entered in the thirteen years of the competition.

There will be a 1937 or 1938 champion present in every event except the 60 yard high hurdles. Three meet records are held by 1939 entrants. Capt. Greg Rice of Notre Dame holds both the mile mark of 4:16.2, made in 1937, and the two mile record of 9:19.6, made last year. The Pittsburgh mile relay team last year tied the meet mark of 3:21.5 made by the 1935 Panther team. The 1938 team, consisting of Frank Ohl, Al Ferrara, Allen McKee, and John Woodruff, is intact and should be able to shave at least a tenth of a second off its mark.

Rice's mile record is almost certain to fall. He may break it himself, or he may push Bill Southworth of Butler or Dick Frey of Michigan State to a new mark. There is also a possibility that John Munski of Missouri, whom Glenn Cunningham has called the greatest mile prospect in college now, will run here.

INSURANCE MAN IS INTERVIEWED FOR JOB AS PITT COACH

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 7.—(AP)—Athletic Director James Hagan of Pitt disclosed tonight he had conferred with Charles W. Bowser, former Panther assistant football coach and regarded as the leading candidate for the head coaching position vacated by Jock Sutherland.

Bowser is a Pittsburgh insurance agent and formerly coached at Grove City and Bowdoin colleges. Director Hagan said they discussed the vacancy, but added that their talk was "very general."

Norris City's Team Is Out; Loses Appeal

Henry V. Porter, assistant manager of the Illinois High School Athletic association, said yesterday the board of control had ruled against the Norris City protest of Harrisburg's victory in an overtime period in the Eldorado regional tournament last week.

"The original decision stands by order of the board of control," Porter said. He added, however, that additional evidence was coming in and would be considered, but said he doubted if the ruling would be changed.

The disputed play was explained by Porter as follows: The regulation period ended with the score tied. Norris City officials claimed a Harrisburg player had committed four personal fouls, but that the official scorer had neglected to inform the referee. In the overtime period, this player shot the winning basket. Norris City made only a single point in the extra period.

Porter quoted rule 6, section 11, of the National Basketball rules, which he said ruled in effect that points made by the player should count and time elapsed should count as part of game time.

A photographic copy of the score book, Porter said, showed only three personal fouls charged against the player in question.

"It is regrettable that such a play should come up in such an important game," Porter said, "but under the rules there is nothing for the board of control to do but deny the protest and permit Harrisburg to play in the sectional tournament."

The race for the Illinois high school basketball championship will be resumed in fifteen sectional tournament centers today. One hundred and twenty teams are left.

The winners of these fifteen tournaments, extending from Elgin on the north to Johnston City on the south, will advance to Huff gymnasium, Champaign, next week to join the Chicago champion in the final competition for the state title.

Loyola Five Will Play in New York Writers' Tourney

Loyola university, undefeated in 19 basketball games, yesterday accepted an invitation to compete in the second annual tournament sponsored by the Metropolitan Basketball Writers' association in New York. The tourney will begin March 15 with a doubleheader in Madison Square Garden.

Manley and Hirsch Win Junior Games

The Hirsch and Manley junior basketball teams won quarter-final games in the Chicago Public High School league yesterday, Hirsch beating Harrison, 29 to 20, at Crane, and Manley triumphing over Hyde Park, 27 to 15, at Englewood.

A fourth quarter rally by Manley broke up what had been a close battle with Hyde Park. Manley led, 16 to 13, going into the final period. Stein made two field goals, Rodnick a basket and two free throws, Freidin two free throws, and Leitner one in the drive, while Hyde Park was held to one basket by Nieman.

Hirsch stepped into an 8 to 4 lead over Harrison at the quarter and never was headed. Canna and Thatcher between them scored 24 of Hirsch's points, the former with 13 and Thatcher with 11.

Semi-final games in the senior division will be played this afternoon, with Crane opposing Lane in the Marshall gymnasium and Phillips meeting Hirsch on the Englewood floor. Both games will begin at 3:30 o'clock. Junior lineups:

CHAMACO BEATS DENTON TWICE IN CUE TOURNEY

New York, March 7.—(AP)—Joe Chamaco of New York won twice over Tiff Denton of Kansas City today to extend his record in the national three cushion billiards tournament to thirty victories and six defeats. After an impressive 50 to 43 victory in fifty-four innings this afternoon, Chamaco won, 50 to 35, tonight in fifty innings.

In another match here, Jay Bozeman of Chicago and Johnny Layton of New York broke even in two games. Layton, seeking to take second place from Bozeman, won the afternoon match, 50 to 24, in forty-one innings, but Bozeman came back tonight to win, 50 to 38, in forty-four innings.

SCOVILLE WINS TWO.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 7.—(AP)—Frank Scoville of Buffalo scored a double victory over Arthur Thurnblad of Kenosha, Wis., today. He won the afternoon match, 50 to 45, in 57 innings and the evening match, 50 to 23, in 48 innings.

Indiana, Purdue, Wisconsin Tune Up for Big Ten Swim

Lafayette, Ind., March 7.—[Special.]—As a final tuneup for the Big Ten meet here Friday and Saturday, Purdue, Wisconsin, and Indiana will engage in a triangular swimming meet here tomorrow. The Badgers rule as favorites.

All preparations were completed today for the conference meet which is expected to produce a number of new records as Ohio State and Michigan, co-favorites for the title, seek to break their dual meet deadlock to determine superiority.

There is little to choose between the Buckeyes, defending champions, and Michigan, which won the national intercollegiate title last year. The eventual landing place of the title is expected to depend upon the way in which the other contending teams cut in for points. For the first time in a number of years the official entry list, as closed today, revealed that every Big Ten school will be represented by nearly a full team.

Waldemear Tomski, free style sprinter who has bettered Big Ten marks in dual competition, and Capt. Tom Haynie, defending champion and record holder in the distance free style events, are expected to give Michigan a big edge in first places. The Buckeyes, however, have balanced strength, coupled with such outstanding individuals as Al Patnik, who holds all spring board diving titles; Bob Johnson, free style sprinter, and others.

Ohio State to Represent District in N.C.A.A. Tourney

Arthur [Dutch] Lonborg, Northwestern basketball coach, announced last night that Ohio State, Big Ten champion, had been selected to represent the fourth district at the N. C. A. A. sectional basketball tournament in Philadelphia. The district is made up of Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, and Iowa.

In other matches Ambrosia will meet Power House, Baby Ruths will bowl Schlitz, and Thompson Restaurants will shoot against Prager.

Notre Dame Is 48-42 Victor Over Detroit

Detroit, Mich., March 7.—[Special.]—Notre Dame university, playing alert, fast breaking basketball behind the sharpshooting of Paul Ducharme, piled up a 13 point lead in the first half here tonight and played conservatively from then on to defeat the University of Detroit, 48 to 42.

It was the twelfth consecutive victory for Notre Dame over Detroit in basketball.

Ducharme, a guard who learned his basketball at Mt. Carmel High school in Chicago, played his finest collegiate game in leading the Irish to their fourteenth victory of the year. Ducharme scored 17 points, and his work in the first half really settled the issue.

He took six shots in the first half and made every one. Those shots enabled Notre Dame to lead, 29 to 16, at the half. In the second half Bob Calihan, Detroit center from Chicago, led a drive which fell just six points short of tying the score.

Blind Wrestler Wins Titles and Respect of Foes

Beloit, Wis., March 7.—[Special.]—Bill Brannan of Evanston has become one of the outstanding men on the Beloit college campus. Although totally blind, he is one of the best wrestlers on the varsity squad, a student, and a campus leader.

Bill has wrestled at both 128 and 135 pounds and his record to date is seven victories, three losses, and one tie in competition with the best matmen of the Midwest conference and of the University of Wisconsin.

He has been blind since infancy, but always has firmly believed that the handicap did not prevent his living a normal active life. His fellow students will testify that he has proved his contentions.

Before coming to Beloit he attended regular public schools, graduating from Evanston High school. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Brannan, 2333 Hartrey avenue, Evanston, taught him the Braille method of reading, but he uses it very little now, relying on his memory for class lectures and employing a reader for text book assignments. His methods seem to work well, for his scholastic average is 2.3, mostly As and Bs. He will finish a regular four year course this spring, having majored in mathematics, with physics as a minor course.

MICHIGAN NAMES CENTER JIM RAE 1939-'40 CAPTAIN

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 7.—[Special.]—Jim Rae, junior center from Toledo, today was named captain of the 1940 University of Michigan basketball team. Rae was the mainstay of Michigan's 1939 squad. His absences with a recurring back injury account for the Wolverines' drop to seventh place in the Big Ten standings and his return was the major factor in Michigan's 53 to 45 defeat of Indiana.

POPE PIUS GIVES HIS BLESSING TO PEOPLE OF U. S.

Receives Mundelein and Group of Chicagoans.

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VATICAN CITY, March 7.—Pope Pius XII. imparted a benediction on the people of the United States today. He gave the blessing as he received in audience Cardinal George Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago, and Cardinal William O'Connell, archbishop of Boston.

The pope received the two cardinal, saparately in the papal chambers of the pontifical palace. He expressed pleasure that he had been able to visit the United States in the autumn of 1936 as Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, papal secretary of state. He recalled the hospitality he had received.

Receives Chicago Visitors.

This writer was received in audience by Pope Pius XII. It was the first audience the pontiff has granted to any newspaper man.

Cardinal Mundelein presented the writer to the pope along with Msgr. Patrick Hayes of the St. Mary of the Lake seminary in Mundelein, Ill.; Msgr. Frederick Hillenbrand, rector of the College of St. Mary of the Lake in Rome; Dr. L. D. Moorhead and Mrs. Moorhead of Chicago, and five Chicago priests who are taking postgraduate work in Rome.

The priests were the Rev. John Fahey, Romeo Blanchette, William Devereux, Thomas Grady and Joseph Holbrook. The pope recalled that Father Fahey had delivered an address of welcome in English and Father Blanchette one in Latin, when he, as Cardinal Pacelli, had visited the St. Mary of the Lake seminary in Mundelein.

Mundelein Introduces Writer.

Cardinal Mundelein, in presenting the writer to the pope, said: "This man is a journalist, a sports writer from Chicago whose newspaper through its sporting columns has accomplished much for Chicago charities and for our metropolis."

The audience was perhaps one of the most informal the Vatican has ever known. Instead of sitting on a throne in the reception room, the pope received us in the papal library. He stood in front of his desk throughout the visit.

The pope was attired in a white cossack with white silk sash and white cuffs, red velvet slippers, and a white zuchetta (skull cap). He was still wearing his old ring, a blue sapphire, on the fourth finger of his right hand.

He is tall, thin, ascetic, with a high forehead, sallow complexion, and dark smouldering eyes. He steps forward quickly. He seems to take an eager personal interest in one's affairs. His voice is soft and pleasant and a radiant smile lights up his stern countenance. His hair is streaked with gray and the lines about his mouth are firmer than when he visited Chicago two years ago, but his winning personality remains unchanged.

VATICAN BANS WRITERS

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

VATICAN CITY, March 7.—The holy see today banished all newspaper men from the Vatican. The ban followed the reporting by newspaper men yesterday of a meeting between Pope Pius XII. and the four German cardinals. The order affects not only resident and special correspondents, but also persons hitherto used by the Vatican for keeping in touch with the world press.

Until further notice newspaper men will be admitted only to the state secretariat, where news of a purely official character will be made available to them. They will be excluded from all other parts of the Vatican, especially the St. Damascus courtyard, from where it was possible to see who was admitted to papal audiences.

The order reflects the irritation caused the Vatican by publication of the names of those received by the pope. It also emphasizes the importance attributed to the pontiff's conference with the German cardinals. An impression exists that the audience marks the beginning of an effort by the Vatican to end the deadlock in relations between the holy see and Germany.

Pope Pius is confident that he will establish at least a semblance of peace between the holy see and the Nazi government. The pope, it is believed, hopes to obtain more endurable conditions for the Catholic episcopacy, the clergy, and members of the church.

Kent Chandler Unopposed for Mayor of Lake Forest

Kent Chandler, mayor of Lake Forest for the last two years, and eight other candidates on his ticket were assured of reëlection yesterday when the deadline passed without any other persons filing petitions. LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Stoking the Bawler

DEATH CONCEALS WANDERING VET'S 42 YEAR HISTORY

Believed War Victim; Dies in Car Mishap.

Emil C. Brown.

Emil C. Brown was 31 years old when he left his Chicago home in 1897. The next year he enlisted in the Spanish-American war from the state of Washington. After the war his family had no word from him. It was assumed he was killed in action.

Last Friday an elderly man was injured fatally by an automobile at St. Lawrence and South Chicago avenues. The body was removed to an undertaking parlor at 7509 Stony Island avenue.

The undertaker, James Lawrence, found veterans' papers in his pocket identifying him as Brown. His address was given as 501 East 71st street.

Notifies V. F. W. Post.

Lawrence notified the Veterans of Foreign Wars post of the Avalon, Grand Crossing, and Chatham districts. Robert M. St. Clair, 7800 Champlain avenue, the post adjutant, investigated and found that Brown had a sister, Miss Celia Brown, living at 5437 Drexel boulevard, and a nephew, Robert W. Brown, at 8030 South Throop street.

Astonishingly enough, they had never heard that Emil Brown was living a few miles away. Why had he failed to rejoin his family? Had he received an injury in the war which wiped out remembrance of his kin? No one knows.

St. Clair learned that after the Spanish-American war Brown worked in Omaha, Neb., until 1917. During the world war he worked in an army uniform factory in Philadelphia. For fourteen years he operated tailor shops on the south side of Chicago. Since 1932 he had done odd jobs.

Sister Is Shocked.

His sister, Celia, is a retired teacher. "I am shocked at hearing that Emil was alive," she said yesterday. "The last I had heard from him was in 1897 when he wrote from Utah asking for money, and I sent him $80." His parents, two other brothers, and two other sisters are dead.

The driver of the car which struck Brown was Charles Lytle of 7645 Drexel avenue. He was exonerated by a coroner's jury. Services for Brown will be held at 2 p. m. today in Lawrence's chapel. A delegation from the V. F. W. post will attend.

EVANSTON BOYS PUT-PUT INTO 'A PREDICAMENT

Evanston boys who have built soap box scooters, powered by gasoline engines, and use them to scoot all over the suburb received some bad news yesterday. Chief of Police William O. Freeman decided that the scooters henceforth will be classified as motor vehicles and that their drivers must obey all trafic rules for motor vehicles. They must have state and city licenses, he said, and must pass inspection tests for brakes and lights. The chief acted on the advice of William Calderwood, juvenile officer, who found that twenty scooters already are in operation in Evanston and that scores of boys are building them.

Trinidad Del Rio, a midget, on witness stand before Judge Lambert K. Hayes, during hearing yesterday.

A jury in Municipal court yesterday returned a verdict of $1,155 against Paulino and Martha Rodriguez, 2121 Washington boulevard, parents of three circus midgets, in favor of Jack Tavlin, a theatrical agent. Tavlin had managed the midgets, Trinidad, 19 years old and 41 inches high; Paul, 10, whose height is 28 inches, and Dolores, 12, who is 37 inches tall. They are known professionally as the Del Rios.

Tavlin told the jury and Judge Lambert K. Hayes that when the midgets were traveling with a circus they refused to work Sundays or sell postcard pictures of themselves unless paid extra for both. His contract with the parents, he said, called for their services for seven days. Tavlin said he paid them extra, under protest, to keep the show going. The father admitted signing the contract.

The midgets were paid $150 a week, according to Attorney Sol Friedman, representing Tavlin. An additional $75 weekly was paid to their chaperon.

WHITE CANES TAP OUT GAY TUNE AT PARTY FOR BLIND

The drab corridors of the Illinois Industrial Home for the Blind, 1900 Marshall boulevard, resounded last night with the tunes of old ballads, sung with the accompaniment of tapping canes.

That the canes were white, and the singers were sightless did not depress their visitors. It was one of the gay monthly parties for the blind given by the Blind Service association, 185 North Wabash avenue. There is little planning at these parties. Last night, for instance, there was a pretty girl who sang again and again, because her listeners loved "You're a Sweet Little Headache." There was a gangling boy who whistled while they stomped out the choruses. A dark haired girl gave a dramatic reading. Sydney S. Eckstone of 5038 South Woodlawn avenue was the master of ceremonies.

The women of the Lincoln lodge prepared refreshments and favors. The men received socks and the women powder puffs.

DIP IN KELLOGG SWITCHBOARD'S PROFITS SHOWN

Monsanto Chemical Outlook Brighter.

Lower earnings in 1938 than in 1937 were reported yesterday by the Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company, Chicago telephone equipment manufacturer. The A. O. Smith corporation, Milwaukee manufacturer of steel products, had a loss in 1938 compared with a profit in 1937. A better outlook was reported in the annual statement of the Monsanto Chemical company, St. Louis.

Edgar M. Queeny tells of new chemical products.

Kellogg Switchboard's net profit for 1938 was $251,988, equal to 73 cents a share, compared with $461,247, equal to $1.50 a share, for 1937.

Moving Boosts Expense Total.

G. A. Yanochowski, president, said the company's operating expenses in the first few months of last year were abnormally high because the company was moving to its new quarters at 6650 South Cicero avenue. He said a reduction in expenses should result from the sale of the woodworking plant at Cassopolis, Mich. Woodworking will be concentrated at the new plant.

A. O. Smith's preliminary report disclosed that the company had a loss of $937,224 in the twelve months ended Jan. 31, 1939. This figure is subject to year-end adjustments and it does not include the results of controled or affiliated companies. In the twelve months ended Jan. 31, 1938, it had a profit of $890,560, equal to $1.78 a share.

Edgar M. Queeny, president of Monsanto Chemical, told of new products produced in the company's laboratories. He submitted the annual report to stockholders. The company two weeks ago made public its 1938 earnings figures.

New Plastics Marketed.

Among the laboratory developments which reached the selling stage were: New phosphate products for the textile, soap, and agricultural industries, a new plastic said to improve the effectiveness of automobile safety glass, a new transparent plastic packaging material, improved chemicals for the rubber and tire industries, and new chemicals for the food, steel, tanning, oil, and paper industries.

Queeny said that so far this year sales and earnings have been materially ahead of 1938. Events in recent months give considerable encouragement to the opinion that government has a better understanding of industry's problems, he added.

Illinois Bell Trend Upward.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company showed an earnings improvement in January, 1939, as compared with January, 1938. Its net operating income for January was $1,206,823 after taxes but before interest. For January, 1938, the figure was $1,023,729.

Loose-Wiles Biscuit company reported 1938 net earnings increased to $938,074, equal to $1.50 a common share, from $733,593, or $1.01 a share, in 1937.

Timken Roller Bearing company reported a net profit for 1938 of $1,427,903, equal to 59 cents a share. A net profit of $10,837,366 was reported for 1937.

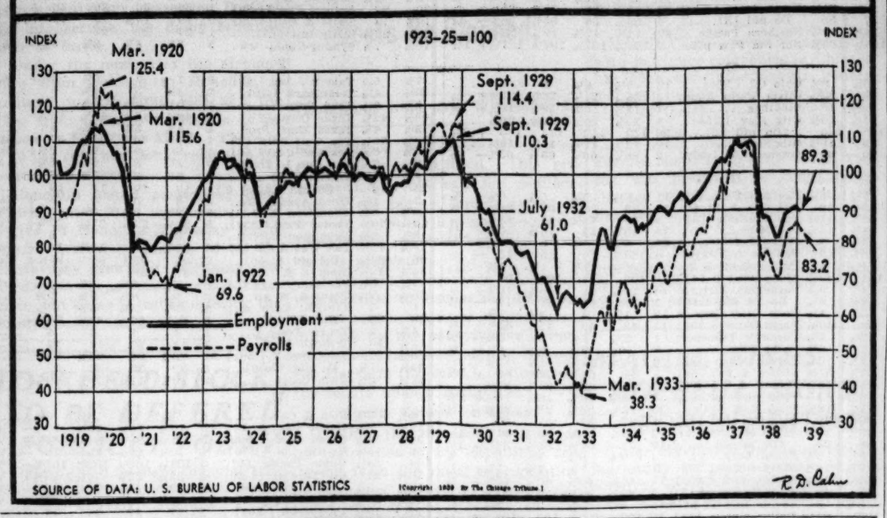
Trend of Employment and Pay Rolls in Manufacturing Industries 1919-1939



Officers Now More Ready to Buy Securities

Corporation leaders have more confidence in the securities markets than they have displayed in many months, a Securities and Exchange commission summary of January transactions indicated yesterday.

Against a predominant trend of liquidation which had continued uninterruptedly since October, 1937, substantial purchases were reported for the opening month of this year by corporation officers, directors, and principal stockholders.

Yesterday's report contrasted sharply with that for December, when large blocks of securities were sold to establish losses for income tax purposes. Part of these holdings were reacquired in January, it was indicated.

Du Pont Makes Big Purchase.

One of the largest acquisitions was that revealed by Pierre S. du Pont of the Wilmington, Del., family of munitions and chemical makers. He purchased 12,000 shares of common stock of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., of which he is chairman, and at the end of January held 114,670 shares directly.

H. Fletcher Brown, vice president, also of Wilmington, reported gifts totaling 2,000 shares, reducing his interest in the stock to 29,000 shares.

One of the largest transactions on the selling side of the market was reported by Stanley Field, Chicago. He disposed of 11,550 common shares of Marshall Field & Co., of which he is a director. This reduced his common holdings to 6,737 shares, but his direct and indirect interest in the preferred stock remained undisturbed at 50,000 shares.

Simpson Makes Big Stock Gift.

James Simpson, director of Marshall Field & Co., gave away 800 common shares and held 19,272 at the close of January. Hughston M. McBain, first vice president, held 500 shares at the end of the month after buying that number. Earl B. Kribben, secretary, bought 200 shares, increasing his interest to 600 shares. All are Chicagoans.

Transactions in aviation securities were prominent in the report.

L. B. Manning, Chicago, vice chairman of the Aviation and Transportation corporation, liquidated 24,000 of that company's shares, leaving his holdings at 142,389 shares.

S. M. Fairchild, New York, chairman of the Fairchild Aviation corporation, sold 4,624 shares, retaining 118,156 directly and 26,100 through a holding company.

Seversky Sells Stock.

Liquidation of 8,000 common shares of the Seversky Aircraft corporation was revealed by A. P. De Seversky, president, Farmingdale, N. Y. This left him with 47,715 shares.

SCHAEFFER NAMED ADVERTISING HEAD OF MARSHALL FIELD

Frederick D. Corley, president of Marshall Field & Co., last night announced the appointment of G. R. Schaeffer to direct publicity, advertising, and sales promotion of the retail store. Clyde O. Bedell has resigned as advertising manager, Corley said.

G. R. Schaeffer.

Schaeffer, who will work under the supervision of C. C. Bunker, vice president and general merchandise manager, has been with the Field organization since 1918. Since October, 1937, he has been director of publicity and customer relations. Before joining the Field organization he was for several years a staf member of The Associated Press and later was vice president of the Charles Daniel Frey company. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago.

COLUMBIA GAS MEETING ADOPTS CAPITAL CHANGE

New York, March 7.—(AP)—The Columbia Gas and Electric corporation, a leading public utility holding company, announced today that shareholders in a special meeting at Wilmington, Del., had approved capitalization changes to remove obstacles to resumption of dividends on the common stock.

The plan, effective immediately, involves a reduction in the stated value of the common stock from about $15.75 a share to $1 as a means of creating a special capital surplus of about $182,000,000. This, it was explained, enables the company to make earned surplus since 1937 available for dividends and to declare dividends on the senior stocks without seeking direct authority from the Securities and Exchange commission.

The commission has raised objections to certain account practices and forced suspension of payments on the common stock. The surplus, it was indicated, may have to be increased by $3,000,000 or so before the directors can consider payment of dividends on the common stock.

Peoples Gas Votes Dividend of 50 Cents

Directors of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company yesterday ordered a dividend of 50 cents paid April 15 on common shares of record March 25. The company paid $1 last Jan. 27 and $1 on Sept. 1, 1938.

"It is the intention of the directors," said George A. Ranney, chairman, "to consider quarterly the question of dividends."

The company has followed a policy making interim payments of dividends in recent years. In 1937 $2 was paid on Dec. 10. From 1934 through 1936 no disbursement was made; in 1933, $3.50; 1932, $6.50, and from 1925 through 1931, $8 annually.

Allis-Chalmers Pays Less.

The Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, machinery maker, voted to cut the dividend on its common shares to 25 cents from the 37½ cents paid quarterly in 1938. The 25 cent payment will be made March 31 to stockholders of record March 17.

The directors of the Balaban & Katz corporation ordered payment of 50 cents on the common shares of record March 15 to be made March 31. This is the first distribution on the stock since $4 was paid on Dec. 24, 1937. The company also ordered the customary quarterly dividend of $1.75 March 31 on preferred stock of record March 15.

Brunswick-Balke Payment.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collander company, largest maker of billiard tables, authorized the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 April 1 on the $5 preferred shares to holders of record March 20.

The Middle States Petroleum corporation declared an initial dividend of 10 cents on the class B shares and 62 cents on the class A shares of record March 31, payable April 20. The payments were made possible by amendment of the certificate of incorporation approved by holders of voting trust certificates last Dec. 28. No dividend on the class A shares had been made since an initial payment of 22 cents was made on June 1, 1931.

The Chicago and Southern Air Lines, Inc., ordered the costomary quarterly dividend of 17½ cents on the preference shares April 1 to holders of record March 22.

BIG U. S. STEEL UNIT WILL HOLD PRICES STEADY

Only Changes Are on Quantity Sales.

Present prices for steel charged by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation will be continued in the second quarter of this year, the company announced yesterday. These prices will be for steel products delivered and consumed within the United States during the second quarter, which ends June 30.

The corporation stated that the only changes will be some adjustments in quantity deductions on carbon steel bars, hot rolled strip, and hot and cold rolled sheets. It declined to give figures on quantity deductions.

Move to Meet Competition.

It is reported that the corporation in the past has considered orders to 150 tons as the minimum amount for the making of quantity deductions. It is said it now will make deductions on a sliding scale for steel orders under the 150 ton minimum.

It is reported in the industry that the action was taken to put Carnegie-Illinois, which is the largest operating subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, in a better position to meet competition. Some of the smaller companies are reported to have granted price deductions on the smaller orders for steel, thereby cutting into the business of Carnegie-Illinois.

Tin Plate Prices Later.

The corporation said it is expected that an announcement with respect to prices for tin plate will be made later this week.

Prices of steel last June were cut to levels approximating those of 1928—the lowest in ten years. After this action a price war developed which continued intermittently until autumn. Since the war was ended prices have remained steady.

Affirmation of prices by Carnegie-Illinois, the largest steel manufacturing company in the country and the bellwether for the industry, is expected to have a steadying effect on industry generally.

FTC LASHES PRICE BASIS

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—The Federal Trade commission today proposed that the steel industry's price methods be outlawed. It charged they are endangering capitalism and democracy and are contributing to economic depression.

The commission presented its recommendations to the federal monopoly investigating committee in a formal statement analyzing the industry's basing point price system.

"The steel industry is a focal center of a monopolistic infection which if not eradicated may well cause the death of free capitalistic industry in the United States," the commission said.

The commission named as the underlying objection to the basing point system the uniformity of delivered prices which it produces.

Under the system "base prices" are quoted at a number of points selected by the industry. A buyer of steel pays the base price plus the freight from his nearest basing point regardless of where he purchases his steel.

Government counsel pleaded in U. S. District court today for a dismissal of a suit filed by seven small eastern steel manufacturers to enjoin Secretary Perkins' effecting a minimum wage determination for the iron and steel industry.

House Chiefs Doubt Extensive Rail Aid Action This Session

Washington, D. C., March 7.—[Special.]—Administration leaders in the house today expressed doubt that congress will pass any general legislation to aid the railroads at this session.

Many weeks of hearings on a bill by Chairman Lea [D., Cal.] of the house interstate commerce committee made such slow progress, they said, and stirred up so much controversy that an agreement now is unlikely.

Senator Hill [D., Ala.], who threatens filibuster.

The leaders said congress might agree on individual aids to the carriers, such as repeal of the long-and-short haul clause of the interstate commerce act and of the land grant statutes and the granting of temporary subsidies.

Representative Halleck [R., Ind.], a committee member, said he told Lea the "time is too short" to hope that a general transportation bill will be approved.

"We ought to concentrate on those things which might help tide the railroads over this emergency," Halleck said. He said he did not know Lea's opinion on the question. Lea's bill would reorganize the interstate commerce commission and empower it to fix minimum rates for different types of carriers.

Southern Leaders Hurl Threat.

Meantime several of the south's leading members of congress were threatening to block any railroad relief legislation unless what they termed freight rate "discrimination" against the south and southwest is stopped.

Their intention to fight was announced as a senate subcommittee on interstate commerce ended hearings on several measures designed to bring about revision of rates allegedly favoring the north and northeast.

An indication of a filibuster against any railroad relief bill was presented when Chairman Hill [D., Ala.] of the subcommittee said he felt that "so long as there is unlimited debate in the United States senate there will be no legislation to rehabilitate the railroads until the present [freight rate] situation has been remedied."

Ramspeck Is Witness.

Representative Ramspeck [D., Ga.], one of the witnesses, read into the record statements by railroad representatives to the effect that freight services were not based upon cost of service but upon "what the trafic will bear." Ramspeck said he represented a volunteer group with members from twenty-six states demanding rate revision.

"Before they can get any legislation passed in this congress," he said, "they are going to show more willingness to change this situation."

Pending senate measures include a resolution by Hill calling upon the interstate commerce commission to investigate the present rate structure and revise it. Senators McKellar [D., Tenn.], Connally [D., Tex.], and Bankhead [D., Ala.] have introduced bills declaring freight rate discrimination unlawful.

Stresses Unit Cost.

Ramspeck told the subcommittee that "no matter what kind of shot in the arm we give the railroads in their present desperate situation, it will not be effective unless the carriers sell more transportation at lower unit cost." He said the railroads could not do this under their present rate structure.

"Their present tendency," Ramspeck continued, "is to try to solve their problems by raising rates. But thereby they encourage competing forms of transportation."

Senator Miller [D., Ark.] called the present structure "a crazy quilt" and demanded that rates be determined upon a national basis.

Senator Lee [D., Okla.] announced he was enlisting "for the duration of the war on discrimination in freight rates."

AM. CAN SALES FOR TWO MONTHS EXCEED YEAR AGO

Jersey City, N. J., March 7.—[Special.]—Sales of American Can company in the first two months of 1939 were substantially ahead of the comparative 1938 period, H. A. Baker, president, told stockholders at the annual meeting today. He said business for the current year should be better than in 1938.

Capital expenditures of American Can last year were low, Baker stated, and probably would be increased $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 this year. Outlays will be placed over a wide geographical area, he said.

Baker said operations in the paper package division were "very satisfactory" and that the company was still spending money to speed up the production of such containers. The milk container output last year, he said, increased to approximately 207,000,000 from 127,000,000 in the previous year.

LIQUID CARBONIC BUYS ASSETS OF WALL CHEMICALS

Liquid Carbonic corporation has completed negotiations for purchasing the assets and business of Wall Chemicals, Inc., it was announced yesterday. Terms of the purchase, which is expected to be consummated within a few weeks, were not announced.

The purchase marks the expansion of Liquid Carbonic into the oxygen manufacturing field. Wall Chemicals, a privately owned corporation, has plants at Chicago, Detroit and Buffalo for the manufacture of oxygen, acetylene and other compressed gases.

Liquid Carbonic is one of the country's largest manufactures and distributors of soda fountains and carbonic gases. It also is an important unit in the manufacturing of bottling machinery and bottlers' extract.

ECONOMY BLOC PUSHES FIGHT TO CURB SPENDING

Backer of New Deal Lends His Aid.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Senator Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.], a moderate supporter of the administration, joined the economy forces in congress today by demanding that federal expenses be cut "from belfry to basement."

Senator E. C. Johnson.

A formal statement was issued by Johnson as the economy bloc drove ahead with its efforts to deny further emergency powers to the President and to force administration leaders prove good faith in their recent statements promising encouragement to business recovery. Johnson's move came as a surprise to the Roosevelt forces.

Coincident with this, it was learned that a senate banking and currency subcommittee, headed by Carter Glass [D., Va.], arch critic of Roosevelt spending and monetary policies, stood 7 to 3 against granting the President's request for extension of his dollar devaluation powers to Jan. 15, 1941.

Extension Bill Considered.

The subcommittee considered a bill for extension of the power, which expires on June 30, along with proposed renewal of the 2 billion dollar exchange stabilization fund for the same period.

The devaluation bill will be acted upon by the full banking and currency committee, and there the vote is understood to be close. Renewal of the stabilization fund is virtually certain of a favorable report.

In defending dollar devaluation and the stabilization fund before a house committee today, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. declared that the treasury wants a lasting recovery and that this problem of recovery is bigger than any political party.

There has been a growing belief that recent statements by the President, by Morgenthau and by Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins to the effect that there would be no new taxes and that "business deterrents" must be removed were so much talk.

Give Hint of Treasury Stand.

From a reliable source tonight came word that the treasury plans to recommend to congress that all punitive taxes against corporations, such as the undistributed profits, capital stock and excess profits taxes,

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 7.—The stock market turned hesitant in late dealings today after a morning spurt which recouped most of yesterday's losses. Gains of fractions to more than a point were pared, although fractional gains were the rule for a majority of issues at the close.

Trading lagged, today's turnover of 568,630 shares comparing with 842,540 shares on Monday. Some comfort, however, was drawn from the fact that volume increased as prices worked higher and decreased on the dips.

The scanty business news of the day was regarded as constructive.

Aircraft issues assumed leadership in early trading. Although best prices were not maintained, the group contributed substantial fractional gains.

Pivotal industrial issues recorded modest gains. In this class were United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, United States Rubber, Anaconda, International Nickel, and General Motors. Chrysler declined fractionally, however.

Farm implement stocks again attracted improved attention. Deere gained ½ point on the best buying in the group. International Harvester spurted 1¾ points.

Rails were held back by reports from Washington that some leaders are doubtful of general transportation legislation at this session of congress. Mixed prices prevailed. On the upside were New York Central, Great Northern preferred, and Southern Railway.

Power and light shares improved in the forenoon trading, then receded in the afternoon. Small fractional changes were the rule.

Merchandising issues gave a good account of themselves, particularly in the morning. Spiegel common and preferred were standouts, reaching new 1939 peaks. Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward also worked higher.

New York Bonds.

New York, March 7.—(AP)—United States treasury issues jumped to new highs for a year or more in the bond market today. Rail, industrial, foreign and low yield bonds also climbed. The Associated Press index of selected rails was the highest since March 4, 1938.

The treasury 2¾s of 1951-'48 rose 23-32 of a point, while some other issues gained as much as 10-32.

Leading the active rail group, with a gain of 2¾ points, were Delaware and Hudson refunding 4s at 68¼. New York Central 5s were up ⅝ at 65⅞ and Southern Pacific 4s rose ⅝ to 56¾.

Warner Brothers convertible 6s, under heavy purchasing, gained ⅞ at 99⅞. The rise was in response to a favorable earnings report and plans for arrangement of bank credits to complete a refunding operation.

Latin American government issues again dominated the foreign list.

Chicago Stocks.

Moderate progress toward higher levelswas made yesterday by leading Chicago stocks. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average rose to 11.52, from 11.50 Monday. Transactions totaled 25,000 shares. Forty-six of the 108 issues traded in finished with advances, 30 declined, and 32 were unchanged. Butler Brothers, Deere & Co., and Middle West, among the more active stocks, closed with fractional advances.

Bank Stocks.

Trading in Chicago bank stocks narrowed yesterday. American National shares gained $1 and City National declined $1. Other stocks varied little.

DOUBTS STATES, U.S. CAN TAX PAY OF EMPLOYES

Frankfurter Questions Congress' Power.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter suggested today that there are "serious doubts" whether congress has the power to withdraw immunity and permit federal and state governments to tax the income of each other's employés.

Justice Felix Frankfurter.

The house already has passed and the senate finance committee has favorably reported the measure permitting reciprocal taxation. President Roosevelt suggested the legislation.

Justice Frankfurter's remarks were made during arguments before the Supreme court over an attempt by the tax commission of Utah to impose a tax on the income of W. Q. Vancott, Reconstruction Finance corporation attorney at Salt Lake City.

Questions Power of Congress.

Frankfurter also suggested that there was an "imputed dignity attached to the office of cabinet member and President," and that congress might not have the power to end the tax immunity attaching to such offices. These officials are now immune from state taxation but must pay federal income taxes.

Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson previously had told the court he hoped to see an end to all tax immunity for government employes, including the attorney general and the President, and said there was "nothing undignified about paying an income tax."

Justice Harlan F. Stone suggested that the court might have to "correct" its previously expressed doctrine of immunity even if congress did not act to permit the reciprocal taxation.

Stone Raises Legal Question.

"We have held," said Justice Stone, "that a tax on an employé of the government is a tax on the government itself. If we find that this isn't true, should we not correct this doctrine whether congress does or not?"

Vancott contends that his case does not depend on the immunity doctrine, that Utah state law exempts government employés specifically, and that the Utah Supreme court based its decision on the state law. This view is contested by the Utah tax commission, which argued that the state court considered the federal question.

The federal government takes the view that no immunity really exists, and that the silence of congress on the subject can not be interpreted as permitting the immunity.

COTTON

Mills and spot cotton handlers were aggressively on the buying side of cotton futures early yesterday. The upturn was checked by selling attributed to the south. A reaction followed and the volume of business fell on the decline. Closing trades were .04 cent a pound lower to .01 cent higher. Short covering and buying by Bombay were responsible for relative strength in Liverpool.

Trading in March cotton contracts will cease on March 17. That delivery closed yesterday at a premium of about .40 cent a pound over the May, reflecting lack of supplies.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to .05 cent lower, with New York, 9.13 cents; New Orleans, 8.82 cents; Houston, 8.70 cents, and Galveston at 8.66 cents a pound. Prices follow:

STEEL INDUSTRY DAILY OUTPUT UP IN FEBRUARY

New York, March 7.—(AP)—The steel industry increased its average daily output of ingots in February as compared with January, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today.

In February, open hearth and bessemer process plants averaged 54.1 per cent of capacity, compared with 52.69 per cent in January and 31.74 per cent in February, 1938.

Because of the shorter month, the February total of ingot production was slightly less than in January—2,954,883 gross tons as compared with 3,186,834—but far above the 1,703,726 tons of February, 1938.

General Electric Orders Salary Cuts Restored

New York, March 7.—(AP)—The General Electric company today announced the restoration, beginning April 1, of all employé salaries to the levels from which they were cut last April. At that time all salaries above $2,000 a year were reduced on a graduated scale. In July these salaries were further reduced by a cut which affected salaried employés drawing less than $2,000. The July cuts were restored Jan. 1. "Improved business" caused the restoration, the company said.

ECONOMY BLOC PUSHES FIGHT TO CURB SPENDING

New Deal Backer Demands Costs Be Slashed.

be abolished and a single corporation tax be substituted. This program also would call for modification of the tax on capital gains. It is not certain, however, whether Presidential approval has been given to this program.

At his press conference Mr. Roosevelt declined to discuss the drive for radical retrenchment of expenditures, initiated by the conservative Democrats under the leadership of Senator Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], chairman of the senate finance committee.

Awaits Report on Relief.

Whether the President will press for restoration of the 150 million dollar cut from the relief appropriation by congress, which he already has asked, will depend, he said, upon a forthcoming report on the situation by Relief Administrator F. C. Harrington.

The President would not say whether he would consent to repeal of the undistributed profits tax and modification of the capital gains tax. First, he said, he would want to know how much revenue these taxes are producing.

Mr. Roosevelt indicated that he will make no fight for increasing the public debt limit from the present 45 billion dollars to 50 billion dollars. He said there is no hurry about it, as the debt is not due to approach 45 billion for more than a year. He pronounced it not a pending or important question.

Boost Asked by Morgenthau.

Morgenthau requested a boost in the debt limit in January when he appeared before a house committee, but the effort was abandoned during the President's recent cruise because of definite unfavorable reaction to the proposal.

An indication that the President does not contemplate asking any important legislation either to effect further reforms or to promote recovery was forthcoming from his response to a question that he will send no more major messages to congress at this session.

Senator Johnson turned completely against administration fiscal policy in his formal statement, which said:

"The secretary of the treasury, Mr. Morgenthau, has indicated that the congress will be asked for permission to extend the debt limit of the United States government from 45 billion to 50 billion dollars.

"Policy Needs to Be Curbed."

"I am opposed to granting this request. This is the country's great opportunity to force the government to live within its income. The spending policy of the administration needs to be curbed—not by hacking off a few million dollars for relief to the unemployed, but by a drastic revamping of all expenditures from belfrey to basement."

When Morgenthau appeared before the house committee on coinage, weights, and measures, considering the monetary bills, Representative August H. Andresen [R., Minn.] referred to the secretary's statement that there will be no new taxes and asked him point blank:

"Will that be a permanent policy or just a temporary 'breathing spell'?"

"I think the only answer to that is that time will tell," Morgenthau replied. Then upon further consideration he added:

"The statement which I made, if I can remember it clearly, was that I hoped sincerely that congress would consider the tax laws to remove any deterrents and that I was looking toward a permanent recovery. The whole question of recovery of this country, I think, is bigger than the Democratic, Republican, or any other party."

He agreed "100 per cent" with Andresen that it is the duty of American citizens to pull together for recovery.

Opposes Return to Gold.

Morgenthau said that putting gold in circulation again would be no help to recovery and might add to instability, when asked by Andresen what his objection was to a return to the gold standard so that specific payments could be resumed.

He said that with gold back in circulation an emergency calling for devaluation would require the government to repeat the whole process of collecting gold from citizens. It would fix the price of gold and remove the government's weapon for combating foreign depreciation of currencies, Morgenthau contended.

"I think that with but few exceptions when we raised the price of gold the people wanted the profit to accrue to the government," said the secretary.

"They couldn't help themselves," shot back Andresen. "It was illegal to hold gold so they had to give it up."

"But they did it cheerfully," insisted Morgenthau.

He said that "just as soon as a little sanity returns to the world" he will be among the first to advocate a return to stable currency—a fixed price for gold.

MAGILL FINDS HOPEFUL SIGNS FOR INVESTORS

There are hopeful signs of returning sanity in public affairs in this country, Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors, Inc., said yesterday at the organization's annual meeting at the Palmer house. However, the investing public is skeptical of the administration's "swing to the right," he said, and confidence cannot be reestablished until there has been positive action.

"Most important of the hopeful signs," Magill said, "were the votes of the people in the two leading political parties at the last general election, the seeming determination by congress to curb national expenditures and not to increase the 45 billion dollar limit of the national debt, and the promised repeal or modification of laws that have hampered free industry."

Dr. Magill said that if lawmakers and leaders of all parties will listen to the voice of the people in support of a nation-wide movement back to sound Americanism, public confidence will return and the country will enjoy a period of prosperity.

Continental Baking Merger with Subsidiary Approved

Baltimore, Md., March 7.—(AP)—Merger of the Continental Baking corporation with its wholly owned subsidiary, the Continental Baking company, was approved at the stockholders' annual meeting today. George Faunce Jr. of the firm's legal department said the purpose of the merger was to simplify its corporate structure and effect tax economies. The corporation was a holding concern and engaged in no actual business, Faunce said. The company owns 82 of 87 bakeries in the system.

HOLLY SUGAR DECISION.

Investors' Guide: Perhaps you can help me. I bought 50 common shares of the Holly Sugar corporation last summer. Then in December I read that a suit involving payment of common dividends had been settled and that 25 cents a share would be sent to the stockholders. I have never received the 25 cents or any other dividend payment. Can you explain this and also tell me what was involved in the suit? How big is the company? —M. T.

Answer: You were not entitled to the 25 cent dividend payment made in December because the dividend actually was declared in the summer of 1937 and was payable to stockholders of record July 15, 1937. The court suit brought by preferred stock holders forced the holders of common to wait a year and a half for their dividend.

The suit grew out of a provision in Holly's articles of incorporation which said that as long as preferred stock was outstanding, dividends on the common could not exceed $10 a year.

In 1935 five new shares of common were issued for each old common share, so that payment of $2 in dividends on the new stock required as large a total disbursement as $10 on the old stock.

In February, 1937, a dividend of $2 was paid on the common. When the 25 cent payment was declared in July preferred stock holders brought their suit, contending that common dividends should be restricted to $2 a year.

The decision by the New York state Court of Appeals placed the maximum annual dividend limit on the present stock at $10 a share and held that the 25 cent dividend in 1937 was in order.

Holly Sugar is the second largest producer of granulated beet sugar in the United States. Gross sales have averaged $19,000,000 a year in the last three years.

WHAT DOES FISHMAN DO?

Investors' Guide: I noticed the other day that the M. H. Fishman company paid a dividend of 15 cents a share on the common stock on March 1. What is this company's business? Does it pay dividends often?—R. H.

Answer: The Fishman company originally began in 1917 as one small store in Rutland, Vt. Now it has 36 stores of the 5 cent to $1 type selling a general line of merchandise in medium sized cities of New England and other eastern states.

The common stock is paying 15 cents a share quarterly.

There Are More "New" Used Cars AT YOUR Ford Dealer Every Day

If you haven't seen your Ford Dealer's big used car stocks in the last few days, you are due for a surprise.

Many "new" used cars come in every day for you to choose from. Never before have Ford dealers had such a wide range of good used cars, especially priced for quick sale, because of the sales of the Mercury 8 and the new features of the fast-selling 1939 Ford "V" Eights.

Remember, only Ford Dealers give you "R & G" protection and the 30-day guarantee in lower priced Used Cars.
